INDEPENDENCE DECLARED BY SMITH

Rhodesia's Action 'Treason'

BRITISH ENVOY LEAVES

BULAWAYO, Rhodesia (AP) —Violence erupted in Bulawayo's Negro township late Thursday a few hours after Rhodesia seized its independence from Britain, said reports received today by the South African Press Association.

Negro gangs roamed the streets and several petrol bombs were reported thrown, the association said.

SALISBURY (CP)—The Rhodesian cabinet, dismissed Thursday by Queen Elizabeth, met in a jovial mood today and its chief, Ian Smith, waved a bottle of champagne declaring "now we are launched."

As Prime Minister Smith waved the champagne, draped in the purple and white colors of his Rhodesian Front party, British High Commissioner John B. Johnston boarded a plane for London in symbol of the break between Britain and the colony which declared itself independent without British permission.

Observers said the very fact of a cabinet meeting indicated Smith and his 11 ministers, all officially fired by the Queen, intended to ignore the British-appointed governor's dismissal order.

Government sources said the governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, had left the capital and gone back to his cattle ranch near Bulawayo.

A government spokesman said the cabinet meeting was just a continuation of the long series held during the last month of abortive independence negotiations.

Smith waved telegrams to reporters and declared: "See what I've got."

'STORY ISN'T FINISHED'

At the airport, Johnston told reporters: "This is the end of a chapter, but it is not the end of the story." The first of a number of foreign envoys expected to leave within the next few days, he said it was "a very sad day."

Most of the rest of his 20-man staff and their families were expected to follow soon, leaving only "caretaker" representation.

Canadian Trade Commissioner Ian R. Smyth said he had been recalled and would leave for home within a few days.

White Rhodesians showed no more than quiet happiness on one hand, or quiet forebodding on the other, after the long-expected break. But so far they did not know of the economic sanctions which were imposed by Britain almost immediately after the break.

Censors strictly bottled up any word of the sanctions, which were regarded in Britain as likely to be ruinous to the Rhodesian economy.

Rarely before, and certainly never in Africa, has a country attained independence with so little fuss. There were no fireworks, no dancing in the str s, no crowd-gripping balcony orations.

Smith, exhausted by the strain of weeks of almost non-stop cabinet meetings, vanished after his independence declaration until he reappeared for his champagne-waving cabinet attendance today. He was believed to have been resting in bed.

The United Peoples party, the all-African opposition, asked the Queen to appoint a new legal government to replace Smith's.

In a memorandum handed to High Commissioner Johnston before he left, the party ex-

Angry Britain Ends All Trade

By PETER BUCKLEY

LONDON (CP)—The British government warned Prime Minister Ian Smith and his Rhodesian regime today their defiance of British authority is treason. The penalty is death.

Attorney-General Sir Elwyn Jones issued the warning in the Commons as the government sought emergency powers to restore Britain's authority over the breakaway, white-run colony in central Africa.

Jones warned Britons inside and outside Rhodesia that actions furthering the aims of Smith's would be treasonable.

The bill giving the British government massive powers of retaliation against Rhodesia sped toward adoption in the House.

Quick passage was urged by Prime Minister Wilson, who Thursday night accused Smith's regime of taking police state measures and assuming "the sickeningly familiar attitudes of authoritarian rule."

Jones introduced the bill asking special powers.

Wilson Rules Out Harsh Reprisals

Wilson told the House Britain might have to take further reprisals to counter any new Rhodesian provocations in the wake of Thursday's declaration of independence. But he sought to allay Conservative fears harsh reprisals demanded by some Commonwealth countries might speed Rhodesia toward anarchy.

"Anyone who ignores the fact that Rhodesia is a matter of world concern must have their head in the sand," he said. "We do not agree that the courses urged upon us in some places are wise or practical, but we cannot ignore the fact that they are being urged."

Wilson warned critics of the economic sanctions his government has imposed against Rhodesia that a possible alternative is Soviet intervention as part of a United Nations force.

Wilson said those who criticize the sanctions might be inviting the prospect of "the Red army in blue berets."

They are:

—An order invalidating any laws passed or business transacted by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's regime after its unilateral declaration of independence Thursday.

—Authority for the British government to exercise executive control and to make laws in Rhodesia.

—An amendment to British legislation to make it easier for "loyal Rhodesian citizens" to obtain citizenship of the United Kingdom and the colonies.

—An order enabling the British immigration authorities to confiscate passport documents issued or renewed by the Rhodesian regime.

Jones noted that other action by Britain—such as the ban on import of Rhodesian tobacco and sugar—had already been carried out under existing statutory powers.

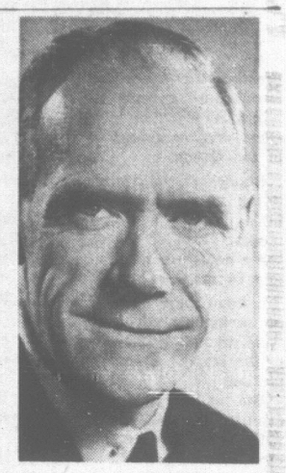

Jones said the illegal regime pretended to give to the people of Rhodesia a new constitution —a move which he described as "a grave aspect of this rebellion."

"We have not yet seen this document, but it would seem clear that one of its objects is evidently to usurp the authority of the United Kingdom govern-

MORE RESIGNATIONS?

Gave Wrong Advice On Election

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson, moving quickly to reconstruct his cabinet, has accepted the resignation of finance minister Walter Gordon.

RIVARD
. . . stiff sentence

The finance minister submitted his resignation Thursday on the grounds that he had given Mr. Pearson "bad advice" both as a minister and as chairman of the Liberal party's national campaign committee.

Mr. Gordon has long been regarded as a "liability" to the Liberal government. He tendered his resignation after his first budget got the new Liberal administration into difficulties in Parliament. At that time, however, the prime minister refused to accept the resignation.

Other resignations of members of the government also regarded as "liabilities" are expected in the near future, according to informed sources here. Among those who may resign are President of the Privy Council Guy Favreau, Secretary of State Maurice Lamontagne and Postmaster-General Rene Tremblay.

Mr. Gordon's resignation clears the way for the prime minister to do a major job of rebuilding his cabinet. Other resignations that are anticipated will make it possible for a wholesale cabinet reshuffle giving his government a completely different image and making it stronger.

Agriculture Minister Harry Hays was defeated in his constituency in Calgary South. Mines and Technical Surveys Minister Watson McNaught was defeated in his Prince Edward Island riding. This means there are now three vacancies in the cabinet.

Trade and Commerce Minister Mitchell Sharp is acting minister of finance and will carry on

Landing Plane Burns; 40 Killed, 50 Escape

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A Boeing 727 jet airliner with 90 persons aboard burst into flames on landing at the city airport Thursday night and 40 passengers were killed or unaccounted for.

Another 50, including the crew of six, dived through windows and emergency hatches seconds before the fire raged forward from the three jet engines in the rail to the flight deck.

Of the survivors, there were 36, including the crew, under treatment in hospitals.

A spokesman for United Air Lines, owner of the plane, blamed the disaster on the collapse of the main landing gear as the aircraft touched down.

The flight, 227, originated in New York and reached Salt Lake City after stops in Cleveland, Chicago and Denver. Its scheduled destination was San Francisco.

THIRD TO CRASH

It was the third 727 involved in fatal accidents since August and the second this week. The first plunged into Lake Michigan off Lake Forest, Ill., Aug. 16, killing all 30 aboard. The second hit a hill while approaching Cincinnati Monday night and 58 of the 62 persons aboard died.

The Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington sent 12 investigators to seek the cause of the crash.

A Federal Aviation Agency spokesman said: "At this point we can see no relationship between the three accidents and

Empty Spaces Mark Paper Censorship

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI)—Five empty spaces stood out prominently today on the front page of Salisbury's only daily newspaper—the anti-government Rhodesia Herald.

The blank spaces were a result of total censorship imposed by the Rhodesian government Thursday on local news media.

One of the blank blocks carried the following words:

"Censorship. In terms of the emergency powers order, all material in this newspaper has been subject to government censorship."

Two government censors arrived in the newspaper's editorial offices to supervise Thursday's edition.

Censorship was applied to three pages and the editorial was merely a blank column.

Blanks were left where the type had been removed, even in the middle of a story.

Canadian Sanctions Against Rhodesia

OTTAWA (CP)—The new state of Rhodesia will not be recognized by the Canadian government which moved Thursday to impose trade and other sanctions against the former African colony.

A few hours after Rhodesia unilateraly declared its independence, Prime Minister Pearson issued a statement here to say: "That we do not recognize either the unilteral declaration . . . or the independent state of Rhodesia . . . or the Smith government itself in Rhodesia."

The prime minister referred to the declaration as "this most regrettable Rhodesian action." He heard the news with "deep disappointment and regret."

The Canadian trade commissioner in Salisbury, Ian Smyth, will be withdrawn, Mr. Pearson said, and Rhodesian goods coming into Canada will no longer enjoy the British preferential tariff. The statement also said: "The export of all arms, military equipment and ammunition to Rhodesia will be banned, and there will be no new aid and financing agreements."

OIL INDUSTRY

Strike Deadline Midnight Monday

A strike deadline of midnight Monday has been set against British Columbia's oil industry.

The move by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union follows a breakdown in talks with oil companies.

"It is quite apparent now that there will be a total shutdown," union president Fred Geddes said this morning.

The strike against Shell, Home, Texaco, Standard and Pacific Petroleums would be an extension of the walkout at British American, which started Sept. 14 in a job security-wages dispute.

The union said the extension was caused by two factors:

- Oil companies made no counter offer to amended requests from the union for a new contract;
- The Labour Relations Act states a strike can only take place during the three months immediately after the date of a strike vote.

Mr. Geddes said the union scaled down its original proposals to an extra 50 cents over two years instead of 40 cents in one year.

In addition, in the job security field, it reduced to six months from 18 months its request for notification of introduction of new processes in the industry.

"There was no counter offer, therefore we set the strike deadline for Nov. 15," he said.

How effective the strike will be depends on support from other trade unions. The OCAW is not organized 100 per cent

EAST, WEST UNITED IN CONDEMNING SMITH

By United Press International

Rhodesia's rebellious white government was condemned around the world today. Premier Ian Smith was a virtual outcast, opposed by both East and West.

It appeared that only two nations—South Africa and Portugal —would extend diplomatic recognition to the Smith regime.

South Africa and Portugal cast the only dissenting votes Thursday night on a stiff United Nations resolution calling Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence the work of "a racialist minority."

Governments with political philosophies as divergent as the United States, the Soviet Union and Communist China lined up in a rare display of unanimity against Smith's action.

The United States seemed certain to follow Britain's lead in imposing economic and diplomatic sanctions in an effort to punish the Smith government and bring it down.

Some African and Communist nations blamed Britain for the crisis. There were warnings from several quarters of an African bloodbath if Britain did not intervene with force of arms.

These were the major reactions:

MOSCOW — Izvestia, the official newspaper of the Soviet government, described Smith and his followers as "racialist rebels." Izvestia placed the responsibility for the situation on British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and his Labor government.

"By its policies of concessions and connivance with the Rhodesian racialists, London has in fact pushed Smith to the decisive action," Izvestia said. The official Tass News Agency pledged firm support for Rhodesia's 3.8 million blacks.

TORONTO (CP) — Premier John Robarts said today Ontario may sever its links with the North American hydro grid if an investigation by Ontario Hydro shows it could lead blackouts.

POLITICAL CRISIS INVADES WORLD OF BEAUTY QUEENS

LONDON (AP)—Miss World officials ruled today blonde Lesley Bunting, Miss Rhodesia, can compete for the world beauty title in spite of the Rhodesian political crisis.

Miss Rhodesia, 22, arrived to compete with 48 other contestants, but her status had been thrown in doubt by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's declaration of independence. Britain branded the declaration illegal, whereupon contest officials decided to check to see whether she could compete.

But there still was a squabble over Gibraltar.

Sponsors of Miss Spain, Alicia Borras, removed her from the beauty pageant when Miss World officials refused their demands to oust Miss Gibraltar, Rosemarie Vinales.

Spain says the British colony of Gibraltar belongs to Spain and shouldn't have its own entry.

"There are no politics in this," said one contest organizer, "but we do have to consider whether a girl represents a proper country."

Lesley said she, too, wants to keep politics out of it but she considers her country proper enough and backs its unilateral declaration of independence.

"I'm an Ian Smith girl all the way," she said.

Lesley carries a British passport; she was born in Bury, England.

Miss Dominion of Canada, Carol Ann Tidy of Hamilton, Ont., arrived Thursday to compete. The contest winner is selected Nov. 19.

VICTORIA MAN AMONG RHODESIAN TEACHERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Nine Canadian teachers and their 28 dependents are in Rhodesia under a government education program in the Commonwealth country that has declared its independence.

Announcement by the Canadian government that it does not recognize the unilateral independence declaration by Rhodesia is not expected to affect their status, a spokesman in the external affairs department said Thursday.

MURPHY

The Canadian teachers include Daniel Farrell, 28, Port Arthur, Ont.; Wilmer Penner, 30, Landmark, Man.; John Donald MacNeill, 28, Prince Albert, Sask.; David A. Daum, 26, Regina, and former Saanich Reeve Stanley Murphy.

He resigned from the chief magistrate's post in June, 1964, to take the position at Gwelo Teacher's College. He is married and has four children.

pressed its opposition to the Rhodesian government's unilateral declaration of independence and continued allegiance to the Queen.

Rhodesia radio's news bulletins were turned into a vehicle for government statements. None of the day's first three news broadcasts contained any other news.

Instead there were statements of stringent government controls, including one on rice, one of the staples of the Negro population.

But as the cabinet met, the atmosphere remained calm, without trace of excitement or emotion.

Some white Rhodesians celebrated their new-found independence in bars and night clubs Thursday night, defiantly proclaiming their support for Smith.

One group staggered up a main city street chanting "independent Rhodesia, independent Rhodesia."

The country continued calm and there were no signs of unrest in the Negro townships surrounding the capital. The Negroes seemed lethargic and almost apathetic as they faced the prospect of continued white supremacy.

Smith's white government seemed to be in full control of the situation as Rhodesia entered its second day of full independence.

Thursday the Rhodesian leader, with a portrait of the Queen at his back, signed the proclamation declaring Rhodesia independent.

"We will, I am sure, be able to face any difficulties which may occur, fortified by the same strength and courage which distinguished our forefathers in days gone by" he said.

Finance Minister John Wrathall and Trade Minister George Rudland gave the first official Rhodesian indications of what difficulties are expected and what steps are being taken to face them.

Rhodesians were warned that they face the prospect of rationing if economic sanctions threatened by Britain and other countries are effective, Rudland said.

Warthall announced that foreign exchange dealings have been suspended for a temporary period. Their resumption would be authorized in a day or so by the Reserve Bank of Rhodesia.

The first priority is to secure the balance of payments and so maintain international solvency, Wrathall said. The second was to tackle the internal problems that ensue, to sustain internal demand, and to deal with "urgent budgetary matters."

Control over imports and exports would be intensified and allocations of foreign currency for imports would be cut below the amounts envisaged when import control was introduced last week.

Exchange control would be tightened. Holiday allowances would be reduced to £100 ($300) from £300, non-cumulative, for each person annually. Automatic allocation of up to £20 a day for 21 days for business men would cease and each application be considered on its merits in future.

The post office would discontinue sales of money orders for payment outside Rhodesia.

Rudland said the severity of import controls and their duration would depend on the severity and effectiveness of sanctions imposed against Rhodesia.

Export control would apply from today to safeguard essential supplies already in the country.

ment and the sovereignty of Parliament.

"There is abundant authority for the conclusion that conduct of the kind that has taken place is treasonable."

There was a roar of approval from Labor supporters when he added:

"So would be steps taken by anyone, whether in Rhodesia or this country or by anyone else owing allegiance to the Crown, with the intention of furthering the objectives of the illegal regime or inciting others to take such steps.

However, the parties split today on the question of using tough economic weapons. Liberal Leader Jo Grimond called for tougher economic sanctions to end the rebellion.

But Conservative Leader Edward Heath urged caution, suggesting that even a ban on further Rhodesian tobacco imports be lifted.

Heath argued that strong economic measures against the rebellious regime might lead Smith into adopting a form of abhorrent government already in effect in some parts of Africa.

However, the government made clear that seizure of Rhodesian sterling balances here, amounting to some £24,000,000 ($72,000,000), does not mean a freeze, some of this sterling still will be allowed into Rhodesia.

Rhodesia has already sold this year's tobacco crop and the import ban will have no practical effect until next year.

. . . 'TREASON'

Labor members warned during the Rhodesian debate that if Britain fails to take action against Smith, white residents in other parts of Africa may suffer at the hands of non-white governments.

Grimond suggested the Labor administration should take swift, short but full effective economic action, even to the point of considering ways of blocking Rhodesia's oil supplies.

As the opposition peppered Wilson and his Cabinet with questions about Rhodesia, Wilson made clear he will fight the use of force as a means of bringing Smith to his knees.

All signs suggested Wilson was walking a tightrope, attempting to show the world and the Afro-Asian countries in particular that he was in fact taking action against Smith but in effect sidestepping tough measures, such as oil curbs, which could destroy the Rhodesian economy and buckle the Smith regime.

Wilson was anxious to maintain national unity over Rhodesia and he went out of his way in a television broadcast Thursday night to stress that sanctions "have not been taken in any punitive sense."

The prime minister emphasized: "We shall need the wisest counsels to ensure that those measures are taken, and only those measures are taken which can best bring about a peaceful return to the rule of law and to democratic development in Rhodesia."

Group of Small, Frightened Men

But Wilson also lashed out at the Rhodesian government, terming it a "group of small and frightened men" who were setting up a police state.

He said Smith had allowed himself to become a prisoner of extremists in his cabinet.

These extremists, Wilson said, were men "to whom the very notions of democracy, the very idea of the rule of law, even the loyalty they profess to Britain are in anathema."

During today's Commons debate, Jones was asked by Labor member Dick Taverne about the position of any British businessman who might trade now with Rhodesia.

". . . The British government have prohibited certain transactions would be criminal participation."

Arthur Bottomley, Commonwealth relations secretary, opened debate and described the declaration of indendence as "an unparallelled act of folly."

Bottomly said that at a meeting with him, Smith "stood out as a man of character and integrity."

"He confided to me that he had difficulties in his cabinet. We are determined that there must be eventually majority rule in Rhodesia. We are equally determined that eventually there must be racial equality in Rhodesia."

Heath supported the bill. He said of the Smith regime: "We recognize it is an illegal government and the British government should have no dealings with it."

Heath asked clarification of a Wilson statement that Britain would send troops into Rhodesia if they were "asked for."

Wilson replied: "The legal government of Rhodesia is the governor (Sir Humphrey Gibbs). If the governor were to approach the British government for forces, police or any other assistance to help to restore law and order, we would of course respond to the request of the governor and give full consideration to it."

Wilson added: "I think the whole House will agree that we should not consider sending what would have to be a major military invasion for the purpose of imposing a constitutional solution on Rhodesia."

—Charles Groleau, 56, 12 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Rivard was convicted Sept. 21 of conspiracy to smuggle and of actually smuggling 76 pounds of heroin across the United States border to Laredo.

The other three were convicted only of a conspiracy charge each, so Rivard was liable to twice as much punishment.

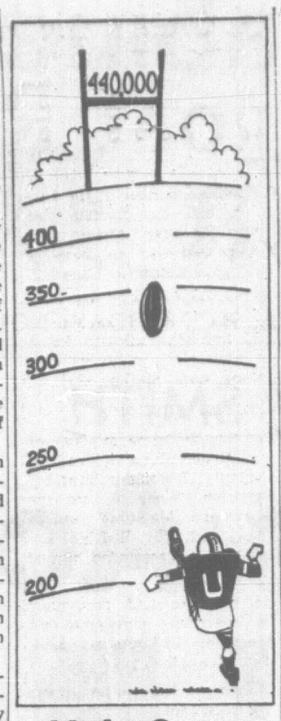

Judge Connally sentenced Rivard to 20 years on each of the two counts against him, but ruled that the sentences run concurrently, meaning that the total term is 20 years.

Connally said the amount of narcotics involved in the case "is beyond my understandnig."

Witnesses had told of Rivard being involved in the smuggling or perhaps $200 million worth of heroin across the borders of the United States.

Help Score 'Fair Share' Goal

Greater Victoria's United Appeal today continued to crawl toward its goal of $440,000.

Total at noon was $360,841 which is 82.1 per cent of target.

The residential campaign total has reached over $56,000 which is only $12,000 short of its quota.

Persons missed in the residential canvass can contribute at one of nine downtown United Appeal collection centres.

Donations can be taken at the main branches of the five chartered banks and in the accounts departments of Woodward's, Hudson's Bay Co., and Eaton's department stores.

The appeal's collection booth at Yates and Douglas is averaging $200 daily in contributions.

CLOSURES

Support by other unions, responding to a call not to handle "hot" products, could conceivably shut down pulp mills, steel plants, major construction projects and inter-city trucking.

At the B.C. Federation of Labor annual meeting last week, Mr. Geddes said some unions were undercutting the effectiveness of the BA strike by lack of support.

"Some unions have honored the boycott on hot BA products and some have not," he said then.

The 110,000-member federation was holding a special meeting today of top union officials at which full support for the extended strike is expected to be voiced.

One union source said "management can get all the injunctions they want, but this could still be another Port Alberni situation."

He was referring to the seven-week strike by 60 office workers at MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River. More than 3,000 millworkers refused to go to work.

Last week Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said the province will not tolerate a full shutdown of the oil industry.

He was not in his Victoria office this morning. His secretary said he is on the mainland but not available by telephone.

would be "correct." China also promised support for the majority Rhodesians.

PARIS—France said it would not recognize the Smith regime, but the French delegate to the UN General Assembly abstained in Thursday night's vote on the Rhodesia resolution.

BONN—An official West German spokesman said it was regretful that independence was declared "without exhaustion of all possibilities to seek a mutually-agreed solution."

NAIROBI—The Kenya cabinet held an emergency meeting and issued a statement calling on Rhodesia blacks "to unite in this hour of trial against the common enemy." Kenya pledged support for Rhodesia's blacks.

"The battle which may rage for Rhodesia is a battle for the whole African continent," said Kenya Vice-President Oginga Odinga.

ETHIOPIA — Emperor Haile Selassie, the "Lion of Judah," said his country was prepared to co-operate in any measures against Smith, including the use of force. "Our worst fear has occurred," Selassie said of the independence move.

The Organization of African Unity, headquartered in the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa, said Rhodesian independence was the last act of defiance of public opinion and a threat to peace and security in Africa and the world.

Algiers — The semi-official Algerian news agency said Britain was guilty of delaying tactics. It accused London of abandoning Rhodesia's blacks to the white settlers.

"They (the blacks) will fight, come what may, to win their right to live," the Algerian news service said.

"At their side will be all peoples who love liberty, and in the front ranks, the African peoples who will not stint in their aid. Faced with the clear peril in the southern part of the continent, Africa must and will take up its responsibilities."

Geneva — The International Commission of Jurists said Smith has clearly violated the law. The World Council of Churches said it "deeply deplored" the step.

Lusaka, Zambia — Zambia, Rhodesia's neighbor to the North, called a near state of emergency and Prime Minister Kenneth Kaunda reported that Rhodesian troops were moving up to the Zambesi River border. He called Smith a "traitor" and said Zambia was prepared to meet force with force.

The Zambabwe African Peoples Union (ZAPU), an African nationalist party banned in Rhodesia, called on the United Nations and the Organization of African Unity to render "immediate and unlimited assistance" to black Rhodesians "at this grave hour of daylight aggression."

Cairo—The Zambabwe African National Union (ZANU), another nationalist party outlawed in Rhodesia, pledged "to fight until we get our country back."

Ottawa—Canadian Prime Minister Lester Pearson imposed an arms embargo on Rhodesia and abolished the preferential tariff on its imports.

In Johannesburg, South African Premier Hendrik Verwoerd said his country would refuse to join in any sanctions imposed by Britian against Rhodesia.

South Africa, a nation which separates the races, borders Rhodesia. Verwoerd said it was "of exceptional importance for the Republic of South Africa that its normal intercourse with its Rhdoesian neighbor would continue as in the past."

The Portuguese colony of Mozambique also borders Rhodesia and reliable sources in Lisbon said it was unlikely that Portugal would take part in economic sanctions.

Guinea Declares Africa at War With Rhodesia

NOUAKCHOTT, Mauritania (Reuters) — Guinea is raising a military contingent and has told all African leaders they must consider themselves in a state of war with Rhodesia, President Sekou Toure of Guinea said here today.

He said he had cabled all African heads of state saying they must be prepared for collective military intervention in Rhodesia, where the white minority government Thursday seized independence from Britain.

Toure is in Nouakchott to attend a meeting of heads of state of countries bordering the Senegal River.

Guinea, which has a population of about 3,000,000 people, is a former French colony in northwest Africa.

TOKYO PASSES S. KOREA BILL

TOKYO (UPI) — A wild fistfight erupted in the lower house of the Japanese Parliament early today when conservative deputies broke a Socialist filibuster and rammed through a controversial treaty establishing normal relations with South Korea.

House speaker Naka Funada, 70, centre of the stormy session, collapsed after it was over and was hospitalized with high blood pressure and a heart ailment.

GOVERNMENT WILL CARRY ON HIS POLICIES, SAYS GORDON

Scapegoat Role Denied

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Walter Gordon, who resigned Thursday as finance minister, said today the Liberal minority government now is in a stronger position than it was before the Nov. 8 general election and that it will carry on his economic policies.

He told a press conference he resigned because he believed he had given Prime Minister Pearson bad political advice in calling the election, but that if he had it to do over again, he would give the same advice.

Mr. Gordon denied he was making a scapegoat of himself for the election result, or trying to take the heat off Mr. Pearson.

"Mr. Pearson is quite competent to deal with whatever heat may come his way."

He said the government is in a stronger position now because the danger of another general election is lessened. It will be difficult for anyone in Parliament to force a new election, and the government can carry on "as if it had a majority.'

'IN STRONGER POSITION'

"I cannot believe that Parliament would seriously consider another election now until after redistribution is in effect. I think the Liberals are in a stronger position and that we are likely to have over 130 members. So, even if some individual might wish to do so, it won't be easy to force another election."

At a crowded press conference in the minister's office, Mr. Gordon said there would be "great resentment against anyone who challenged Mr. Pearson's carrying on for many years to come."

He said the prime minister has unanimous support in the party, then added:

"Oh, there may be one or two somewhere across the country. . . ."

His remark seemed to imply some criticism.

Mr. Gordon intends to remain in Parliament as MP for Toronto Davenport. He plans an extended holiday in Ireland.

He said he advised Mr. Pearson as chairman of the Liberal party campaign committee and as a senior member of the cabinet to call the election this autumn "because I thought that it was desirable to have a strong government in Canada."

If the election had not been held this year circumstances would not have allowed for a date convenient to government planning until March, 1967.

GAMBLED FUTURE

"I told the prime minister at the time that if we did not get a majority, I would submit my resignation. When I saw the Quebec and Maritime returns Monday night, I called him immediately and reminded him of that undertaking."

He said he had previously urged the prime minister to call an election in October, 1964, and in June this year.

"I'm not a believer in minority government."

Mr. Gordon said he is confident there will be no change in government economic policy.

"The prime minister went out of his way to reaffirm his belief and the government's belief in the kind of policy we have been pursuing . . . the policies we introduced in the summer of 1963 paid off to a remarkable degree; never again will a government be able to say that nothing can be done about unemployment.

IS IN TOP SHAPE

"The economy is in first-class shape and it will go on expanding through 1966. The stretch-out program in construction is a wise one and I am not terrified as some people seem to be that we are on the brink of an inflation that cannot be controlled."

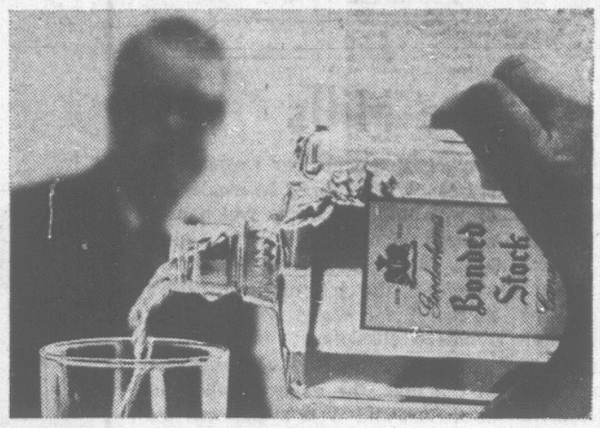

But as finance minister he foresaw difficulties in getting important finance, taxation, and federal - provincial legislation through the Commons without a majority government.

'NOT TAKE ALL BLAME'

OTTAWA—Social Credit leader Robert Thompson said today former finance minister Walter Gordon should not have to take all the blame for Liberal failure to win a majority.

"The prime minister has to accept the final responsibility because his was the final decision."

Look to the Hills

RED CHINA HAS APPARENTly served notice that it is not interested in Western efforts to curb proliferation of the nuclear bomb. With the prospect that Peking will have its own hydrogen bomb within two years and a successful delivery system within a decade—and these must be liberal allowances indeed—the West must face the fact that the current pattern of defensive systems is rapidly nearing its end.

Red China is further on record with the belief that there should be a general expansion of nuclear capability through a "great number" of countries, including Afro-Asian states. If Peking is willing to share its bomb production with such nations, then the safety of the world is under much greater threat than we have imagined, and the need for world-wide control of nuclear strength is essential.

The thought that any unstable ruler of a relatively backward state could vent his wrath on a neighbor by releasing nuclear bombs — and inviting retaliation—is conducive to nightmares that would rival anything Hitler ever conjured. Obviously, the present nuclear powers of the world have little time in which to nail down an effective system of control of the nuclear weapon — a system which cannot be evaded by any additional country which may achieve nuclear capability. Unless such international control is possible, all the normal protective measures for world peace will be rendered obsolete.

Yet while the flood waters gather in the hills, the valley dwellers of both East and West argue over the minutiae of partial control and present neither a workable plan nor a united front to Red China.

These are grim thoughts as we look back on another Remembrance Day, with all that it implies in past sacrifice and human aspirations. It is nearly half a century since those Great War guns were stilled. We have made progress in many fields in the succeeding years. But is this progress only to bring us to a more threatening brink than any which man has ever faced?

"Ban the Bomb" is not enough, for it could take a war to effect the banning. But certainly "control the bomb" is a first order of business for every country. Posterity—if any—may well wonder what we were doing in these early years of the nuclear age; may well wonder how we could have planted and played while the deluge gathered.

When the Switches Don't Work

THE SUDDEN BLACKOUT OF a large section of Ontario and the eastern United States seaboard on Tuesday night carried an obvious lesson which was quickly appreciated by President Johnson. The vulnerability of modern civilization to a stoppage of its life-blood—electricity — should be a high-priority item of government study, both in the United States and Canada.

So dependent on electrical power has the twentieth-century city become that a blackout without warning virtually paralyses the community. It is not merely a matter of the obvious factors such as transportation and light. At stake are even more basic functions: the preparation and preservation of food; pumping of water supplies and disposal of sewage; provision of air for heating and ventilation; mobility not only outside of buildings but within them; safety from criminal elements; safe direction and landing of aircraft; the functioning of the many services which have been devised for human safety and become an integral part of our lives.

The scientific ingenuity which produced power plants and the vast network of inter-connecting power lines which link large areas of this continent has not, apparently, devised fool-proof protection against failure of the system. A relatively minor failure in one part of the grid can be relayed and augmented throughout the complex, like dominoes falling in a row.

The sobering thought is that such an incident need not be caused only by technical faults: it could conceivably be initiated by sabotage. The problem immediately is thrust into the area of national security. It provides, as well, a thought-provoking picture of what could immediately happen to a highly integrated collection of communities if The Bomb were to knock out a key transmission line or two.

The freak accident of Tuesday night that couldn't happen should get full attention at all levels of government and technical administration.

Compensation Benefits

THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNment's action in implementing legislation passed last spring increasing workmen's compensation pensions and benefits is as welcome as it is overdue. The delay in acting was largely due to the untimely death of Chief Justice DesBrisay, who began a royal commission inquiry into the matter three years ago and who had not finished his report when he died. Unfortunately for recipients of WCB pensions and benefits, the three-year interim has been a period of rapidly rising prices and they have undoubtedly suffered by this.

An interesting provision in the plan announced last week by Labor Minister Peterson is that pensions and benefits will in future be tied to the cost-of-living index. This recognizes that higher costs for basic needs—food, shelter and clothing—are more likely than a decline in the foreseeable future.

Public funds will be used for payment of half the amount of retroactive increases to present recipients, while industry, as heretofore, will carry the full amount of the increase for future cases. The sums involved, as with any such welfare programs, will be added to industry's total costs and appear eventually in the selling price of products.

British Columbia's economic position at the moment indicates an ability to carry the $20-million expenditure which will be made by government and employers to existing recipients of compensation and the comparable sums in the future. A limiting factor in future cases, of course, lies in the provision of increased safety features in hazardous employment, and full cooperation from employees in using them.

Vox Populi—To Music

WHEN WELL-ORGANIZED demonstrations were carried out in various United States centres some weeks ago to protest American involvement in Viet Nam, President Johnson made no attempt to conceal his annoyance. He immediately instructed his attorney-general, Mr. Nicholas DeB. Katzenbach, to investigate the protest movement for possible subversive influences.

One of the results of that investigation, apparently, turned up in Washington the other day when two Federal Bureau of Investigation agents confiscated four song books from a music store.

The books were collections of songs written or compiled by militant civil rights workers.

According to a story in the Washington Post, the proprietor of the music store visited by the FBI was quick to get the message. He told a reporter that he had immediately removed all the "offending" books from his shelves

Such is the atmosphere of fear and distrust which is being built up in the United States today because of the actions of a dissident minority group and the extreme reactions which it has elicited.

President Johnson, Mr. Katzenbach and the FBI are obviously taking no chances. Perhaps they recalled those words of that early eighteenth century Scottish "subversive" Andrew Fletcher: "Give me the making of the songs of the nation, and I care not who makes its laws."

"Well . . . Let's get to work . . . !"

OTTAWA POST MORTEM — By MAURICE WESTERN

Weakened by the Battle

THE election at first glance has changed nothing. In fact, the Liberal government, rebuffed but not defeated, is in a worst position than it was before dissolution. It may be some days before the exact composition of the 27th Parliament is determined. However, Mr. Pearson has been frustrated in his main purpose; the restoration of majority government. He is more than ever at the mercy of the minor parties for he will not possess, for some time to come, the most formidable weapon in a prime minister's armory, the threat of dissolution.

Western

This is not all. In the last Parliament the Liberals had representation from nine of the ten provinces. On Monday they found the doors barred in three provinces, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island. Mr. Pearson's task of cabinet reconstruction is now bound to be difficult and embarrassing.

In the past, prime ministers in such a situation have attempted to meet the problem by appointing senators to the cabinet but this is an unsatisfactory expedient, and, in the case of major departments, impractical.

Throughout the election campaign Mr. Pearson emphasized the difficulties encountered by his government in a Parliament of minorities. While these were real enough, the Liberals had one great advantage; they faced an extremely weak Conservative front bench. Mr. Diefenbaker had no lieutenant of the calibre of Mr. Fulton or Mr. Fleming.

Qualitative Gain

Moreover, he had antagonized able men who might in other circumstances have been effective members of an opposition team. The one Conservative who did achieve a nation-wide reputation in the 27th Parliament was Mr. Erik Nielsen, who possessed his leader's confidence and who found in the scandals an issue particularly suited to his talents.

With the return of Mr. Fulton, a formidable and lucid debater, of Mr. George Hees, and Mr. Richard Bell, the Conservatives have achieved a qualitative gain more impressive than their gain in numbers. They have also suffered a few casualties, the defeat of the industrious Mr. Paul Martineau being the most notable. But on balance, they are certainly stronger than they were in the old House. This is true also of the NDP.

It is quite evident that Mr. Pearson has been ill-served by those ministers and party managers who persuaded him that prosperity and Conservative divisions offered such golden prospects of victory that an election should take precedence over redistribution and other important matters.

Pollsters' Error

What went wrong? It is already evident that the analysts and pollsters mis-read the mind of the counutry. The election itself caused wide-spread resentment. The political auctioneering appears to have provoked more. A striking example was Prince Edward Island where the causeway—despite pre-election ceremonial at the construction site—yielded no political return whatever to the Liberal government. Although the Conservatives out-promised the Liberals, resentment seems to have been directed against the government, presumably because it started the process by bringing on the election.

Popular Suspicion

The scandals probably occasioned more damage to the government than was generally expected. Mr. Diefenbaker played on the popular suspicion that where there was so much smoke, there must be fire. Here again the Liberals miscalculated, underestimating an adversary who has proved himself again and again one of the most resourceful campaigners in our history. Not since Macdonald's last election has the country witnessed such a personal effort by a man of 70, driving himself to the uttermost limits of human endurance. At his Montreal meeting in the final week, Mr. Diefenbaker looked desperately weary, almost physically ill until he approached the microphone, at which time he seemed to toss off fatigue like an old coat.

The Liberal victory formula called for a minimum of 60 seats in Quebec. This assumed the disappearance of the Thompsonites, a major falling off in Creditiste strength and the virtual collapse of the Conservatives. Only the first assumption was borne out by the events. In fact much of the Social Credit vote went back to the Conservatives and Liberal gains did little more than offset losses elsewhere.

Now that the struggle at the polls has ended, the struggle within the parties is certain to be resumed. The moderates in the Liberal cabinet have been strengthened by the return of Mr. Robert Winters to public life and also by an election reverse for which the radicals must accept much of the blame.

On the other hand, the Judy La Marsh faction may be expected to press for policies intended either to outflank the NDP or to bring about an understanding or even a merger with them in the minority parliament.

The case of the Conservatives is not much different. It is unbelievable that Mr. Diefenbaker, after the gains of Monday night, will gratify his party critics through early retirement. But plainly he is not acceptable to Quebec and for the third time has been badly beaten in Ontario.

It is arguable that, with a new leader, the Conservatives would have carried the country. Thus the conflict of 1963-65 is likely to break out all over again unless Mr. Diefenbaker is willing to submit to some sort of collegial rule for the coming period and to clarify his long term plans.

Neither party can take much satisfaction from Monday's returns. Nor can the country for the problems demanding the best efforts of a majority government will have to be tackled by a minority ministry which has no choice but to carry on.

FROM WASHINGTON — By RICHARD PURSER

Friends in Office

PRIME Minister Pearson's re-election will be received with quiet satisfaction here despite his failure to win a majority. The existence of minority government for the past two and a half years has caused no difficulty in American dealings with Canada; but Washington prefers assured stability to potential instability in any of its allies. Continued Liberal government means "business as before" to Washington. The simple facts of 30 years of history mean that American officialdom is more used to dealing with Liberal than Conservative regimes, and even during the 1957-63 Conservative interlude it dealt with a Canadian civil service of Liberal cast of thought.

Purser

If Liberal government seems "normal" government to Washington, there is still no objection here to the Progressive Conservative Party as such. But the return of one particular man—John Diefenbaker—to office would have sent a shudder through the American body diplomatic. Two and a half years of his absence have not dulled the distaste felt for him here. The American catalogue of woes with Mr. Diefenbaker is lengthy:

List of Woes

His early campaign promise to divert to Britain 15 per cent of Canada's imports from the United States, which could only be done by artificial means; his opposition to U.S. policy favoring a strongly united Europe including Britain; his weak welcome for the Kennedy Round of proposed world-wide tariff cuts; the general distrust of the U.S. which American officials sensed to be shaped by Mr. Diefenbaker and his external affairs minister, Howard Green.

To this is added Mr. Diefenbaker's hesitancy in backing Washington during the Cuban missile crisis and in joining emergency defence measures at that time; his diplomatic misuse of a paper left behind by President Kennedy during his Ottawa visit; his intrusion into U.S. NATO policy during the Kennedy-Macmillan talks at Nassau in 1962; the nuclear weapons imbroglio; the insinuation of anti-Americanism into election campaigning and the fiscal policies that required U.S. help in bailing out Canada.

One thing that might be thought to have endeared Mr. Diefenbaker to the U.S. during his campaign was his unequivocal support for U.S. policy in Viet Nam, given in Toronto on October 24. But this, though duly noted, has made no difference here, where Mr. Diefenbaker's demand for publication of private correspondence on Viet Nam between President Johnson and Prime Minister Pearson awakened memories of the Kennedy memo incident of 1962.

The U.S. is quite satisfied with the discreet support of its policy—or at least the recognition of its difficulties—indicated by Mr. Pearson and External Affairs Minister Martin. If Mr. Pearson's faux pas of offering unsolicited public advice on Viet Nam while visiting the U.S. last April still rankles with Mr. Johnson, it no longer worries diplomatic circles.

Dangers Averted

On issues between the two countries, the Pearson government has been considered co-operative. Potential dangers such as a discriminatory tax on American capital, discrimination against Time and Reader's Digest magazines, and an auto trade war were averted. The Pearson government has refrained from taking a "no, never" attitude on the possible long-term issue of sharing continental water resources. And when it sought exemption from the U.S. interest equalization tax (a Johnson government move to aid the U.S. balance of payments), it agreed to exercise discipline in the inflow to Canada of U.S. funds.

There are few hot issues between the two countries. One, the long-stalled air routes agreement, is expected to be cleared up now that the election is over, if only by temporarily shelving one or two contentious routes. Washington will be interested in Canada's contribution to solving the coming difficulties. In NATO, and in Canada's final decision on its role in the inter-American system, if these can be definitely established by a precarious government.

"GEORGE WILSON! DID YOU TELL THIS POOR LITTLE FELLOW YOU WERE GOING TO PIN HIS EARS BACK?"

Looking Back

From The Times of Nov. 12, 1905:

Vancouver: Mysterious salts taken by a man and his wife here, resulting in his death and her near-death, will be sent to Victoria for analysis. Strychnine poisoning is suspected.

The unfortunate incident occurred three days after Mr. Thomas Jackson returned from a prospecting expedition on the steamer Camosun. He bought a half-dozen bottles of beer which he and his wife drank in celebration of his arrival. It is believed the beer was "doctored."

Activity In China

By JOSEPH ALSOP from Washington

HARDLY a ripple has been caused by the brief, bleak official confirmation in Saigon that the North Vietnamese invasion force in South Viet Nam has been approximately doubled. Where it used to be a battalion, then a regiment, then a whole division, the invasion force is now officially computed at five regiments. In reality it probably amounts to two divisions; and it is quite possible that a third division of North Vietnamese regular troops is on the way to the front or has already convertly entered South Viet Nam.

Alsop

Nothing has been made of this, very naturally, by those who used to tell us that the Communist attack on South Viet Nam was a purely local, purely popular uprising. But even the more accurate reporters of Southeast Asian affairs used to attach great significance to what was called "border-crossing.'

Border Crossings

Hence, it really did seem a bit odd that this official announcement of the U.S. headquarters in Saigon was not considered worthy of the front page by more than one leading newspaper, although it concerned the crossing of the South Vietnamese border by two additional regiments of Communist regulars. The oddity is all the greater because these new border crossings are events of great importance.

As was pointed out in this space in a report on the border-crossings prior to the official announcement, the invasion of South Viet Nam by adidtional Northern regular units has two crucial and linked meanings. It means, first of all, that Hanoi has decided to escalate the war. And it means, secondly, that President Johnson will almost certainly be driven, in the end, to match added Communist force with added American force.

These, surely, are not trifling matters. Furthermore, the increase of the Communist invasion force in South Viet Nam must be judged in the light of other, more obscure developments. Concerning these, nothing has been said as yet, either officially or unofficially.

In brief, the most reassuring feature of the whole picture, for many months after Pleiku, was the total failure of the Chinese Communists to make any practical preparations of a military nature. Long before, they had changed their air deployment, stationing a couple of hundred more of their fairly obsolete aircraft in South China and on Hainan Island.

But after Pleiku and until rather late in the summer no further move was made. The garrisons in South China were not reinforced. Forward supply dumps and the like were not built up. No conspicuous extra work was done on the roads and rail lines leading to China's southern frontier.

Air Assistance

This reassuring inactivity has now been replaced by activity of a kind that is not easy to interpret. To begin with, some kind of link-up or partial merger seems to be taking place between the Chinese Communist air force and the North Vietnamese air force. Even before Pleiku it was predicted by the U.S. analysts that air aid was the minimum support the Chinese could give their North Vietnamese brothers.

Whether reluctantly or willingly, Peking seems to be getting ready to fulfil this prediction. Probably nothing will happen until the U.S. air attacks on the north begin to hit more painful targets.

But when that time comes—as it almost certainly must come—the small North Vietnamese air force is likely to be found operating, in part, from Chinese air bases, with all the resulting complications of hot pursuit. Chinese aircraft may also join in the air defence of North Viet Nam with even greater resulting complications.

This was not only foreseen from the outset, but, also, since neither air force is particularly formidable, the development itself will not be formidable unless it is the beginning of something else. In this connection, however, consideration must also be given to the suddenly intensified work on southward-leading road and rail lines which has now begun in China.

Favorite Theme

The odds are rather heavy that this is just contingent preparation. The Chinese, it must be remembered, almost certainly believe their own near-lunatic talk. One of their favorite themes is the likelihood of an American invasion of China.

Hence, the intervention of serious American forces in South Viet Nam has probably led the Chinese to match their actions to their forecast. If this appearance is correct, the Chinese preparations, except perhaps the air preparations, are entirely defensive.

Th point that must always be remembered, however, is that neither the Chinese nor the North Vietnamese have reached the moment of truth. They have always assumed that they would win in South Viet Nam. What they will do when faced, instead, with the prospect of defeat in South Viet Nam will always be somewhat uncertain until that moment comes.

Critic of Critic

Mrs. Johnson writes, "Orchestrally, in all phases, this was a pleasing concert."

Literally, in all phases, hers was an unpleasing criticism.

Your music critic is to be commended for trying to use Italian art images but surely Mr. Mueller's "adroit use of orchestral chiaroscuro" was most evident in the black and white dress of his musicians.

There are two types of critic. One reports well; the other writes well regardless of what he is reporting. It is unfortunate when he does neither.—Margaret Stapleton, 4082 Borden.

Pearson's Duty Is Clear; He Must Face the House

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—In the law they call it a hung jury, when 12 good men and true are unable to make up their minds whether to acquit or convict. Then the judge discharges the jury, another jury is empanelled, and the trial starts all over again.

Waring

When the jury is the entire Canadian people, as on Monday, this course is not immediately available. It will only become available soon if the Pearson government fails to obtain and retain the confidence of the new Commons.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Pearson's constitutional responsibility as leader of the largest group in the House is clear. He and his ministers must remain in office and face Parliament. And there they must reconcile themselves, much more than they have done heretofore, to the compromises on policies and programs necessary for the effective operation of a minority government. They no longer have an election threat to use to club the opposition into line.

The people's unexpected refusal of Mr. Pearson's request for a parliamentary majority is a disaster for Mr. Pearson, for the government, and for the Liberal Party.

It would be facile to label it also a disaster for the country. But the people did it. They are the final arbiters of the kind of government they want, and obviously a Liberal majority was not what they wanted.

The voters put small store in Mr. Pearson's plea for a majority to strengthen his hand in negotiating with the provinces on tax sharing, medicare, and constitutional changes. What, then, do they put store in?

If the Liberals determine why they lost support in the Maritimes, why the Tories and Creditistes won 18 Quebec seats, why the New Democrats picked off seats in Ontario and Manitoba, why the Prairies stayed Conservative and why British Columbia was cool to the Grits they may find a clue as to the kind of government the people want. The next step would be to provide that kind of government.

Monday's vote greatly weakened the government's prestige and authority. True, there are two more Liberal MPs in the Commons. But gone is that pre-September buoyancy based on belief that an election would return a Grit majority.

Thus the time has passed for Mr. Pearson to try to govern as if he commanded a majority. Instead of testing the bold and challenging the daring, he must now accommodate himself to the fact that he is in no position to move any faster or in any other direction than public opinion and the opposition majority will countenance

The Liberals' deflation will have a salutary effect if it makes them more amenable to the true wishes of the people, which in large measure did not favor the new flag, and do not favor the compulsory aspect of welfare statism.

Mr. Pearson will be appalled by the increased difficulty, in his new political circumstances, of steering any meaningful Liberal course between the Tory Scylla and the Charybdis of the splinter parties. But that is his assignment from the people. If he rebels, then John Diefenbaker is all too eager to give the job and the country another whirl, 1960 style.

But that isn't what the people want either. And if Mike Pearson thinks he's between Homer's six-headed monster and the whirlpool, there are a lot of voters who felt the same way last Monday.

The 'New' Quebec's Members in Ottawa

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Correspondent

QUEBEC CITY—Quebec has let the federal Liberals hold its reins, but more as a hitching post than as a driver.

The party is in the odd position of having cashed in on public apathy in a province that is tingling with political enthusiasm.

In a province in which a whole people is remaking its patterns of life, in which it seems there is everything to be done, and done soon, it is to Quebec City, not to Ottawa, that most eyes turn for leadership.

McDowell

All Quebec wants from Ottawa is a little comprehension and flexibility. The Liberals did seem to possess at least these two virtues.

One of Three

This was one of the three elements of such strength as the Liberals had. The other two were an ill-matched pair: The high ideals of its "new guard" and the traditional machine politics that is the legacy of its waning "old guard".

The pains and strains of the federal Liberal party in Quebec arise from the untenable position in which it stands: Straddling the "quiet revolution", one foot in the new Quebec and one in the old.

The provincial party is in no such predicament. It may still have a few members whose political habits were formed in the old days. But its leading spirits, Eric Kierans, Rene Levesque, Paul Gerin - Lajoie, Pierre Laporte, are all implacable reformers. They do not believe in letting patronage and corruption wither slowly away. They believe in rooting them out.

Provincially Quebec has leapt from a low standard of moral integrity in government to an exceptionally high one.

As it happened, it was the replacement of the Union Nationale by a Liberal government that brought about this change. But it was not basically a party matter.

There had been corrupt Liberal governments before Maurice Duplessis gained power for the Union Nationale. Mr. Duplessis, in fact, was elected as a reformer.

An Instrument

What happened was that the reform-minded elements in Quebec turned to the Liberal party as an instrument which could be used to gain power and bring about the reforms they thought necessary.

They were reformers first, not Liberals. Rene Levesque, for example, one of the most vigorous of them, is by no means a party man.

Within the federal party in Quebec there is also a strong proportion of reform-minded men. But most of them are strong party men too, eager for reforms, as long as the reforms don't hurt the party.

Those who have pressed for reforms at any price—Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve is the leading example— have been regarded as difficult, with a worrisome touch of the maverick about them.

Now there are three new mavericks: Pierre-Elliot Trudeau, Jean Marchand and Gerard Pelletier. None of these three is a party man. All three were in the past much closer to the NDP than to the Liberals. All three have been severe critics of the old Liberal machine.

All three made it quite clear during the campaign that they saw the Liberal party, not as an end in itself, but as an instrument. It is an instrument on which they are bound to have strong leverage.

Helped Party

Recruiting three men of such high and recognized calibre helped the party considerably in the province. Losing them would be a severe blow to Liberal prestige—and all three are men who would be prepared to leave the party rather than sacrifice their goals and principles.

For these three men, going to Ottawa will be an attempt to carry the spirit of the new Quebec, or of the Quebec that is renewing itself, into federal politics.

They see reform within the party as one of their main goals.

The other, which is their fundamental aim in entering federal politics, is to give Quebec the same positive posture toward the federal government that it now has toward its own government.

They argue that, in the past, Quebec's representatives in Ottawa have been on the defensive, trying to veto measures that seemed to threaten provincial autonomy, trying to extract such token concessions as bilingual stamps and cheques.

Now, according to Mr. Trudeau, Mr. Marchand and Mr. Pelletier, what Quebec needs in Ottawa is not a foot on the brake, but a hand on the steering wheel, and, indeed, a foot on the accelerator.

They say that Quebec cannot pronounce federalism a failure until it has made a positive effort to make it a success. This is the effort they have promised to make.

They are most emphatically not, however, in favor of strengthening the federal government at the expense of the province. They are for a strong province, with a high degree of autonomy. But they believe the federal government must have a hand in leading them.

The three new recruits will be far from the most tractable members their party has had. But what they have to offer is a goal that could give their party some positive sense of direction in Quebec and make it something more dynamic than a mere hitching post for idle reins.

BEN SMILLIE WAS RIGHT ABOUT BILLY GRAHAM

An Editorial
In The United Church Observer

When we read Chaplain Ben Smillie's manuscript, "Let's Stop Backing Billy Graham" some months ago, we were irritated by his charge that Graham couldn't be pinned down on whether he was a literalist or not.

While we agreed with much of the Smillie piece, we couldn't accept the claim that Graham rejected all allegorical interpretations of the Bible, and that his group encouraged Biblical ignorance and that they "contradicted everything we are trying to do in the New Curriculum" (of the United Church of Canada).

We did feel that the article should be published. Not because we agreed with all of it, but because Mr. Smillie is an able man dedicated to his ministry among college students. We felt his opinions should be known and that some of them—the ones we disagreed with, of course—should be taken apart. So we pointed out in the Editor's Observations column that we knew Graham was not a literalist.

Before writing these Observations we asked Dr. Graham bluntly about it, and reported that he replied "with his usual candor" and promised that his new book, World Aflame, would set forth his own theological position clearly.

Well, we've read his book, and had another exchange of letters with Billy Graham. Now we have to acknowledge we were wrong. He is a literalist; and he waffles, too.

We don't like to admit this, not so much because we dislike being wrong, but we are deeply disappointed in Billy Graham.

For many years we have had our reservations about the Graham organization, but we respected the man.

We believe it is dishonest for Graham to publish under his name a syndicated column written by another man. But we thought maybe that was a minor matter.

On several occasions during the past decade we have urged United Church support of Graham and his missions over the official opposition or neutrality of the United Church. About 10 years ago we did criticize him in a long editorial for his methods, his literalism and his failure to witness on the race front. But after meeting and talking with Graham at length, we were completely disarmed by his obvious sincerity, by the apparent breadth of his reading and the depth of his thinking. We have continued to feel the same way about him ever since — until now.

Evasiveness

For when his new book came out we were appalled, as most ministers of the United Church must be. But we have been more appalled by his evasiveness since.

In September, the church editor of The Toronto Star picked up The Observer story and editorial observations and phoned Dr. Graham at Montreal. He was ill at the time, but his close associate, Dr. W. Stanley Mooneyham, told The Star:

"Billy Graham accepts unquestionably the historical veracity of the Old Testament. He would reject the allegorical interpretation of the story of Jonah.

"Early in his ministry Mr. Graham came to a point where he began to have doubts about the inspiration of some parts of the scriptures. His results—in decisions for Christ — began to drop.

"Then he decided, 'From this point on I am going to accept every bit of the Bible as inspired.' From this decision came a new power in his preaching."

Confirmation

We immediately sent The Star clippings and the copies of The Observer that carried the Smillie article and letters that followed to Dr. Graham, saying, "We very earnestly beg you to confirm or repudiate what Dr. Mooneyham has said."

To this Dr. Graham replied. Again he ignored our direct questions:

"It would be impossible, in this brief letter, for me to outline my own various viewpoints. Some portions of the scripture are to be taken literally; in other portions of the scripture the language is self-evident to be figurative. Sometimes it is rather difficult to decide which is figurative and which is literal. For example, in the story that Jesus told about the poor man going to Abraham's bosom, I do not believe that the poor man literally went down into Abraham's chest cavity. Jesus was using figurative language."

Many good Christians have a simple understanding of the Bible. Those who have not had the advantage of long study may be better Christians than many who have. But when they interpret the Bible literally they miss so much.

BILLY GRAHAM
. . . still waffling

But Billy Graham isn't in that class. He has had great advantages. He knew 10 years ago what the Bible was all about and he did not interpret it literally then.

Apparently he has retreated into the literalism of his childhood—he gets more converts that way. More money, too! And he scolds the church for commenting on social issues "having to do with disarmament, federal aid to education, birth control, the United Nations." He says that this makes the membership "restive and dissatisfied. Some refuse to give any more money to the church."

Dr. Graham in his letter assures us:

"Within the United Church of Canada you have all shades of theological opinion. No editor could hope to please all areas of theological thought and social concern."

Not Hoped For

Well let's be frank about it. To please everybody is something this paper never hopes to do.

What we always do hope for from another minister is a non-waffling answer to a direct question.

So we are afraid we will have to give it up. We are reminded of Mr. Smillie's charge, "such verbal footwork and ambiguity serves the Graham people well for it leaves them safe in the vagueness of semantics."

It is difficult for us to believe that the man who talked to us with such candor and sincerity about his personal faith and doubts could possibly write those lines about Abraham's chest cavity.

A High-Spirited Princess Had Fun During Victoria Visit

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The current visit of Princess Margaret and her husband, Lord Snowdon, to the United States, brings back memories of four days in in July, 1958, when the sister of Queen Elizabeth was in Victoria.

Forbes

It was British Columbia's hundredth birthday year and the Princess had come to the province to help us celebrate.

There were many official functions on the program. Security arrangements, well rehearsed for these events, depended on split-second timing and the supposition that the royal party would adhere to the schedule arranged.

On occasions however, timing went askew. Then the young Princess was able to evade her guards and, for a few moments at least, to do as she wished.

This happened the day she was welcomed officially at city hall and later at the legislative buildings.

That morning everything seemed to run ahead of schedule. The Princess was received and welcomed in both places and was ready at least 15 minutes ahead of time to proceed to the legislative chamber where government members and their wives were to be presented.

Guards were already at their posts on stairs and along corridors in the buildings where the Princess would walk. With 15 minutes free time however, royal perogative decided on a visit to the provincial museum.

The doors had been closed to allow staff to see the welcoming ceremony held in front of the main entrance. There was no one on duty in the museum wing and no one on guard.

A hurried call went out for someone to open the door and escort the Princess through the rooms. Officials of the RCMP and the provincial police scrambled to reshuffle security arrangements.

When Princess Margaret did enter the legislative chamber, there was a twinkle of mischief in her wide blue eyes and a tiny lilt to her walk that left you with the feeling that she knew exactly what had gone on behind the scenes during that extra 15 minutes.

There was the night, too, when the high-spirited young Princess and a few of her entourage, played hide-and-seek with press and public.

At the time, Government House was being maintained in the Empress Hotel, while a new mansion was erected in the Rockland Avenue grounds, to replace the one destroyed by fire.

Word got around early one evening that the Princess was going to leave the hotel. Three official cars were parked by the public entrance on Humbolt Street with drivers ready to go. Everyone gathered to wait hopefully for a glimpse of the royal visitor.

Shortly before 10 faces could be seen looking down from the suite of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Mackenzie Ross and Mrs. Ross, as though a check was being made on whether the cars were ready.

A few minutes later the drivers switched on their lights, gunned their motors and zipped ahead to a small service door, some yards east of Humbolt. The Princess and her party skipped out the door and into the cars.

Photographers scrambled. People ran. All they saw was the tail lights of the cars as they cut across Douglas and up the hill toward Burdett.

It was a hot summer night, with a moon and no wind. The party returned to the hotel about midnight, after a late supper on the beach at Smuggler's Cove on Ten Mile Point. This was the special request of the Princess, who wished to enjoy a picnic in moonlight and by the sea.

These were some of the things that created the human touch during the visit of Priness Margaret in 1958. Now, seven years later, it will still be the same sort of charm that endears her to the people of the United States.

French Still Hold Czarist Securities

PARIS — Hope springs eternal in the human breast, and it is nowhere more unquenchable than in the hearts of French holders of Czarist bonds.

The Bolshevik government repudiated these pre-First World War securities after the revolution, and no Soviet government since has shown any more disposition to redeem them than the United States government displays for the redemption of the railroad bonds issued by the Confederated states. But the French holder of Russian bonds still keep them stashed away in the strong box or under the mattress, just in case.

The chief czarist Russian issue went up 75 per cent on the Paris Bourse last week, when French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville took off to visit the Soviet Union. Seventy-five per cent of one dollar—the highest quotation, with no takers before this—only gets you up to $1.75 for a $1,000 bond, but it would still make a lot of money if Moscow should ever show enthusiasm for recovering this high-quality paper. It is believed that about $4 billion worth of it (at face value) is kicking around in France.

How to Cook An Elephant

By FREDERICK BUTHEIM
The Washington Post

LUSAKA, Zambia — When the butchers of Zambia first began offering hippo, elephant and buffalo meat this fall there was singular rejoicing.

This first product of the government's "game cropping" program offered more than a valuable supplement to a protein-short diet. It provided the new urban Africans with an exciting tangible and sentimental link to their fast-receding tribal origins.

Deliberately balancing the animal population of extensive game parks is no new idea. It both prevents overgrazing and maintains a natural balance among the species. Sending the meat to market was a natural further step. But the enthusiasm with which the game would be received does not seem to have been anticipated.

No one who has seen "boy's meat"—that mes of bones, fat and a little stringy meat that is bought by the poor—could underestimate the popularity of any kind of meat at low prices. Zambians today still live largely on "mealie-meal," even in towns where one-third of the population is found.

Outside my office window, laborers are digging drainage trenches. Every morning a fire is built in the shelter of a tree stump, and water is boiled in a large tin. Mealie-meal is added by the handful until what looks like cream of wheat results. A heaping plateful of this is the midday meal.

This cormeal is like oats in Scotland, potatoes in northern Europe, or rice in Asia. It is a sustaining, but hardly a strengthening diet, and it is as monotonous as the surrounding bush itself. Eked out with bits of meat, dried fish and "garnish" (spinach, cabbage and other greens) it supports the population.

In the towns mealie-meal is now bought in packages instead of being pounded by hand as in the tribal village. But garnish is often still collected in the bush, and in the suburbs one becomes accustomed to returning parties of foraging Zambians, women and children, carrying on their heads assorted greens—often stuffed into the ubiquitous flight bags supplied by jet airlines.

The excitement that greeted the new kinds of meat focused on the prime domestic question: What to do with it. How do you cook an elephant?

Several columns of advice have been offered in the daily press, liberally supplemented by reader contributions. The most exotic was a recipe from Larousse Gastronomique. After noting that the feet and trunk of an elephant are regarded as delicacies—if a bit spongy—it continued:

"Take one or more feet of young elephant, skin them and bone them after soaking in warm water for four hours. Cut them into four pieces lengthwise and once across. Parboil for 15 minutes. Dip in fresh water and dry with a cloth.

"On the bottom of a heavy pot with a tight lid, put two slices of Bayonne ham, then your pieces of elephant foot, then four onions, a head of garlic, some Indian aromatic spices, half a bottle of Madiera and three ladlefuls of bouillon.

"Cover tightly and simmer for 10 hours. Remove the fat, add one glass of port and 50 little green pimentos blanched in boiling water to preserve their color. The sauce should be well flavored and very sharp."

But these observations of M. Duglerez of the House of Rothschild from the royal kitchens of Cochin China, much as they titillate the imaginations of the African elite, mean nothing to the people in general. Their approach to cooking elephant is in a different realm of fantasy.

After a day in the new Chobe Game Park in Bechuanaland Protectorate, we recrossed the Zambesi on a pontoon ferry. Here several hundred feet of wire fence were festooned with strips of meat drying in the sun. Elephant meat—the biltong of African history. Our driver bought two pounds of it—at 30 cents a pound.

The next morning I inquired how he had cooked it and how his family had enjoyed this treat. They liked it fine. They curried it.

So the new supply of game is finding its way to Zambian tables. Hippo tastes like pork. Buffalo is roasted and tastes like beef. The best suggestion about elephant is to treat it as chewing gum.

Even if open air cooking survives in urban housing communities, the second and third generation town dwellers, of whom there are many, are putting tribal ways behind them. When game appears on hte table, it will be prepared in new ways.

Soviets Launch Rocket For Second Venus Probe

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union launched an unmanned space station toward Venus today and said it should reach the planet around the end of February.

It was the second announced Venus probe by the Russians and about 50-per-cent heavier than Venus 1, which missed the planet by more than 100,000 miles in February, 1961.

Tass, the official Soviet News Agency which announced the launch, said Venus-2 is moving on a course "close to the prescribed one."

Tass said equipment aboard the space station was functioning normally.

The satellite is the second and possibly the third Soviet attempt to probe Venus, 26,000,000 miles from earth.

Tass said Venus-2 weighs 2,118 pounds.

Venus 1 missed the planet by 111,000 miles in February, 1961.

U.S. scientists said the Soviet spacecraft Zond 1, launched April 2, apparently was intended to be a Venus probe although the Russians never announced it as such.

The U.S. Mariner II passed Venus Dec. 14, 1962, at a distance of 21,648 miles after gathering data continuously during its 180,000,000 - mile journey.

TWO CONSERVATIVE SEATS VULNERABLE

Liberals Look to Service Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — Results of the armed services vote, expected to be announced Saturday, could turn some election-night victories into defeats.

The Liberals, with 129 seats on the basis of civilian voting, hope to pick up two more in the traditionally-Liberal military voting.

This would leave the government only three seats short of a clear majority in the 265-seat Commons. (The Speaker, always a government MP, does not vote except to break ties.)

There are four constituencies where the MP-elect has a cushion of less than 100 votes and is highly vulnerable to service-vote inroads. Two of these ridings went Conservative and two Liberal in Monday's election.

Spot checks of Monday's results in polling stations on or near defence establishments across Canada showed the Liberals consistently ahead, even in ridings that elected Conservatives.

GIVE LIBERALS EDGE

In most provinces civilian polls at military bases gave the Liberals edges of 2 to 1 and 3 to 1.

The Liberals took 70.5 per cent of the total service vote in 1963, compared with 41.7 per cent of the civilian vote. They have dominated service polls since 1940.

The number of eligible service voters dropped by nearly 20,000 in this election and the Liberals' share of the civilian vote slipped to 40 per cent.

Commons standings on the basis of civilian votes are Liberals 129, Conservatives 99, New Democrats 21, Creditistes 9, Social Credit 5, independent 1, Independent-Conservative 1.

The most vulnerable MP-elect is Conservative Paul Trepanier, mayor of Granby, nursing a nine-vote margin in Shefford over Creditiste Gilbert Rondeau and a 13-vote edge over Liberal Louis Neveu.

If the results of the 1963 service vote are duplicated, Mr. Neveu will topple Mr. Trepanier. In that election, Shefford servicemen gave 115 votes to the Liberal candidate, 12 to the Conservative, 26 to Mr. Rondeau and two to the New Democrat.

An official count will be held in Shefford Monday to remove the possibility of error. After that, any candidate has four days in which to ask for a judicial recount.

The second-closest race saw Conservative D. Hugh Gillis, head of the communications department at Boston University, unseat Liberal John B. Stewart in Antigonish-Guysborough by 19 votes. The 1963 service vote in the Nova Scotia riding was Liberal 161, Conservative 49.

Mr. Stewart, a former philosophy professor, was parliamentary secretary to State Secretary Lamontagne in the last House.

The two Liberal MPs-elect in danger are George E. Nixon, a 25-year Commons veteran, and Jack Roxburgh, a blunt-spoken tobacco grower who regaled the last House with his blasts at Health Minister Judy LaMarsh's anti-smoking program.

HAS 23-VOTE LEAD

Mr. Nixon has a lead of 23 votes over Conservative Russ Ramsay in Algoma West. In the 1963 service vote he received 196 votes compared with 35 for his Conservative opponent.

Mr. Roxburgh won by 46 votes more than Conservative J. Evans Knowles in Norfolk, where he took the last service vote 120 to 37 for his Conservative opponent.

Apart from these four close races, upsets conceivably could occur Saturday in 10 other ridings where the winning margin was under 500, but these are remote possibilities.

The military vote toppled two election-night winners in 1962 and 1963 and one in 1957 and 1958.

In service voting conducted from Nov. 1 to 6 in Canada and around the world, there were 122,614 eligible voters, compared with 141,210 two years ago. Between 80,000 and 85,000 were expected to exercise their franchise.

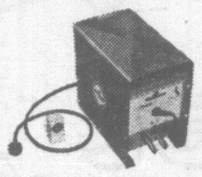

Turnout is lower in the service vote because of a long series of formalities required by law to ensure secrecy.

ON REGIONAL HOSPITAL QUESTION

Special Council Meet Called

Victoria city council will hold a special meeting next week to discuss implications of participating in regional services.

The mayor and aldermen will decide whether to hold referenda next month that will enable the ratepayers to opt out of regional district functions.

If there is no referendum the city will be included in joint services by default.

The most vital decision to be made is whether the city should be committed indefinitely to regional hospital construction costs through annual tax assessment.

By terms of letters patent, the first four functions of regional services become effective within 60 days of an announcement made Oct. 8 by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell

10 DAYS' NOTICE

The electors must have 10 days' notice of a referendum, but meanwhile a bylaw must be passed, requiring two meetings of council.

Mayor R. B. Wilson suggested a special meeting before Thursday to enable first reading of the bylaw to be presented on Thursday.

Hospital capital costs, an overall sewer plan, firecracker ban and regional parks are the four functions specified by Mr. Campbell. There is general agreement on all but hospitals as part of regional administration.

Council left it up to Victoria Sports Council centennial stadium committee to select the council chamber or intermunicipal-unitversity stadium committee to hear its protests about a stadium for University of Victoria.

Sports council president Pat Frumento complained about the decision of Greater Victoria municipalities to give their joint centennial stadium project to Uvic as a gift, retaining the right to community use of the facilities.

The committee asked for a hearing by council, to offer its view of the matter from a "working level."

Ald. M. H. Mooney said the group's request should be granted, and Mayor Wilson suggested the sports representatives themselves could choose when they want to be heard.

Mayor Wilson said appointing an Edmonton lawyer as chief central court prosecutor was an error without canvassing the local legal fraternity.

"I think it would have been more correct if we had circulated the local bar association, but I doubt if the result would have been much different," the mayor said.

PROTEST APPOINTMENT

He spoke in response to a letter from Victoria Bar Association protesting the appointment of James Anderson, QC, without the position being advertised locally.

The mayor recalled there had been no local interest in the job of prosecutor about two years ago, when the post was given to a Burnaby man, Peter Birkett.

Solicitor T. P. O'Grady noted that the bar had done exactly the same as the city—in picking a man solely on his qualifications—by recommending a Saskatchewan lawyer as prosecutor about three years ago.

Ald. Michael Griffin lost a bid to make an architect chiefly responsible for reconstruction of Royal Athletic Park. Council adopted a recommendation by city manager Dennis Young that an engineer be in charge of the project, with the design aspects to be handled by an architect.

BORROW $450,000

Aldermen approved steps for borrowing about $450,000 against the McPherson estate. This will be added to $68,000 insurance money for the $516,500 job. Two small grandstands will be built and playing areas relocated.

Frozen Body Believed Lost Hunter

CALGARY (CP)—A body believed to be that of a Calgary hunter missing since Monday was found today in a ravine several miles east of High River, 25 miles south of Calgary.

Searchers said it appeared the man had frozen to death. The body was found in an area near where Frank Strathearn, 35, was hunting with a companion when they became separated.

The companion, Charles Grenek, 60, of Okotoks, reported his friend missing when he failed to show up at a prearranged meeting point.

The discovery ended an intensive search by about 20 civilian and RCMP searchers, aided by a tracking dog and helicopter.

Blizzard-like conditions prevailed in southern Alberta today and overnight temperatures dipped to 15 degrees.

OUTLAW REGIME, CLAIMS NIGER

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Amadou Hassane of Niger assailed Communist China Thursday as an outlaw regime, seeking to spread subversion and revolution throughout the continent of Africa.

He spoke during the continuing debate in the General Assembly on the admission of Peking regime to the United Nations.

'Helmets Saving Lives'

Motor Vehicles Superintendent Ray Hadfield says there are indications that safety helmets are saving motorbike riders from injuries and deaths in some accidents.

There is no statistical method of proving this but it is the view of informed observers.

"We've been told by medical people who have become closely involved in this sphere that, in their opinion, there have been some critical injuries averted and perhaps some lives saved by the helmet," he says.

Safety helmets became compulsory gear July 1 for persons on motorcycles and scooters under a controversial regulation in B.C.

But the rate of deaths and injuries has risen faster than the rapid expansion of bikes on the roads.

Statistics show fatalities among motorcycle and scooter riders rose 800 per cent, from two to 18, in the first eight months of this year compared with the corresponding period in 1964.

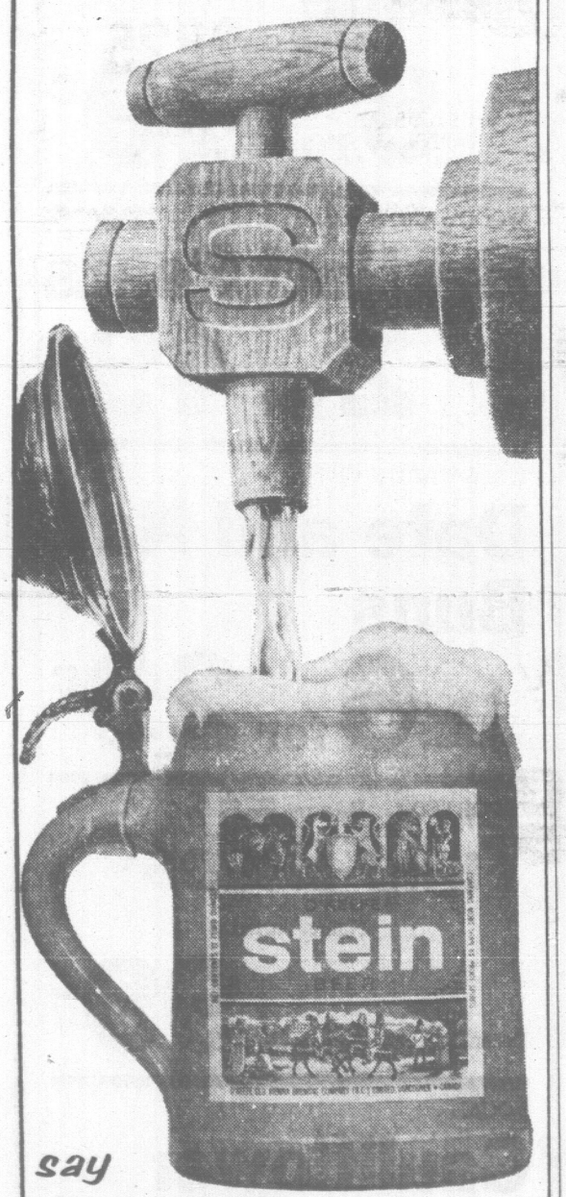

In the same period, injuries rose from 289 to 570 for a percentage increase of 97.

The number of motorcycle and scooter registrations rose from 7,936 to 12,647, an increase of 60 per cent, during the same period.

NO DRASTIC MEASURES LIKELY

Second Economic Report Ready by End of Year

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The new Liberal minority, facing tough economic problems, will have the benefit of the guidance of the second report of the Economic Council of Canada.

Dr. John J. Deutsch, chairman of the government appointed board said it appeared that it would be completed by the end of the year.

The board's first report was presented Jan. 15, 1965.

Facing some tough and politically unpopular economic decisions the government will obviously be anxious to learn just what advice the board has to offer in its second report.

The council in its first report said the minimum goals of economic development to 1970 "are not always compatible and their simultaneous achievement will not occur automatically or easily. Their attainment means difficult and exacting tasks for Canadians."

BASIC GOALS

Five basic goals outlined by the council were full employment defined as 3 per cent unemployment; a high rate of economic growth; reasonable price stability, and equitable distribution of rising incomes with the average real income per person showing an advance of 3.4 per cent each year.

Underlying the council projections was the fact that Canada could have an unemployment rate of nine per cent, by 1970 if the economy fails to meet these minimum goals. This possibility is due to the early postwar baby boom.

During the election campaign Prime Minister Pearson warned that inflation could destroy Canada's current prosperity unless it was carefully watched. He appealed for a majority government so that it could take bold and decisive action when and if necessary to prevent the current economic boom gaining too much momentum and spiralling into a severe inflation.

Mr. Pearson did not get the solid majority he wanted. So far he just has a minority and even if the soldier vote is heavily in favor of the Liberals he could just have the slimmest majority, including the support of one of the independents.

ARGUE LATER

This means that the government will have to act to curb the inflationary pressures and argue later for the support of whatever measures it takes in Parliament. It could run into difficulties in Parliament without a solid majority, but it will have to take that risk.

Meantime no drastic measures are anticipated immediately. There has been already some action taken by the government when last August it cut back on government construction works. It may go further along that line.

There was considerable talk during the campaign of tight money being introduced immediately after the election. But economists say that Canada already has a tight money situation.

SHORT TERM LOANS

After the collapse of the Atlantic Acceptance Corporation finance company there was a general tightening up in the availability of short term money. As a result short term money has become difficult to obtain. The money supply has been expanding but the demand for money has increased rapidly.

Mr. Pearson pointed out in the last week of the campaign that the money supply in Canada has gone up 13 per cent in the past 12 months compared to eight per cent in the United States. He promised that a Liberal government would do everything necessary to keep the economy strong and expanding.

Three in B.C. Family Killed by Collision

RIVIERE - OUELLE, Que. (CP)—Three members of a British Columbia family were killed Thursday and seven persons were injured in the head-on collision of two cars on the Trans-Canada Highway near the village of Riviere-Ouelle, 80 miles northeast of Quebec City.

Dead are Mrs. Ralph MacPhail, 43, of Chilliwack, B.C., and two of her children—Kerwin, 2, and Kelly, 16 months.

Police said the Chilliwack couple and their seven children were headed for New Glasgow, N.S., where Mr. MacPhail hoped to find work.

He and the five surviving children suffered minor injuries, as did the driver of the other car, Yvan Giguere, 22, of Quebec, who was travelling alone.

Police said the collision took place on a curve. The highway was extremely slippery, one of the drivers lost control and the vehicles met head-on.

Mrs. MacPhail was dead on arrival at a Quebec City hospital. Kelly died at the scene of the crash and Kerwin died in hospital at La Pocatiere, Que., where the injured were taken.

Police said the MacPhails were natives of Valleyview, Alta., and the bodies probably will be sent there.

Justice Man Dies at 49

HULL, Que. (CP)—John D. D. Affleck of Ottawa, 49, assistant deputy minister of justice since 1960, died of a heart attack here Thursday night.

Mr. Affleck was born in Lanark Village, Ont., and graduated from the University of Toronto in 1938 and later from Toronto's Osgoode Law School.

B.C. Tel Links to Be Studied

VANCOUVER (CP) — C. W. Brazier, counsel for the province of B.C., set for the Board of Transport Commissioners Wednesday several tasks which he said must be carried out to assure that the interests of B.C. Telephone Co. subscribers are protected.

He detailed them in presenting argument before the Board during the third week of the Board's public review of the telephone company.

The public hearings adjourned Wednesday afternoon until Friday at 9 a.m. They are expected to be concluded by noon Friday.

Among the tasks Mr. Brazier contended the Board should carry out is an examination of the profits of certain companies related to B.C. Tel through the General Telephone System to determine whether the prices B.C. Tel pays for equipment and services from these companies are reasonable.

He said examination of the financial statements of these supply companies is essential.

He suggested that while he has seen nothing to indicate that the B.C. Tel payments to these related companies are excessive, the Board cannot fully satisfy itself on this point without determining whether the related companies are earning excessive profits on the business they do with B.C. Tel.

'Slow' Wheat Shipments Anger Chief

WINNIPEG (CP)—W. C. McNamara, chief commissioner of the Canadian Wheat Board, has complained to Canadian Pacific Railway President R. A. Emerson about a serious reduction in wheat deliveries to Vancouver in the last week.

Mr. Emerson, in a telephone interview from Montreal, confirmed he had received a telegram from Mr. McNamara which "made the allegation that there has recently been a reduction both in Vancouver unloadings and in cars in transit to Vancouver.

Mr. Emerson said he had sent the telegram on to his vice-president, now at the west coast, and was awaiting a report.

In Vancouver, CPR vice-president I. D. Sinclair said the wheat board had made no allegation.

SAME FIGURES

"There are some figures which they have brought to our attention," he said. "I have no comment at this time."

Grain officials here said the wheat board was disturbed about the Vancouver situation. They said some ships were being loaded with insufficient wheat and others were waiting but there was no wheat to put in them.

The officials said the CPR and Canadian National Railways had succeeded in building up Vancouver wheat stocks after a strike at Vancouver grain handling outlets several weeks ago but as far as the CPR was concerned, the situation had seriously deteriorated in the last week.

Firm Makes Offer In Oil Walkout

MOOSE JAW (CP)—Proposals aimed at settlement of the oil workers' strike at the British American Oil Co. Ltd. oil refinery here were presented Thursday.

A company spokesman said the company offered the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union here a two-year contract which would provide an increase of 10 cents an hour from the date of signing and an additional 15 cents an hour one year later.

There was no immediate comment from union officials of the proposals offered at a company-union meeting.

Company officials said the offer which amounts to 25 cents over a 24-month period is comparable to recent settlement accepted by the OCAW in the United States oil industry, which amounted to about 15 cents an hour over 14 months.

'HE WAS RUNNING GOOD'—SHOE . . .

. . . HAMMOND CRITICIZES RIDE

Canada's George Royal Fourth Behind 'Oo-La-La' Pair

LAUREL, Md. (CP) — Diatome, ranked among France's top three-year-olds, swept past the favored odds, which had rated American and Canadian entries first and second respectively, to win the $150,000 Washington International Thursday.

Carvin, France's other entry in the 1½-mile turf classic, provided the biggest surprise by coming in second as a 50-to-1 longshot.

The United States' favored Roman Brother finished third, followed by Canada's George Royal.

George Royal's effort was the best by a Canadian horse in four International tries.

George Royal, owned by Ernie Hammond of Vancouver and Robert Hall of Aldergrove, B.C., and ridden by Willie Shoemaker, the richest jockey in racing history, had been quoted at 3-to-1 odds, compared with 7-to-5 on Roman Brother and 9-to-2 on Diatome.

George Royal "ran a good race," Shoemaker said.

The four-year-old bay pushed his earnings up another $15,000 to $215,000 with his effort and came from well back to do it.

"We finished strong," said Shoemaker. "He was running good but we weren't gaining on the horses in front."

Carrying the silks of Baron Guy de Rothschild and ridden by 30-year-old Jean Deforge, Diatome stuck his nose in front in the final strides to edge Carvin.

Carvin, owned by Jean Boutiller and ridden by Jean-Claude Desaint, was another 1¼ lengths in front of Roman Brother, carrying the hopes of Lou Wolfson's Harbor View Stable. He was ridden by Braulio Baeza.

Hail to All, the other American entry, followed George Royal, with Argentina's Berenjenal sixth and England's Super Sam bringing up the rear.

Diatome paid $11.60, $6.60 and $4.00; Carvin, one of the last horses to be invited to the International, returned $29.20 and $7.80. Roman Brother paid $3.20.

Shoemaker had been named to ride George Royal for the first time after Johnny Longden, the all-time riding champion with more than 6,000 winners, who was raised in Taber, Alta., had been set down for 10 days on the west coast.

Asked whether his big bay might have fared better on a softer track, Shoemaker replied:

"I don't know. Nobody knows."

However, Hall had said Wednesday that "a softer track would certainly help, although he's won before on a hard track."

Said Hammond after the race, "We certainly aren't disappointed. We were only beaten by a length and a half.

"Unfortunately, we were bumped by the Argentine horse going around the last turn and that threw him out a little bit.

"But that's racing luck."

Deforge, riding in his third International, never had Diatome far off the pace as Roman Brother and Super Sam set the pace for the greater part of the race on the hard-baked grass course.

Roman Brother broke in front and was quickly joined by Super Sam, ridden by Jimmy Lindley. After one-half mile, the English three-year-old edged ahead but never was able to open up daylight. Meantime, the powerfully built Diatome was either third or fourth.

This was the best effort by Canada in the 14 years of the International. The others, all entered by Max Bell of Calgary, were: Indian Hemp, seventh of seven entries in 1952; Prefect II, 11th of 13 in 1955; Hindu Wand, ninth of 10 in 1956; and Lebon M.L., 12th of 13 in 1962.

Longden rode them all.

The odds on George Royal had shortened overnight to 3-to-1 from 6-to-1 apparently with the help of Shoemaker's reputation.

Hammond threw in a touch of criticism about Shoemaker's ride.

"Shoemaker had never ridden George Royal before and he let the horse get a little bit too far behind. We told him to keep on the pace. Those European horses run that way all the time and Diatome is a finishing horse."

Hammond said George Royal will be sent back to Santa Anita, Calif., in a day or two to rest up for more racing.

Snow, Cold Forecast For Opening Clash

KENNY PLOEN

CALGARY (CP)—Weather conditions may force Calgary Stampeders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers to play a slogging defensive match in the first game of the Western Football Conference best-of-three final Saturday, despite their good offensive records.

Driving snow continued to sweep Calgary Thursday and forecasts called for much the same type of weather today. Temperatures were to hit the five-degree mark.

The Stampeders, under freshman coach Jerry Williams, are looking for their first WFC championship and Grey Cup since 1949.

Bud Grant's Bombers are after their first WFC title and Grey Cup since 1962, earning the chance by eliminating Saskatchewan Roughriders in the WFC semi-finals.

Men with shovels and snow-blowing machines have been removing snow from McMahon Stadium nearly all week. But the field, although not covered by a canvas, was in good condition.

At least eight inches of snow —some of it melted—has fallen since early Tuesday. The weather office predicts a "slight chance of snow" Saturday, with light winds and a game - time temperature of about five degrees.

SOLD OUT AGAIN

The game, to be televised nationally by CTV, marks the fifth straight sell - out here. Closed-circuit TV was to be set up at the Stampede Corral to accommodate other fans at $3 a head.

The second game of the series will be Nov. 17 in Winnipeg and a third, if necessary, in Calgary Nov. 20.

A scant 42 yards separate the two clubs in total offence piled up during 16 regular-season games. Winnipeg has the edge but the Stamps finished in first place and the Bombers second..

Eagle Day of Calgary completed 124 of 215 passes for 1,892 yards, while Winnipeg's Kenny Ploen was good on 124 of 213 tosses for 1,789 yards. Ploen had 15 touchdown passes, Day 12.

The Bombers blasted the Stamps 22-0 here Oct. 27 but Williams remains confident. When asked if the Stamps can beat the Bombers he replied "certainly."

Rangers Get A Better Lease

New York Rangers appear to have given up their fifth-place lease in the National Hockey League standings for a more choice property.

The Rangers extended their unbeaten streak to six games Thursday, holding Detroit Red Wings to a 3-3 tie.

That point and a single gained in a 2-2 draw with Boston Wednesday left the Rangers in third place with nine points. They trail Montreal Canadiens by three digits and are ahead of Toronto by the same margin.

In other Wednesday games, Montreal and Toronto tied 3-3 while Chicago was waxing Detroit 5-2.

Don Marshall, formerly of Montreal and who was a standout as a penalty killer during his Montreal days, paced the New York attack Thursday with a goal and an assist.

Bob Nevin, New York's leading scorer to date and formerly with Toronto, put the Rangers ahead at 1:04 of the first period when he banged in his own rebound past sprawled Detroit goalie Roger Crozier.

Defenceman Harry Howell gave New York a 2-0 lead at 13:46, just 15 seconds after Detroit defenceman Bill Gadsby was penalized for interference.

Paul Henderson put Detroit on the scoreboard with his fourth goal of the season with less than two minutes remaining in the first frame.

Marshall's goal at 7:23 of the second period climaxed New York's second successful power play of the night. The puck barely left the ice as Crozier and defencemen Warren Godfrey and Gadsby tried to cover up.

Detroit came back with ageless Gordie Howe scoring his fourth goal of the season with less than a minute left in the middle period.

Howe's goal was also his 599th during regular season play and climaxed a power play. Howe passed the puck from the back of the net to Andy Bathgate, then deflected Bathgate's shot into the lower left hand corner.

Bruce MacGregor scored the only goal of the third period to tie the score and also snap the Red Wings' two - game losing streak.

Bucks Turn Mighty Mites Loose Against Big Leafs

By ERNIE FEDORUK

PORTLAND—On the basis of poundage, Victoria Maple Leafs rate as one of the largest clubs in the Western Hockey League. But Portland Buckaroos figure goals—not muscles—win hockey games.

So it was Wednesday.

Four of Portland's little guys waxed the Victoria heavyweights 6-0 to prove that even big boys usually have to be at their best in order to beat good little guys.

The Leafs weren't at their best. They knew it, and no reminders will be required at Memorial Arena Saturday evening when the Bucks and the Leafs have "another go" in a continuing dispute for the league lead.

Thursday's victory, Portland's fifth in a row, brought the Bucks on even terms with the Leafs. It could be a temporary situation because the Portlanders have a date in Seattle tonight before moving on to Victoria for Saturday's game.

SCHMAUTZ STARTED IT

The mighty mites who manhandled the Leafs on Thursday were Art Jones, Dick Van Impe, Arnie Schmautz and Mike Donaldson.

Schmautz, one of pro hockey's smallest at five-seven and 135 pounds, started it off by scoring Portland's winning goal. It was Arnie's first of the season.

The five-ten Van Impe threw in three goals—his first three-goal outing in WHL company—and Jones, a healthier 5 10½, chipped in with one goal and an assist to raise to 20 points his league-leading count. Defenceman Jack Bionda scored Portland's sixth goal.

Donaldson, 5-8, was Portland's giant on defence. One of the smallest defencemen in pro hockey, he consistently wrecked Victoria threats with brilliant puck-blocking displays.

PLAYED IT COOL

After the fearless little foursome did its duty, goalkeeper Don Head stepped up to rub salt into the wounds they created. He did it with comparative ease, thanks to the play of Donaldson and rearguard mates Jim Hay and Connie Madigan, and an off-color Victoria shooting display.

Buckaroos stepped off to a 3-0 first-period lead, and then played it cool for the benefit of 9,691 fans. Once ahead, they played to protect the margin rather than pep up the pace in an attempt to get a fourth goal. That's why they got the fourth, and then the fifth. Also the sixth.

While the 6-0 score embarrassed the Leafs, it wasn't a true indication of play. Bionda's goal came on one of those long, weird bouncing shots from centre ice. And Victoria winger Gordie Redahl, with a defensive lapse, made a perfect pass to Van Impe for Portland's fourth goal.

Apart from Bionda's weirdo, all of Portland's goals resulted from Victoria mistakes rather than Buckaroo playmaking.

HAD GOOD CHANCES

At the other end, Lou Jankowski (twice) and Bob Barlow had excellent chances to wreck Head's shutout. Jankowski twice missed from point-blank range while Barlow's shot, with Head well-beaten on the play, was saved when the puck hit Hay's stick.

It is to their credit that the Victoria players acknowledge they got a bad game out of their systems. As winger Steve Witiuk put it:

"We had it coming. I think we were getting a bit too confident . . ."

ICE CHIPS: The loss snapped a seven-game unbeaten streak by the Leafs . . . The Victoria club record is nine . . . Victoria coach Frank Mario played rookie centre Dave Parenteau on two occasions . . . He showed good puck-handling ability . . . The game was No. 300 in league play for Victoria goalie Al Millar . . .

Jones scored his goal while defenceman Sandy Hucul was serving a Victoria penalty . . . After that, however, Leafs' penalty killers turned in solid efforts . . . In two successive penalties to Victoria, Buckaroos failed to get a shot on goal . . . After Saturday's game, Leafs will be idle until next Wednesday when Los Angeles Blades make their first appearance at Memorial Arena . . .

ROBINSON SAYS . . . HE'LL QUIT FOR GOOD

Sugar Ray's Dream Is Gone

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, five times the middleweight boxing champion, said today he is quitting the ring for good.

The 45-year-old veteran of 199 professional bouts announced his decision as an aftermath to Wednesday night's one-sided loss to Joey Archer, New York.

"I hate to go on too long campaigning for another chance," Robinson said. "I had high hopes of fighting for the championship again if I had beaten Archer. But I didn't win."

Thus, his dream of winning the championship for the sixth time has vanished in thin air after his game effort against the 27-year-old Archer.

Archer, winning his 48th of 49 fights, floored Robinson with a right cross to the head in the fourth round and the ex-champion took a count of nine.

"That blow was the one that lost the fight," said Sugar Ray's manager, George Gainsford.

"When I knocked Sugar Ray down I kind of expected him to stay on the floor," Archer said. "He surprised me when he got up."

A crowd of 9,023 at the Civic Arena paid $40,193 and got its money worth. The fans gave the fighters a standing ovation when the fight was over.

REVERSE VERDICT . . . . . OVER JAMES BAY

Georgians Get Their Revenge

Vancouver Georgians had to wait a year but Thursday they avenged a defeat by James Bay Athletic Association.

Defeated by the Oarsmen in the final round of last year's seven-a-side rugby tournament, Georgians reversed the verdict in the eighth annual tourney Thursday at Macdonald Park.

Bulwarked by the fine all-round play of Barry Stubbs, the Georgians "A" squad downed JBAA II 13-3 in the championship final of the 13-team tourney.

In the consolation final, Naval Technical School defeated Navy 13-11.

Stubbs, perhaps the day's outstanding player, saved the Georgians in the semifinal round. With his club trailing JBAA I 6-3 in the final minute, Stubbs dodged 25 yards for a try to tie the score and then added a conversion to give his club an 8-6 win.

JBAA II defeated Georgians "B" 16-0 in the other semi.

Gordon McKenzie got Georgians out in front in the final with a 65-yard run for a try and Stubbs booted the conversion to make it 5-0. Don Eckardt got three points back for JBAA on a try before halftime.

The Oarsmen, paced by Bob Coutts, Eckardt and Norm Dixon, threatened to go ahead early in the second half. However, Georgians held out and took control in the closing stages.

Mike Chambers finished off a fine backfield thrust for a try and Dave Howie dribbled the ball over the line for another Georgian score. Stubbs finished the scoring with a convert.

Blades Show Improvement

The play of Los Angeles Blades has perked up, and that may be the big reason the reformed Howie Young is still with that Western Hockey League club today.

The ripest rumor earlier this week was an impending three-way trade of defencemen between Los Angeles (with Young a prime suspect), Vancouver Canucks and Seattle Totems.

A trade was consumated Wednesday, but Young and the Blades weren't included. Vancouver sent Les Hunt to Seattle in exchange for Moe Mantha.

Thursday the Blades played as if they don't need player help. With Young a standout on defence, Los Angeles tripped the touring Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League, 6-4. It was Blades' second win in their last three outings. They managed only one victory in their first seven games.

JOHNSON SPARKLES

Centre Norm Johnson sparked Blades with a goal and three assists. Rookie Bobby Schmautz, Leo Labine and Brian Smith, with two, scored the others for Los Angeles. Irv Spencer, Val Fonteyne, Bert Marshall and Norm Beaudin replied for Hornets, who had bombed Los Angeles 10-2 in an interlocking match earlier this season.

Thursday's result squared accounts between the AHL and the WHL at six victories each.

Pittsburgh had sent the AHL ahead, 6-5, Wednesday night by blanking Bud Poile's Seals 4-0 at San Francisco.

Beaudin, Bob Wall, Claude Laforge and Andre Pronovost scored Hornets' goals.

Action tonight is strictly a WHL family affair. Portland visits Seattle and Vancouver is scheduled to play in San Francisco.

VIKING VIEWS

By MIKE WOODLEY

Priscilla Jacobs went to UBC to play in the Pacific Northwest College women's field hockey tournament last weekend but ended up having a holiday instead. Priscilla is the goalie for the Valkyries—the University of Victoria entry which swept through the tournament undefeated. In Uvic's four games, her mates allowed opponents few dangerous scoring chances. Miss Jacobs, however, earned her four shutouts by coming up with key saves when needed.

The Valkyries, led by the inspired performance of forward Suzanne Bradford, clobbered Oregon State University 6-0, and the University of Washington 3-0, Oregon 7-0, and B.C. 3-0, to capture top spot in the 22-team competition.

Miss Bradford and centre forward Pat Davie, both stickhandling aces, may be chosen for the Canadian National women's team, which is to tour New Zealand in the spring. Suzanne fired 10 goals, Pat counted six, Ann Batey had two and Vanessa Lodge scored a single.

According to five-year veteran and team captain Frances Nicholls, this championship squad is the strongest team ever produced by either Victoria College or the University of Victoria. Other members of the power-laden Valkyries who deserve honorable mention for play at UBC are Frances Gadsden, Carol Philips, Pat Mearns, Marg Hoek, Claudia Ferber, Joan Wenman, and Charlotte Roberts.

Valkyries will be in action again this weekend when they step from college competition to open women's team play in the Pacific Northwest Women's Field Hockey Conference at Lansdowne School. Eleven Canadian teams and four from across the line will be trying to stop our gals in this one.

HOMECOMING HAPPENINGS: Homecoming time is here again for Uvic students and alumni. As in the past sports will play a big part in marking this annual event. Eight o'clock Friday evening sees the kick-off of weekend activities when the hockey Vikings host UBC Thunderbirds at Joe Iannarelli's Esquimalt ice palace.

Charge d'affaires Iannarelli is predicting a stirring and entertaining hockey match. We're predicting a stirring and entertaining Viking victory.

Also at 8 p.m. Bob Bell's basketball Vikings come under fire for the first time this season in a battle with Kerrisdale junior men at the Uvic gymnasium. At 6, coach Wally Yeamans' Vikettes will play the team that won the Canadian junior women's title for Uvic last spring.

Saturday afternoon on the Gordon Head battlegrounds the Women's Residence Reps will attempt to show the Faculty All-Stars the finer points of grass hockey in a match scheduled to get under way at 1 p.m.

An hour later the "Ruggah" Vikings take to their field to lock heads with the "Old Boys" in their annual grudge match. This one should be a killer. The Vikings might even win.

Next door, on the soccer pitch, the Vikings, who has shut out their second division opponents in their last three league contests, line up against the UBC Braves. With Tom Moore performing splendidly between the uprights and with his mates improving every game, according to coach Wally Milligan, this promises to be an interesting game.

HOMECOMING HANDOUTS: After five weeks the top average bowlers in the Uvic fivepin league are: Men—Ed Fox, 249; Jim Hendry, 236; D. Lonsdale, 228. Women: Liz Webber, 205; Eleanor Ingebrightson, 195; Marg Oliver, 182 . . . Mike Fall and Dave Clarke with a penalty goal each and Tom Bourne with a brilliant 70-yard try accounted for Viking scoring in a first division rugby loss to Cowichan last weekend . . .The soccer Norsemen dropped a squeaker 2-1 to Hotspurs in Combination League play as Fred Hellions turned in a fine goaltending chore in his first game . . . Affectionately called the "Rabble" by rugby buffs, the Uvic thirds dropped an 8-0 decision to Royal Roads . . .

Last year, goalie Bob Richter rode the hockey Vikings' bench. This season coach Anderson used Richter in the second half of the All-Star game and again last Friday in a league game against Pontiacs.

Although Vikings dropped that one, a 7-5 overtime hairraiser, Bob turned in a solid effort, faulting badly on only one goal. Against the T-Birds tonight he'll share net duties with Vikings' regular, veteran Ted Hurd.

Quick Start Helps United to Move Up

Their climbing methods aren't awesome, but Victoria United is moving up the Pacific Coast Soccer League ladder.

United scored two goals in the first half and then held on to edge St. Andrews 2-1 at Royal Athletic Park on Thursday. Victory lifted the Uniteds from seventh to a tie for fourth place in the league standings.

United gets another chance Saturday to move even higher. They'll play their second game in three days against University of British Columbia Thunderbirds Saturday at Athletic Park.

The scrappy T-Birds, holding second failed to solidify their position Thursday when they dropped a 3-1 verdict to the hot Vancouver Firefighters. Burnaby Villa moved to within a point of the second-place team by defeating North Shore Luckies 2-0, in another Remembrance Day match.

IT'S CROWDED

Only two points separate UBC, Burnaby, Victoria and New Westminster. As the fates would have it these are the teams due to see action Saturday. In addition to the United-Thunderbird clash in Victoria, Burnaby and the Royals will play in Vancouver's Callister Park.

United, sharper on the ball and shooting with authority in the first half, moved into the lead Thursday when Bert Soutar broke in behind St. Andrew's defence and scored easily on a breakaway run at the eight-minute mark.

Soutar, a solid performer for a hot-and-cold United team, took a long free kick from Bill Hamilton as he slipped into the clear.

LOCKE SCORES

Winger Tommy Locke made it 2-0 about 16 minutes later, also breaking through for a clear shot after a fine pass from Peter Gooding.

United, easily the better team in the opening half, had its troubles in the second half. Jim Huszer got one goal back for St. Andrews and only some poor finishing prevented the mainland team from escaping with a draw.

Huszer's goal was a freakish effort. The centre forward took a seemingly-harmless shot at the Victoria goal. Goaltender Al Davies appeared to have it covered, but the ball took an odd hop and squirted into the goal four minutes after the second half got under way.

The Remembrance Day game drew a disappointingly - small turnout of just over 400 fans.

At Vancouver UBC Stadium the defending champion Firemen ran their winning streak to six games on two goals by Bob Babcock and one by veteran Art Hughes. UBC spoiled Ken Pears' hopes for a shutout when Jim Berry broke through to score with only two minutes remaining.

Burnaby's victory at Callister Park was the team's first in five starts. Burnaby, which tied its first four games, got goals from Normie McLeod and Roy Nosella.

Edmonton Juniors In National Final

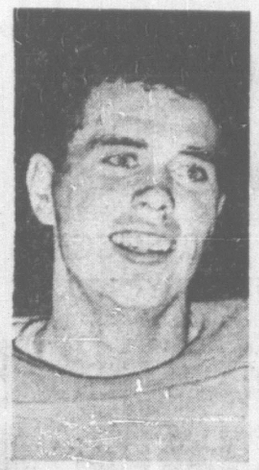

EDMONTON (CP)—Edmonton Huskies moved into their fourth consecutive Canadian junior football final Thursday with a come-from-behind 28-10 victory over Regina Rams in the Western final.

Huskies, who swept the last three national championships, meet Montreal Notre Dame de Grace Maple Leafs or Weston, Ont., Invictus in the 1965 final, scheduled for Nov. 21 at Montreal.

The Edmonton juniors trailed Rams 7-0 in the first half of a game that was hit by intermittent snow and temperatures that dipped to below 20 degrees. They fought back to a 13-10 lead after three quarters.

Huskies, who downed Maple Leafs in the 1961 final, recovered four of Regina's six fumbles and Clare Johnson picked off three interceptions. Rams recovered all three Edmonton fumbles.

Halfbacks Hart Cantelon and Terry Ayers, quarterback Gary Corbett and tackle Ralph Rasmussen went over for Huskies.

HARD-RUNNING fullback Dave Young is expected to carry big share of offensive load for Oak Bay Farmers in game tonight for B.C. juvenile football title. Farmers meet Renfrew Trojans of Vancouver in sudden-death final at Royal Athletic Park at 8:30.

Kerrisdale, Chinooks Don't Mind Extra Work

If you had to face the best junior men's basketball team in Canada on Saturday night, would you schedule an exhibition game Friday?

George Alexander would. And did. He's the coach of Kerrisdale, visitors at Central at Central Junior High Saturday at 8 p.m. against the Inter-City Junior League's penthouse dwelling Victoria Chinooks.

General Alexander is sending his troops out tonight against University of Victoria in an exhibition affair at Gordon Head gym.

Alexander has 12 players and says he will use them all so that no individual will get boneweary.

NEVERTHELESS . . .

But Gordon Head is a large gym, built over a cement base. Athletes trudging up and down the maple which has little spring have been known to pull up with screeching corns and yelling muscles.

Kerrisdale is 2-1 on the season. The team won its first two games, employing a zone press and fast break. It came as a cropper against YMCA last weekend, succumbing by 13 points.

Chinooks also enjoyed extra curicular activity Wednesday night. They dropped a 58-50 decision to the touring Harlem Clowns in a pleasing exhibition at Oak Bay High. The Clowns defeated Oak Bay's cagers 52-46 in the afternoon.

Lineups:

AFTERNOON GAME

REMEMBRANCE DAY GOLF

Moon, Evans Capture Tee Tourney Honors

Putting miseries were plentiful Thursday in the annual Remembrance Day tournament at Uplands Golf Club.

Extremely difficult flag placements made putting a delicate business and three, four and even five-putt greens plagued several of the contestants in the large field.

George Moon of Gorge Vale and Colwood's Joe Evans were among the few able to hold their own on the greens and they walked away with top honors.

Moon, an eight-handicapper, took home the main prize after recording a net 68 in the handicap tourney. Locked in the runner-up position with net 70s were Laurie Greenwood, Denny Hendra and Phil Nesbitt.

Evans, a four-handicapper, posted a two-over-par 72, despite a double-bogey six on the 18th hole, to capture low-gross laurels.

Uplands clubmates Frank Scroggs (76) and Gordie Pellow (77) finished second and third in the gross section.

Perseverance paid off for Rip Repasse, who received a special award for the highest score on the 18th hole. Rip finally holed out on the par-four 426-yarder on his 15th shot.

Buttons Retained

Senior city button holders Pete McIntyre and John Sturdy of Victoria Golf Club defeated Uplands challengers Ted Williams and Bill Craven on the 17th green at Royal Colwood Golf Club.

Next match will be played at Gorge Vale, with the holders meeting challengers Chris Archer and Bob Wakelin.

Munn's The Man To Beat

Cedar Hill professional Dick Munn will carry a two-stroke lead over Jasper Park pro Ron MacLeod into the second round of the three-round city fall medal series Sunday at Victoria Golf Club.

Munn, MacLeod, Frank Scroggs and Laurie Carroll are in that foursome that will be first off the tee at 9:30.

Mays Most Valuable

BOSTON (AP)—Willie Mays, San Francisco Giants' centre fielder, won the National League's Most Valuable Player Award Wednesday for the second time, outdistancing Los Angeles' Sandy Koufax and Maury Wills.

The 34-year-old Mays, who first won the award in 1954, was the only player named on all 20 ballots cast by two members of the Baseball Writers Association of America in each of the 10 National League cities.

He received nine first-place votes, 10 seconds and one third in piling up 224 points in the balloting.

NOT THIS TIME

Ken Boyer of St. Louis Cardinals received 243 points with 14 first-place votes in winning the honor in 1964, but didn't receive a point this year.

Koufax, who captured the Cy Young Memorial Award as baseball's top pitcher after a 26-8 record this year, polled 177 points, while Wills, the Dodgers' speedy shortstop, drew 164.

Mays became only the fifth player since 1931 to win the coveted MVP Award more than once. Stan Musial captured the honor in 1943, '46 and '48; Roy Campanella in '51, '53 and '55; Carl Hubbell in '33 and '36, and Ernie Banks in '58 and '59.

'Tough-Minded' Laing for Post?

Sauve Also Being Considered For Agricultural Portfolio

By JOYCE FAIRBAIRN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The names of Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing and Forestry Minister Maurice Sauve are currently being mooted to fill the agriculture vacancy in the Liberal cabinet.

The defeat of Harry Hays in Calgary, which left the Liberals with only one member out of 48 in the Prairies, at the moment, poses a vexing problem for Prime Minister Pearson.

It is felt highly unlikely that Veterans Affairs Minister Roger Teillet of St. Bonifec, Man., would be called upon to take the agriculture portfolio.

One of the most logical candidates from the point of view of experience is the tough-minded Arthur Laing from Vancouver.

Laing is a graduate of the University of British Columbia with a bachelor of science in agriculture. He is a member of the Agricultural Institution of Canada and past-president of the Vancouver branch of the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturalists.

Whether Laing would be keen on the job is another question, but geographically he is the person with qualifications closest to the barren Liberal wastes of the Prairies.

As northern affairs and national resources minister, Laing has had considerable contact with the Prairie provinces.

Not all of it has been pleasant. Several times in the past year irate spokesmen from Alberta national parks organizations have called for Laing's resignation over his controversial leasing policy in the parks.

Good Relations With Thatcher

On the other hand it is understood he gets on relatively well with Saskatchewan's Liberal Premier Ross Thatcher which, at times, is almost a novelty in Ottawa. Hays and Thatcher were at public loggerheads.

Sauve, the controversial and clever economist from Quebec, is currently serving as acting agriculture minister in the wake of Hays' defeat.

Attached to his forestry portfolio is the responsibility for Eastern Canadian feed grain policy and the administration of the popular Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Agency.

Eastern agriculture has been in a sorry state in the past year and there is constant pressure for improvements.

Sauve's cabinet career has followed a rocky path and on a number of occasions his dissatisfaction with his lot has prompted well-placed rumors of pending retirement from politics.

Sauve feels the time has come when Quebec ministers should be given a crack at something more economically intriguing than the traditional spots such as justice minister.

Apart from these two ministers, the Liberal ranks offer little scope for the entry of newcomers into the cabinet for the agriculture portfolio.

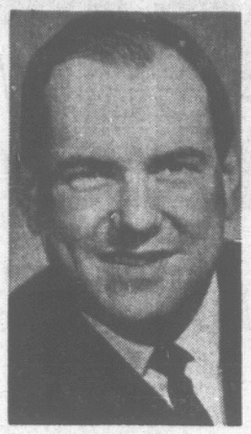

Although there are several members elected from rural Ontario, none appears to have sufficient stature for the job.

Up in the Senate, A. H. "Hammie" McDonald from Saskatchewan is loaded with qualifications but it would be virtually impossible to have an agriculture minister who would not be on hand to face the solid Tory opposition from the Prairies in the House.

No discussion of cabinet changes will take place until the service vote is revealed on the weekend. Pearson realizes that some special arrangement must be made for the West but at the moment he is just "thinking."

NOMINATION DAY SET

Bylaws making Nov. 29 official nomination day for the annual municipal elections Dec. 11 were read at Victoria city council meeting Wednesday.

The mayoralty and five council seats will be at stake.

The normal number of council vacancies is four, this year the ones occupied by Ald. M. H. Mooney, Geoffrey Edgelow, Mrs. Lily Wilson and Robert Baird.

A fifth vacancy occurs this year with the resignation in mid-term of Ald. A. W. Toone, who will seek the mayoralty bidding against Ald. Mooney.

HAYS JUST RANCHER

CALGARY (CP) — Harry Hays, defeated by Conservative Ray Ballard in Calgary South during the federal election, says he plans a four-month holiday in Hawaii to recuperate from pneumonia.

The former Liberal agriculture minister said Wednesday that after the vacation he will become a full-time rancher at his 5,000-acre spread at Pekisko Creek, about 30 miles southwest of the city.

He said the election was to have been his last. "If I had won, I'd probably have had another four years in Ottawa which would have given me 10 years in municipal and federal politics."

"I would be 60 years old then, and politics is a young man's game."

Lifetime to Weave 2 Rugs

Persian rug maker Khord Azad has spent a lifetime weaving two rugs.

The second one, which has taken the past 15 years to weave, will go on the auctioneer's block in the Empress Monday.

Its owners, the Associated Brotherhood of National Rugs of Iran, a government sponsored agency, say they will accept $1,000, although the rug is worth at least $20,000.

The rug, which depicts the most famous Persian of all, Omar Kahayyam, containes 1,000 knots per square inch, each of them individually tied.

The rug is among 100 others valued at $350,000 which will be on display in the Empress Hotel Sunday from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. and Monday from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.

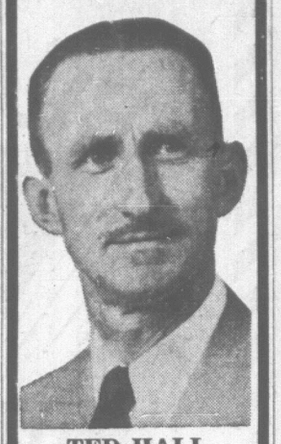

The display will end with a lecture on the rugs followed by an auction.

A spokesman for the rug makers Brotherhood says they are able to accept much less than the rugs are worth because the Iran government subsidizes the weavers.

Advertising's third dimension

In addition to length and width, a newspaper advertisement has a third dimension—thickness. Thickness is represented by circulation, the number of advertisements printed and actually delivered.

You pay for an advertisement on the basis of length and width, but what you really buy is the opportunity to talk about your merchandise or service to a specified number of readers. Laid one upon another, a one inch stack of your advertisements in this newspaper equals 300 homes reached.

Thickness . . . or circulation . . . is the dimension that gives promise to your sales message, that it will reach potential customers.

It is important for you to know whether circulation is a promise or a fact.

The ABC insigne assures you that our circulation is measured by the highest standards in the advertising and publishing industry. It is the symbol of our membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

ABC is an independent auditing organization whose sole purpose is to give accurate and factual circulation reports. ABC audits are trusted by national advertisers and advertising agencies. They can be trusted by you.

Our tell-all ABC report shows how much circulation we actually deliver, where these copies are distributed, how much readers pay, and other information you should know about the thickness of your advertising here — facts, without opinions, compiled from a physical audit of circulation records by traveling ABC auditors.

When buying advertising, be sure to measure all three dimensions — length, width, and thickness.

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS HUNTERS

'A Great Victory' For Indian Rights

DAVID BOB

Vancouver Island Indians rejoiced today over a ruling by the Supreme Court of Canada that British Columbia's game laws do not apply to them.

In making its decision, the Supreme Court upheld treaties signed by the Hudson's Bay Company in 1854.

The treaties were signed by Sir James Douglas, then chief factor of the company as well as governor of Vancouver Island.

"This is a great victory for Indian rights," said Edward Elliott of the Cowichan Indian Band. "I believe many white people will approve the court's decision."

The issue was first raised in Nanaimo magistrate's court when two Indian hunters were convicted of being in illegal possession of game.

They were found with the carcasses of six deer near Nanaimo on July 7, 1963—two weeks after the close of the hunting season.

The hunters were Clifford White of Cedar and David Bob of Nanoose, both members of the Sarlequun Tribe. They were each fined $100.

'Means a Lot to Our People'

"I think the court made a very fair ruling," said Mr. Bob. "It means a lot to our people."

In Ottawa the Supreme Court rejected Crown arguments that Douglas signed only as chief factor and not in his capacity as governor.

The court found that, for blankets and other considerations, the Indians signed over their lands "to the white people forever" with the understanding "that we are at liberty to hunt over the unoccupied lands, and to carry on our fisheries as formerly."

The Crown was appealing a British Columbia Court of Appeal decision which wiped out the convictions.

The appeal was launched by Vancouver lawyer Tom Berger. He argued that, under the British North America Act, the federal government has exclusive jurisdiction to legislate on Indian affairs.

Nanaimo Indian chief Doug White was one of a small committee which spearheaded the appeal against the conviction of Mr. White and Mr. Bob.

"I am very, very happy with the Supreme Court's ruling," he said. "Indians are natural conservationists and it doesn't mean they will rush to kill off the deer."

Dave Moon, chief councillor of the Cape Mudge Band, had reservations.

'Some Might Abuse Privilege'

"I don't like the idea of anyone, including Indians, fishing without a permit," he said. "Some might abuse the privilege. They could take a net into the river and catch large quantities of fish.

"Then they might be tempted to sell the fish. I believe fish caught in this manner should be only for consumption by Indians. No white man should be allowed on the boat while this fishing is taking place."

Otherwise, Mr. Moon said, the ruling is "very good" for all Indians on the Island.

Ben Jack, brother of the elected chief of the Nootka Band, said the Supreme Court's ruling puts the seal of approval on established practices of Indian hunters.

"We have always hunted for what we needed. Many Indians still hunt deer and birds for food for their families, as they did in the old days.

"We always felt we had a right to do this, and we had to do it."

Ron Sampson, Indian agent at Duncan, said the decision will boost the morale of Island Indians.

"I am certain they won't take advantage of it. Whites may consider this a case of special privilege, but I prefer to think of it as a basic right.

"We white people must not forget the Indians once held possession of all the territory in the province."

Duncan Starts Stepped-Up Crossing Fight

DUNCAN—For two years city council has been gathering ammunition.

Members decided Wednesday to open fire on the Board of Transport commissioners.

Their target: A third crossing of the E & N railroad track in downtown Duncan.

Council wants the third crossing at Coronation Avenue.

Ald. Hamish Mutter said: "We want an all-out effort. Our transport problems are increasing daily and we need immediate action.

INGRAM EXTENSION

Ald. Mutter said his long term idea was for the third crossing to link with Government Street via an extension of Ingram Street.

Daily rail traffic through Duncan consists of one passenger diesel and one freight train in each direction.

Ald. Mutter said: "It's rumored the log train will be taken off shortly."

A brief will be prepared for submission to the board.

Unions Knock Phone Setup

PORT ALBERNI—Union representatives here are dissatisfied with the local telephone service.

At a meeting of Port Alberni and District Labor Council this week representatives of 10 unions aired their criticisms.

Several complained of having to wait excessively long periods for the operator at Nanaimo.

The trouble centres round a new automatic exchange system which did away with the local operators.

Said one spokesman: "The service has deteriorated disgracefully since the automatic exchange system went in."

Recreation Body Names Teen-Towner

COBBLE HILL — Teen-town organizer Jim Quaife has been elected first chairman of the newly-organized South Cowichan Recreation Commission.

Commission members, meeting for the first time this week, agreed that an immediate program should be undertaken to inform residents of the unorganized area of the commission's purposes and aims.

Other commission members are: Roger Hilliard, vice-chairman; Mrs. R. J. Klettke, secretary; Mrs. L. F. Westerman, treasurer.

YOUTH DRANK 26 OF RUM, DIED IN BED

NANAIMO—A 16-year-Indian died after drinking a full 26-ounce bottle of rum in half an hour.

At the Wednesday night inquest for Ronald Drake, 644 Victoria Road, Nanaimo, Coroner Russ Inkster said:

"As members of the white race we have failed these people miserably and now we are reaping the harvest."

The coroner had just heard from Viola Drake, 18, cousin of the dead youth, circumstances surrounding the death.

Miss Drake said: "Ronnie went out of the house (Oct. 31) and a short time later he came back with a bottle of rum.

20 MINUTES

". . . He started drinking from the big bottle.

"It took him from 20 minutes to half an hour to drink it all."

He then went to bed, and was found dead next morning.

Medical evidence showed the youth's lungs were almost full of stomach contents, taken into the lungs during his drugged sleep.

Aldermen Offer to Lead Recreation Centre Drive

DUNCAN — City council, which hasn't yet formed a recreation commission of its own, offered Wednesday to spearhead a joint drive for a recreation complex.

The city's offer came after North Cowichan launched its plan for a $275,000 ice arena at Fuller's Lake Park.

North Cowichan Reeve Donald Morton's plan for a similar joint project recently won no response.

Ald. Hamish Mutter said Wednesday he hesitated to raise the issue.

"But it is time we took a look into the question of recreational facilities," he said.

Ald. Barney Cocks said: "I believe the other local authorities are waiting for us to say we're ready to come into such a scheme."

Besides preparing a $275,000 bylaw for an ice arena, North Cowichan is on record as prepared to help Duncan Rotary Club build an open-air swimming pool.

Rotary is still trying to get a similar commitment from the city fathers.

Ald. James Saunders said what hindered a regional recreation program was the difficulty in getting a financial contribution from the unorganized territory.

Ald. Mutter said this could be overcome by a setup similar to hospital improvement districts.

Mayor Jack Dobson said "We have to make up our minds pretty soon about a swimming pool.

"We're in the recreation business whether we like it or not."

He added: "This isn't just talk about a joint plan but there has to be a lot of exploratory work."

Committee Studies Special Care Unit

GANGES—A committee has been set up here to plan for a continuing care unit at Lady Minto Gulf Islands Hospital.

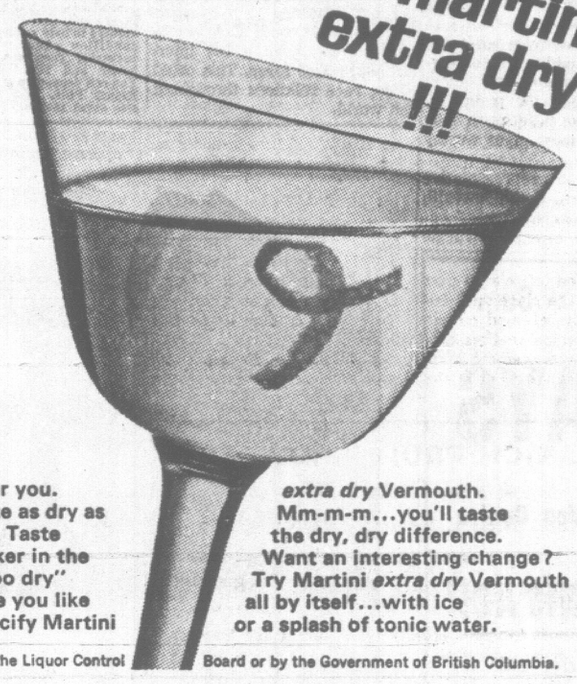

Committee members are: hospital administrator Harold Hoffman, E. A. Richardson, S. J. Green, G. S. Humphries, Mrs. Warren Hasting and Maurice Atkins.

U.K. SEES SMITH FALL

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP—British officials and those from other white nations of the Commonwealth say Rhodesia's rebellious white settlers will soon find themselves isolated, friendless, bankrupt and on their knees.

Diplomats from Asian Commonwealth countries predict Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith will get away with it —for the time being.

The Asians see it this way:

Smith's UDI—unilateral declaration of independence — will be a nine-day wonder in a world preoccupied with bigger things.

Resolutions will be passed by such groups as the Organization of African Unity but lacking real power in the air or on the ground, they are impotent to act.

The UN Security Council will condemn UDI but won't agree on an effective method of intervention. In time, many nations will get used to dealing with the Rhodesian government even if, at the outset, they refuse to recognize it as they refused to recognize Communist China.

Many African diplomats in London agree to some extent.

EXPECT NO ARMIES

In private they concede that talk about armies of liberation marching on Rhodesia to help their fellow Africans is unrealistic. They say the real salvation for Rhodesia's 4,000,000 blacks lies with the blacks themselves.

They will have to settle the differences dividing them, organize a resistance movement and go through the ordeal of blood, fire and suffering if they are to prove themselves worthy of power.

One London representative of an African Commonwealth country commented:

"It will be a tough struggle because we must expect Smith bit by bit to resort to the police state methods used by his South African neighbors. But do not be surprised to see a phase of violence as Rhodesia's Africans learn to master the mechanics of insurrection."

Prime Minister Wilson and his cabinet believe the Smith regime can be brought to its knees by a variety of economic pressures. They include political, trading and fiscal sanctions beginning with a ban on the import of Rhodesian tobacco, worth ~0,000,000 a year.

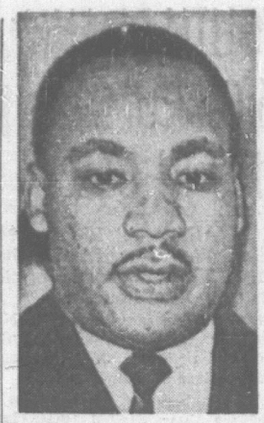

RALLY INDEFINITELY?

Wilson's government is sure Britain's friends will rally indefinitely to quarantine Rhodesia.

British officials concede their forecasts of disaster for Smith's regime may well hinge on the positions taken by Portugal and South Africa. The Portuguese territory of Mozambique borders landlocked Rhodesia and so does South Africa. If, as may be expected, these countries display benevolence toward Smith's action, then he can count on getting a lot of the goods and materials he needs from or through them. Similarly he can count on marketing a lot of his products through them, if he can find anybody to buy them.

On one big thing Asian, African and British diplomats agree: The Rhodesian crisis packs the explosive capacity of an atomic bomb in its racial implications.

If the 220,000 whites slide into combat with the Negro majority, in time it could suck in outside powers, even a UN international police force. This could affect race relations throughout the world.

TRAGIC moral catastrophe for the free world was Dr. Martin Luther King's reaction to Rhodesia's declaration of independence. He urged the United Nations to refuse diplomatic recognition. "This is a direct attempt to turn back the clock of history and deny 4,000,000 black men of representation in the government of their nation," he said.

URGES CALM IN RHODESIA SPLIT

Dief Advises Against Sanctions

SIOUX LOOKOUT, Ont. (CP) —Canada should not join in sanctions against Southern Rhodesia for unilaterally declaring its independence from Britain, Conservative Leader Diefenbaker said Thursday.

The white-ruled African country announced the move Thursday and Prime Minister Wilson of Britain immediately imposed economic sanctions. Britain plans to seek worldwide support for the move.

In a statement issued aboard the train carrying him to Ottawa, Mr. Diefenbaker said:

"Canada's course in the present situation should be decided upon in a spirit of calmness and good judgment after consultation among all Commonwealth countries.

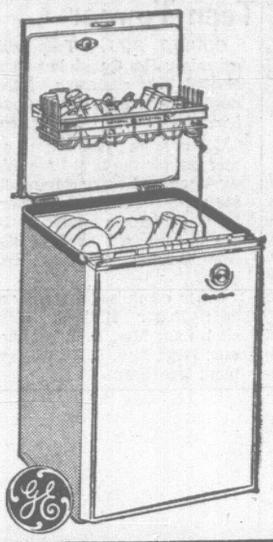

"Canada's stand against discrimination must be strong and definite; but I do not believe that Canada should join in the application of sanctions shown by experience to be ineffectual."

Mr. Diefenbaker said this was his stand as prime minister when white-ruled South Africa left the Commonwealth in the face of opposition to its race policies.

"I can see no justification for applying a different principle in the case of Rhodesia."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Southern Rhodesian move "brings into focus a matter of grave Commonwealth concern."

He noted that at the 1961 Commonwealth prime ministers' conference, he had "intended that racial discrimination as a governing principle in any Commonwealth country should not be condoned."

Dispossess Santa Claus? Aldermen Wouldn't Dare

Rival department stores failed again Wednesday to block a proposed Eaton's Christmas display on Broad Street between View and Fort.

Closure of the block was protested at a Victoria city council meeting by Mayfair Merchants' Association and Hillside Plaza businessmen.

Eaton's again this year plans to concentrate its Santa Claus show in the short block.

FINAL READING

Council gave final reading to a bylaw to close the street but not without some wrangling.

City solicitor T. P. O'Grady recalled similar protests last year when the Hudson's Bay Company also objected.

He said the issue died when it was pointed out rejecting the Eaton's application would amount to "dispossessing Santa Claus," hardly a move destined to win friends.

Aldermen Geoffrey Edgelow and M. H. Mooney became entangled in whether the city had the right to close a street for a private business or whether rent should be charged.

SILLY ARGUMENT

Ald. Michael Griffin ended it abruptly:

"If this isn't the silliest argument going on here; why waste time on such nonsense?"

"It seems only in Victoria can we do this," he said in a general reference to time-wasting.

"This is a good idea, and if they (the objectors) can come up with a similar one, that's a good idea too," he said.

Youth Admits Radio Theft

A 19-year old youth who stole a car radio even though he had no use for it was remanded Wednesday for sentence when he pleaded guilty in central court.

Gerald Woloshyn, 220 Kamloops, removed the radio, valued at $63, from a car on a lot in Saanich Tuesday morning. Police said he had a radio in his own car. He told them he had no reason to steal the radio.

WHOOPERS MAY SET NEW MARK

WASHINGTON (AP)—A total of 36 whooping cranes now have completed their fall migration to the Aransas national wildlife refuge on the Texas Gulf Coast, the interior department reported Wednesday.

Eight of the birds are young-of-the-year.

There were 42 whoopers in the wild flock that wintered at Aransas a year ago, a record number.

With two or three weeks of the normal migration period still remaining, the department said conservationists are hopeful the number of whoopers will set a record.

Labor Easily Retains Seat In U.K. Vote

ERITH, England (AP)—Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government won a byelection in Erith and Crayford Thursday night and increased its house of Commons majority to two votes.

Laborite James Wellbeloved had 21,835 votes to 14,763 for Conservative David Madel and 2,823 for the Liberal party's Stanley Vince.

Compared with the general election last year, both Labor and Conservative candidates took votes from the middle-road Liberals.

But Labor's margin of 7,072 over the Conservative was at least 2,000 more than most observers had predicted.

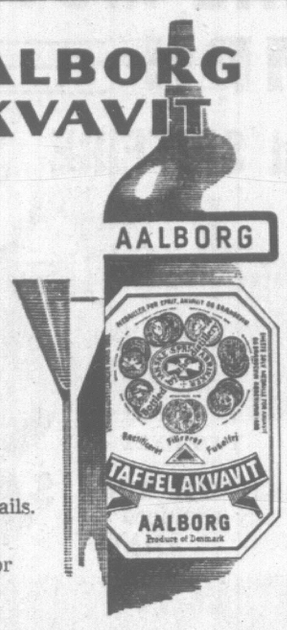

The election was caused by the death of Norman Dodds, who had held the seat for Labor since the Second World War.

Philippine Chief Trails in Voting

MANILA (AP)—Senate President Ferinand E. Marcos appeared today to have almost won the Philippine presidency but President Diosdado Macapagal, seeking a second term, refused to concede.

Unofficial returns compiled by the Philippine news service gave Marcos a 614,095-vote lead in Tuesday's election, still an almost unbeatable margin although smaller than it was earlier.

The unofficial tally from about 70 per cent of the estimated 8,500,000 votes gave Marcos 3,015,271 votes to Macapagal's 2,401,176.

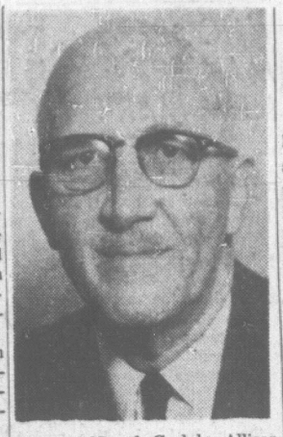

Fernando Lopez, running for vice-president with Marcos, led Gerardo Roxas, son of a former president, by 114,376 votes—2,770,099 to 2,655,723.

In official returns from less than half of the country's 45,234 precincts, Marcos was leading by 340,277 votes. The official tally from 28,110 voting districts was Marcos 2,299,306. Macapagal 1,959,029.

Marcos, a 48-year-old war hero from the Nacionalista party, was confident of victory. He said he could lose only through "massive and unthinkable fraud."

But Macapagal, 55, considers the election still undecided and won't concede until official returns are completed, a source close to the Liberal party president said.

The president's press office said returns from pro-Macapagal precincts on the islands of Luzon and Mindanao will put him ahead in the official tally. Early returns from Mindanao showed Marcos running strongly in urban areas. Macapagal claims strength in the countryside.

DISMISSAL of Carlyle Allison as a member of the Board of Broadcast Governors has been revealed by an announcement in Ottawa Wednesday by Prime Minister Pearson that the government has no intention to reappoint the former editor of the Winnipeg Tribune. Allison, whose seven-year term expired Wednesday, was appointed by former prime minister Diefenbaker.

'National' Cabinet Urged

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Social Credit leader Robert Thompson today suggested that a national cabinet cutting across all party lines might solve the "government emergency" in Canada's Confederation period.

The Socred chief described rumors that he or his colleague Bud Olson from Medicine Hat might be invited to accept the agriculture portfolio in the Liberal government as "wishful thinking."

Stories emanating from Western Canada had speculated that the cabinet post might be offered in exchange for Social Credit support in the new Parliament.

"I don't expect it, the offer hasn't been made, and I won't even speculate on it," Thompson said in an interview.

Deadline Nears In Teachers' Salary Dispute

No settlement has been reached in teachers' salaries disputes in Greater Victoria, Saanich and Sooke school districts.

The deadline for settlement by conciliation is next Monday.

It is believed the three disputes will likely go to arbitration procedure.

Arbitration hearings and awards must be made by Dec. 31.

Teachers in Greater Victoria and Saanich are seeking wage increases of about 10 per cent and Sooke teachers were asking for an increase of about 5 per cent.

No repair job ever looks too big to Finning's Norm Ruffle

The 25 tons of power in our picture is a Caterpillar D8 track-type tractor. It's in for a complete overhaul . . . a job that calls for even the big components to be handled with a watchmaker's precision.

To do it right you really need two things.

A service supervisor like Norm Ruffle, and an organization like Finning's. Norm's confidence comes partly from twenty-five years of experience and partly from knowing his team of specialists and their equipment are simply the best.

So under Norm's watchful eye, the giant Cat D8 tractor will be stripped. Then the overhaul will get under way with each part . . . engine, transmission, fuel injection, control unit, turbocharger, electrical system, tracks and rollers . . . being sent to its own expert.

But just as important is this question.. What kind of pride do these Finning men take in their work?

Well, you could talk to Norm Ruffle for five minutes. Or put the reassembled machine through its paces.

For it's true . . Finning is the company big enough to handle the smallest job efficiently. . personally . . willingly.

Arthur Mayse

There is more than one way to skin a cat, as the durable old saw has it, and a few weeks ago, I began to experiment with a new approach to my cigarette problem.

Obviously, the direct frontal attack wasn't going to work for one whose moral fibres stretch under pressure like golf-ball elastic. A year or two ago, as some of you still remind me when we meet, I tried that approach and got tossed.

So, on the principle that judo may succeed where brute force failed, I now keep a great many cigarettes out of my mouth by sticking a pipe in.

This works pretty well. There are, indeed, signs that I'll eventually learn to like my pipe and find it a comfortable companion.

I've already progressed to the point of settling on a favorite brand (of matchsticks, I mean), and often for as long as 10 consecutive seconds, I'm in contact with the tobacco.

My difficulties, I'm told by one of several expert advisers, are due in part to not packing my pipe correctly. Like other arts, this isn't learned overnight.

First you must rub your tobacco, which is likely to come to you in all manner of antic shapes.

I'm speaking here, of course, of the imported stuff put up in London or Glasgow in bitsy little tins sealed like so many time capsules. Pipe smokers of the top echelon scorn to sully their briars with humbler fodder.

Anyway, the mystique demands that you scrub it between your palms until well crumbled—a process attended by considerable wastage, which is probably just what the shrewd manufacturer intended.

Next, bit by bit, with nicely-calculated pokes and prods, you feed the tobacco into a pipe bowl from which you have reamed the detritus of the last attempt.

Then you start in with the matches.

In total, this rite alone occupies me for about as long as it would take to smoke two or maybe three cigarettes, a fact which justifies its fussiness.

To qualify as even a novice pipe smoker, it's essential to go about with pipestem nipped between the front teeth, or clamped in a jaw corner. This necessitates caution; in fact I'm still slightly frog-mouthed as a result of getting my new smoke-pot trapped in a car door.

That didn't help the pipe, either. Now at inoportune moments, it shows a nasty tendency to betray the dignified new image by falling apart.

What really started me on this kick was the spectacle of a friend receiving such an accolade as never happens to a mere cigarette inhaler.

We were loafing over coffee in a restaurant, me with cigarette, he emitting pipe smoke in spaced and fragrant cloudlets, when a smartly turned out young pussycat paused by our booth with nose twitching.

"Would you mind," said she, "telling me the name of that mixture you're smoking? It's so much nicer than my husband's!"

Within the hour, I was burning match sticks like crazy.

About now, I'd be downright discouraged, were it not for the fact that I happen to have another pipe. For years, this one has lain unused at the back of my basement workbench as a reminder of a companion long gone. It has a curved yellow stem and a fat, tarred bowl. The mouthpiece is scored where the man who once smoked it used to clamp down hard when he was playing a big trout.

Some morning on an Island beach, a punctured it completely, that trout was just inches feet from nose

BE SMART—When I'm poking around, is charge with a newer than new cheap tobacco with a younger, smarter in long and featuring an abundance grass. I tern of felt on felt, and and the color like, say, emerald and sapphire blue, or and I and pink, great with a black we chocolate suit.

They Fell Under the Red Ensign 'We Have Every Right to Parade'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Thousands of veterans and servicemen paraded to Victoria Cenotaph Thursday in honor of those who gave their lives for freedom.

And a small group at the end of the parade demonstrated that freedom by carrying the Canadian Red Ensign instead of the official flag of Canada.

By order of the Dominion Council of the Royal Canadian Legion, the new Maple Leaf flag was given the place of honor at the front of the parade.

But Mrs. Margaret Derbyshire and members of the Victoria branch, Red Ensign Club of Canada, brought up the rear with their own flag.

"As far as we are concerned the Red Ensign is still the true flag of Canada," Mrs. Derbyshire said. "It is the flag our husbands and sons died under and it should be honored at all Remembrance Day services."

More than 3,000 men, women and children joined in the main service at the Cenotaph. The two minutes' silence was marked at the beginning and end by the firing of a cannon by the 5th (B.C.) Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery.

As he has done for many years past, Clem Gill, former manager of the Pro Patria Branch, Royal Canadian Legion, spoke the mystic words:

"They shall grow not old as we that are left grow old; age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn. At the going down of the sun, and in the morning, we will remember them."

The soulful lament, Flowers of the Forest, was played by Pipe-Major Frank Knight and members of the pipe band of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

Then followed the hymn The Silent Tribute, prayers by Wing Commander the Rev. E. W. S. Gilbert, RCAF (Ret.), the hymn O Valiant Hearts, The Last Post and The Reveille.

After the singing of O Canada, a wreath was placed on the Cenotaph by Major Norman Featherstone on behalf of Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, who was attending the Remembrance Day service in Vancouver.

Armed Forces

Rear Admiral M. G. Stirling, laid a wreath on behalf of the armed forces Pacific Coast, and later took the saluate at a march past the Empress Hotel.

Mrs. Charles Brooks, 447 Monterey, whose son, Harry James Brooks, was killed at Caen, France, in 1944, laid a wreath on behalf of the Bereaved Mothers' Association of Canada.

Other wreaths were placed on the Cenotaph by Public

Should Register

A city police inspector approached Mrs. Derbyshire after the parade halted outside the Legislative Buildings. He said the group should have registered before taking part.

"Every group on parade is required to register," he said.

Mrs. Derbyshire told him the Red Ensign has a charter from the provincial government and a membership of more than 300.

"We have every right to be in this parade," she said.

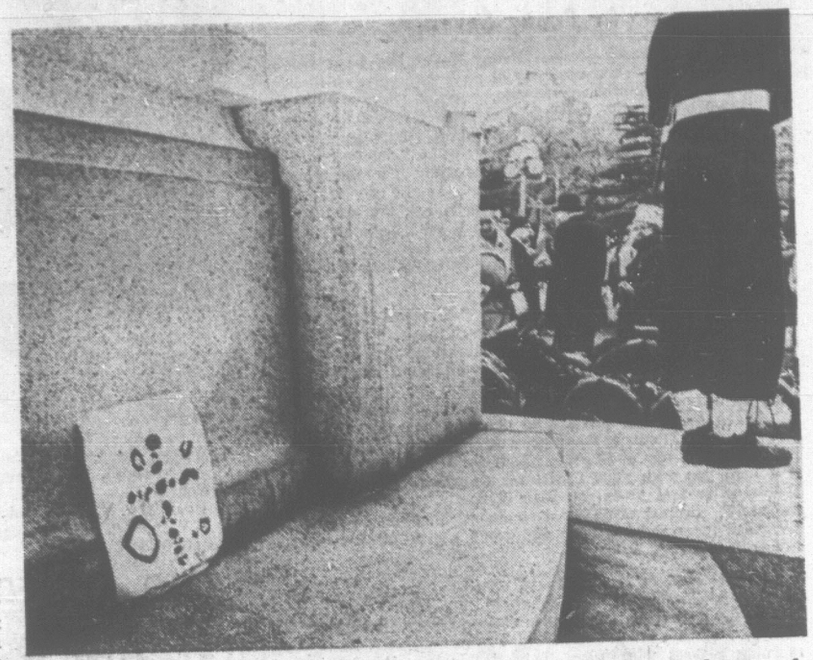

The police inspector assured Mrs. Derbyshire there would be no interference but asked that she register in future.

Placed Wreath

Later Mrs. Derbyshire placed a wreath on the Victoria Cenotaph on behalf of the Red Ensign Club. She said her husband, her son and two brothers were killed while fighting under the Red Ensign in the two world wars.

"There are thousands of men and women who feel as I do," she said, "and they have a right to be heard."

Otherwise, the Remembrance Day ceremonies followed their time-honored pattern. Veterans and servicemen marched proudly to the Cenotaph and the band of HMCS Naden gave a lift to their steps as they swung between the crowds lining the Causeway.

IT MADE MANY STOP TO WONDER . . . a child's cross of remembrance made of painted poppies appeared at the base of the Cenotaph at the rear during Remembrance Day ceremony Thursday on lawns of Legislative Buildings. It was noticed after official placing of wreaths had taken place. (Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

'THEY DIED FOR PEACE' SAY YOUTHS

More than 40 young Victorians held a 24-hour vigil at the Victoria Cenotaph from Wednesday to Thursday to remind the public that servicemen in both world wars "died for peace."

They displayed posters to this effect but made no demonstration.

"We were not belittling the sacrifices made in the First and Second World Wars," said Bob Munro, 26, organizer for the Peace Action League, "but we wanted to emphasize that both wars were fought with the object of ending war."

The vigil was held in shifts from 5 p.m. Wednesday until 5 p.m. Thursday.

J. W. OOSTERINK
. . . funeral Saturday

Ex-Building Inspector Dies at 72

Retired Victoria building inspector J. W. Oosterink, 72, died at St. Joseph's Hospital Wednesday after collapsing in his car that morning.

City police took him to hospital after he suffered a seizure while driving.

Funeral service will be conducted at 11 a.m. Saturday at Thomson and Irving funeral chapel by Canon George Biddle. Cremation will follow.

Mr. Oosterink became city building inspector in 1946, taking the job held formerly by Duncan K. Kennedy.

FARMER, BUILDER

A Dutchman by birth, Mr. Oosterink came to Canada when a young man, working in the North Battleford and Saskatoon areas as farmer and builder before joining the army to serve overseas with the 28th Battalion in the First World War.

Thursday would have been the 47th anniversary of the gassing he suffered while serving in the front lines.

He came to live in the Duncan area between the wars, and in 1941 settled in Victoria.

Surviving are the widow, Doris at home, 1415 Ryan; daughters, Mrs. J. (Doris) Romain and Mrs. A. (Maude) Bentley, of Victoria; a son, John William, of Philadelphia; six grandchildren, and three sisters in Holland.

MEDICAL DILEMMA

'Sit, Chat' Days Gone Says Surgeon

One of the most difficult problems facing medical men in the immediate future will be the maintaining of doctor-patient relationships.

Professor Drew Kay, regius professor of surgery at the University of Glasgow, Scotland, said in an interview this morning that medicine has become so complex that the family doctor can no longer maintain the relationship he once had with his patients.

Here to address the annual meeting of the North Pacific Surgical Association, Professor Kay said there has been a marked deterioration between doctors and patients in Britain since the introduction of state medicine.

'INEVITABLE'

"There is no doubt that so far as hospital care is concerned it (state medicine) has provided a magnificent service. But so far as the family doctor is concerned it has not been so successful. It was inevitable and is inevitable that the relationship should suffer.

"Even without state medicine the problem is extremely serious. There was a time when the family doctor could sit and chat with his patients and administer one of a small handful of drugs available. But now the field of medicine is so complex the doctor just doesn't have the time."

Woman Remanded For Election On Fraud Counts

A woman alleged to have obtained "a great deal of money" by fraud was remanded today to Nov. 16 for election of how she will be tried.

Mrs. Gladys Naylor, 914 Sioux Place, is charged with four offences of obtaining money by misrepresentations. Earlier the amounts allegedly involved totalled $11,473, but today a new charge alleged a further fraud in the amount of $600.

Mrs. Naylor is free on bail.

Russ Give Their Version Of Collision With Trawler

A Russian skipper's account of a fatal collision with a Canadian trawler was in the hands of fisheries officials today.

The account was received Thursday aboard the Russian factory ship Arsenjy, 45 miles northwest of the northern tip of Vancouver Island.

Naval and fisheries officers packed the Russian ship's boardroom as the Russians gave their version of the accident.

A naval spokesman said the two sides spoke in English and Ukrainian.

The account—concerning the sinking of the Vancouver trawler Aleutian Queen and the death of her cook—will be forwarded to Transport Minister Pickersgill.

No details were released.

Meanwhile, no further light has been shed on the collision which Wednesday took the life of Oud Gronlund, 49, North Surrey.

Skipper of the Aleutian Queen, Oistein Hansen, 53, South Burnaby, was to see Capt. Cyril Burrill, supervising examiner for Master and Mates, this afternoon.

TO MINISTER

His personal account of the crash off the Island's northwest coast will be sent to Mr. Pickersgill.

Depending on the findings, an official inquiry may be held.

Mr. Hansen's lawyer has advised him not to make public circumstances surrounding the collision.

In Port Hardy Wednesday Mr. Hansen said he was hit by the Russian trawler Wexahnk.

At the time the trawler was being towed by the deep-sea tug Besstrashny.

Though holed in the stern, the Vancouver skipper thought he could make it to Bull Harbor 21 miles away.

After two hours struggling through a heavy swell, the 68-foot trawler keeled on to her side.

CLUNG TO MAST

Hansen and his son Robert clung to the mast for a while after the cook jumped into the icy water.

They eventually managed to inflate a liferaft which floated upside down with the cook clinging to the side.

As the raft was righted, Gronlund apparently froze to the underside.

When the pair was rescued 20 minutes later by the U.S. trawler Western Maid Gronlund was dead.

Question uppermost in officials' minds is:

Did the Russians realize the Aleutian Queen was sinking?

If so, why didn't they lend a hand?

Hansen shed some light on this Thursday night when he landed at Vancouver International Airport.

He said he didn't think the Russians were aware his boat was going down. They did know he was damaged, however.

NO COMMENT

Thursday's meeting may have cleared up this point. But naval officials were keeping tight-lipped about it today.

At the meeting was Lt.-Cmdr. Tom Irvine, commander of ocean-escort vessel HMCS Stettler; Capt. Reginald McLellan,

Esquimalt Upset By Bid for Town

Esquimalt officials today expressed disappointment and disapproval of a vote Wednesday night by View Royal ratepayers to form a town.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele said he is disappointed but not unduly so.

"After all it's up to them," he said.

The reeve said he advises the people in View Royal "to be careful before pushing aside Mr. Bracewell's report.

"This man is an expert, and if he recommends amalgamation from the standpoint of both areas he should be listened to."

B. C. Bracewell, former deputy minister of municipal affairs, was hired this summer by Esquimalt and View Royal to report on amalgamation.

Coun. George Argyle said:

"The View Royal decision is very disappointing. I just hope they don't live to regret it."

Over 200 members of the View Royal Ratepayers' Association voted against amalgamation with Esquimalt at a meeting in All Saints' Church Hall. There were only seven dissenters.

The meeting had been called by the association's executive to consider the findings of the Bracewell report.

The association will now present a resolution to the district's fire trustees to proceed with a bylaw asking for a change of status for View Royal from district to town.

Immediate action on the bylaw will be requested. A majority of 60 per cent is needed to make the vote law.

A spokesman for the Panhandle section of View Royal, Mrs. Ethel Rankin, 1440 Craigflower, says the people in her area are dismayed with Wednesday's decision.

"I hope they don't get their vote for a town. It would be disastrous.

"We'll have another Sidney on our hands," she said.

Mrs. Rankin says that the Panhandle group will try still to have its area join Esquimalt.

"We have sent a letter to this effect to Dan Campbell" (municipal affairs minister.)

"Now we can only sit tight and see what develops."

Prowlers Get Nothing In Two City Break-Ins

Police are investigating two break-ins in the city over the Remembrance Day holiday. Nothing was taken at either location.

A prowler entered Victoria Foundry and rifled through drawers in the office. At Superior Auto Body an attempt was made to enter the safe without success.

Pedestrian Badly Hurt On Highway

A 61-year-old pedestrian was badly injured in a collision with a car on Pat Bay Highway Thursday evening.

Charles Neaves, 3215 Island View Road, received multiple injuries. He is in fair condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Central Saanich police said the accident occurred on Pat Bay at East Saanich Road. Driver of the car involved was Rodney Nesbit, 1466 Mitchell Street.

GIRL INJURED

A 16-year-old girl hurt in a traffic accident at Admirals and Esquimalt Wednesday night is reported in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mary-Ann Carter, 721 Admirals, was in collision with a car driven by John McIntyre, 723 Cormorant.

A 50-year-old pedestrian injured as he crossed Pandora at Vancouver Thursday morning was released from hospital after treatment.

GREGORY COOK
. . . "no spare time"

Councillor Won't Seek Re-Election

The second senior member of Saanich council said today he will not seek re-election next month.

Coun. Gregory Cook said the growing work level at council coupled with the new school curriculum are responsible.

The school teacher and six-year councillor said he does not want to be a council member without the proper time to do a good job.

In some weeks, he said, he had to attend as many as four meetings and some council meetings were lasting until midnight.

Two other councillors and Reeve Hugh Curtis also have terms expiring next month. The reeve is expected to seek re-election but has made no announcement.

Coun. William Campbell, chairman of the public works committee, said he will seek re-election. Coun. Douglas Crosby, recovering in hospital from a broken knee, said he hasn't made up his mind.

Deadline for nominations is Nov. 29.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1965 —PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

There is more than one way to skin a cat, as the durable old saw has it, and a few weeks ago, I began to experiment with a new approach to my cigarette problem.

Obviously, the direct frontal attack wasn't going to work for one whose moral fibres stretch under pressure like golf-ball elastic. A year or two ago, as some of you still remind me when we meet, I tried that approach and got tossed.

So, on the principle that judo may succeed where brute force failed, I now keep a great many cigarettes out of my mouth by sticking a pipe in.

This works pretty well. There are, indeed, signs that I'll eventually learn to like my pipe and find it a comfortable companion.

I've already progressed to the point of settling on a favorite brand (of matchsticks, I mean), and often for as long as 10 consecutive seconds, I'm in contact with the tobacco.

My difficulties, I'm told by one of several expert advisers, are due in part to not packing my pipe correctly. Like other arts, this isn't learned overnight.

First you must rub your tobacco, which is likely to come to you in all manner of antic shapes.

I'm speaking here, of course, of the imported stuff put up in London or Glasgow in bitsy little tins sealed like so many time capsules. Pipe smokers of the top echelon scorn to sully their briars with humbler fodder.

Anyway, the mystique demands that you scrub it between your palms until well crumbled—a process attended by considerable wastage, which is probably just what the shrewd manufacturer intended.

Next, bit by bit, with nicely-calculated pokes and prods, you feed the tobacco into a pipe bowl from which you have reamed the detritus of the last attempt.

Then you start in with the matches.

In total, this rite alone occupies me for about as long as it would take to smoke two or maybe three cigarettes, a fact which justifies its fussiness.

To qualify as even a novice pipe smoker, it's essential to go about with pipestem nipped between the front teeth, or clamped in a jaw corner. This necessitates caution; in fact I'm still slightly frog-mouthed as a result of getting my new smoke-pot trapped in a car door.

That didn't help the pipe, either. Now at inopportune moments, it shows a nasty tendency to betray the dignified new image by falling apart.

What really started me on this kick was the spectacle of a friend receiving such an accolade as never happens to a mere cigarette inhaler.

We were loafing over coffee in a restaurant, me with cigarette, he emitting pipe smoke in spaced and fragrant cloudlets, when a smartly turned out young pussycat paused by our booth with nose twitching.

"Would you mind," said she, "telling me the name of that mixture you're smoking? It's so much nicer than my husband's!"

Within the hour, I was burning match sticks like crazy.

About now, I'd be downright discouraged, were it not for the fact that I happen to have another pipe. For years, this one has lain unused at the back of my basement workbench as a reminder of a companion long gone. It has a curved yellow stem and a fat, charred bowl. The mouthpiece is scored where the man who once smoked it used to bear down hard when he hooked a big trout.

One morning on an Island river, he punctured it completely. That trout was just short of two feet from nose to tail-centre.

What I do, when I'm poking around down there, is charge his friend with a cheap tobacco that comes in long strands like dried eelgrass. I ram it in, touch it off, and the old pipe likes the stuff.

It bites my tongue, and I bite it right back, and we seem to be getting along darn well together!

They Fell Under the Red Ensign 'We Have Every Right to Parade'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Thousands of veterans and servicemen paraded to Victoria Cenotaph Thursday in honor of those who gave their lives for freedom.

And a small group at the end of the parade demonstrated that freedom by carrying the Canadian Red Ensign instead of the official flag of Canada.

By order of the Dominion Council of the Royal Canadian Legion, the new Maple Leaf flag was given the place of honor at the front of the parade.

But Mrs. Margaret Derbyshire and members of the Victoria branch, Red Ensign Club of Canada, brought up the rear with their own flag.

"As far as we are concerned the Red Ensign is still the true flag of Canada," Mrs. Derbyshire said. "It is the flag our husbands and sons died under and it should be honored at all Remembrance Day services."

More than 3,000 men, women and children joined in the main service at the Cenotaph. The two minutes' silence was marked at the beginning and end by the firing of a cannon by the 5th (B.C.) Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery.

As he has done for many years past, Clem Gill, former manager of the Pro Patria Branch, Royal Canadian Legion, spoke the mystic words:

"They shall grow not old as we that are left grow old; age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn. At the going down of the sun, and in the morning, we will remember them."

The soulful lament, Flowers of the Forest, was played by Pipe-Major Frank Knight and members of the pipe band of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

Then followed the hymn The Silent Tribute, prayers by Wing Commander the Rev. E. W. S. Gilbert, RCAF (Ret.), the hymn O Valiant Hearts, The Last Post and The Reveille.

After the singing of O Canada, a wreath was placed on the Cenotaph by Major Norman Featherstone on behalf of Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, who was attending the Remembrance Day service in Vancouver.

Armed Forces

Rear Admiral M. G. Stirling, laid a wreath on behalf of the armed forces Pacific Coast, and later took the saluate at a march past the Empress Hotel.

Mrs. Charles Brooks, 447 Monterey, whose son, Harry James Brooks, was killed at Caen, France, in 1944, laid a wreath on behalf of the Bereaved Mothers' Association of Canada.

Other wreaths were placed on the Cenotaph by Public

Should Register

A city police inspector approached Mrs. Derbyshire after the parade halted outside the Legislative Buildings. He said the group should have registered before taking part.

"Every group on parade is required to register," he said.

Mrs. Derbyshire told him the Red Ensign has a charter from the provincial government and a membership of more than 300.

"We have every right to be in this parade," she said.

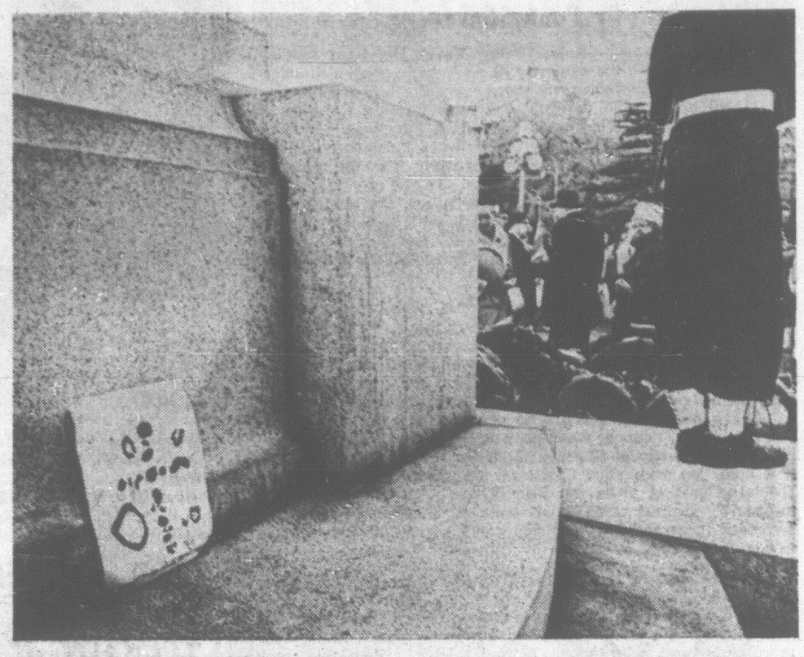

The police inspector assured Mrs. Derbyshire there would be no interference but asked that she register in future.

Placed Wreath

Later Mrs. Derbyshire placed a wreath on the Victoria Cenotaph on behalf of the Red Ensign Club. She said her husband, her son and two brothers were killed while fighting under the Red Ensign in the two world wars.

"There are thousands of men and women who feel as I do," she said, "and they have a right to be heard."

Otherwise, the Remembrance Day ceremonies followed their time-honored pattern. Veterans and servicemen marched proudly to the Cenotaph and the band of HMCS Naden gave a lift to their steps as they swung between the crowds lining the Causeway.

IT MADE MANY STOP TO WONDER . . . a child's cross of remembrance made of painted poppies appeared at the base of the Cenotaph at the rear during Remembrance Day ceremony Thursday on lawns of Legislative Buildings. It was noticed after official placing of wreaths had taken place. (Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

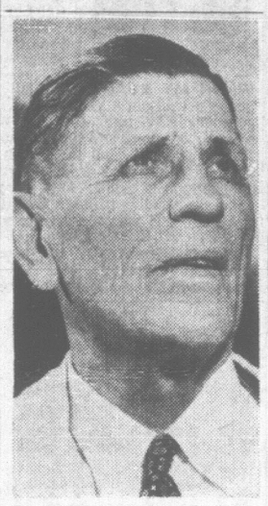

'THEY DIED FOR PEACE' SAY YOUTHS

More than 40 young Victorians held a 24-hour vigil at the Victoria Cenotaph from Wednesday to Thursday to remind the public that servicemen in both world wars "died for peace."

They displayed posters to this efffect but made no demonstration.

"We were not belittling the sacrifices made in the First and Second World Wars," said Bob Munro, 26, organizer for the Peace Action League, "but we wanted to emphasize that both wars were fought with the object of ending war."

The vigil was held in shifts from 5 p.m. Wednesday until 5 p.m. Thursday.

MEDICAL DILEMMA

'Sit, Chat' Days Gone Says Surgeon

One of the most difficult problems facing medical men in the immediate future will be the maintaining of doctor-patient relationships.

Professor Drew Kay, regius professor of surgery at the University of Glasgow, Scotland, said in an interview this morning that medicine has become so complex that the family doctor can no longer maintain the relationship he once had with his patients.

Here to address the annual meeting of the North Pacific Surgical Association, Professor Kay said there has been a marked deterioration between doctors and patients in Britain since the introduction of state medicine.

'INEVITABLE'

"There is no doubt that so far as hospital care is concerned it (state medicine) has provided a magnificent service. But so far as the family doctor is concerned it has not been so successful. It was inevitable and is inevitable that the relationship should suffer.

"Even without state medicine the problem is extremely serious. There was a time when the family doctor could sit and chat with his patients and administer one of a small handful of drugs available. But now the field of medicine is so complex the doctor just doesn't have the time."

Russ Give Their Version Of Collision With Trawler

A Russian skipper's account of a fatal collision with a Canadian trawler was in the hands of fisheries officials today.

The account was received Thursday aboard the Russian factory ship Arsenjy, 45 miles northwest of the northern tip of Vancouver Island.

Naval and fisheries officers packed the Russian ship's boardroom as the Russians gave their version of the accident.

A naval spokesman said the two sides spoke in English and Ukrainian.

The account—concerning the sinking of the Vancouver trawler Aleutian Queen and the death of her cook—will be forwarded to Transport Minister Pickersgill.

No details were released.

Meanwhile, no further light has been shed on the collision which Wednesday took the life of Oud Gronlund, 49, North Surrey.

Skipper of the Aleutian Queen, Oistein Hansen, 53, South Burnaby, was to see Capt. Cyril Burrill, supervising examiner for Master and Mates, this afternoon.

TO MINISTER

His personal account of the crash off the Island's northwest coast will be sent to Mr. Pickersgill.

Depending on the findings, an official inquiry may be held.

Mr. Hansen's lawyer has advised him not to make public circumstances surrounding the collision.

In Port Hardy Wednesday Mr. Hansen said he was hit by the Russian trawler Wexahnk.

At the time the trawler was being towed by the deep-sea tug Besstrashny.

Though holed in the stern, the Vancouver skipper thought he could make it to Bull Harbor 21 miles away.

After two hours struggling through a heavy swell, the 68-foot trawler keeled on to her side.

CLUNG TO MAST

Hansen and his son Robert clung to the mast for a while after the cook jumped into the icy water.

They eventually managed to inflate a liferaft which floated upside down with the cook clinging to the side.

As the raft was righted, Gronlund apparently froze to the underside.

When the pair was rescued 20 minutes later by the U.S. trawler Western Maid Gronlund was dead.

Question uppermost in officials' minds is:

Did the Russians realize the Aleutian Queen was sinking?

If so, why didn't they lend a hand?

Hansen shed some light on this Thursday night when he landed at Vancouver International Airport.

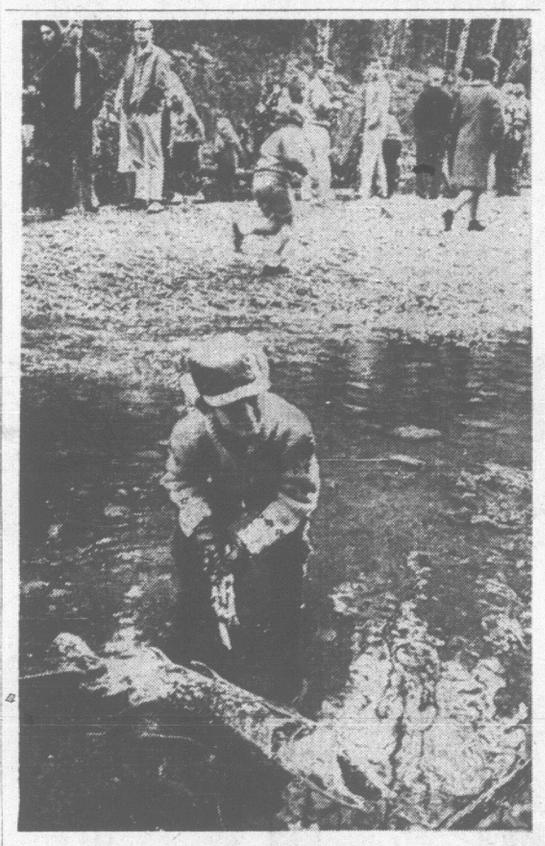

He said he didn't think the Russians were aware his boat was going down. They did know he was damaged, however.

NO COMMENT

Thursday's meeting may have cleared up this point. But naval officials were keeping tight-lipped about it today.

At the meeting was Lt.-Cmdr. Tom Irvine, commander of ocean-escort vessel HMCS Stettler; Capt. Reginald McLellan,

Esquimalt Upset By Bid for Town

Esquimalt officials today expressed disappointment and disapproval of a vote Wednesday night by View Royal ratepayers to form a town.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele said he is disappointed but not unduly so.

"After all it's up to them," he said.

The reeve said he advises the people in View Royal "to be careful before pushing aside Mr. Bracewell's report.

"This man is an expert, and if he recommends amalgamation from the standpoint of both areas he should be listened to."

B. C. Bracewell, former deputy minister of municipal affairs, was hired this summer by Esquimalt and View Royal to report on amalgamation.

Coun. George Argyle said:

"The View Royal decision is very disappointing. I just hope they don't live to regret it."

Over 200 members of the View Royal Ratepayers' Association voted against amalgamation with Esquimalt at a meeting in All Saints' Church Hall. There were only seven dissenters.

The meeting had been called by the association's executive to consider the findings of the Bracewell report.

The association will now present a resolution to the district's fire trustees to proceed with a bylaw asking for a change of status for View Royal from district to town.

Immediate action on the bylaw will be requested. A majority of 60 per cent is needed to make the vote law.

A spokesman for the Panhandle section of View Royal, Mrs. Ethel Rankin, 1440 Craigflower, says the people in her area are dismayed with Wednesday's decision.

"I hope they don't get their vote for a town. It would be disastrous.

"We'll have another Sidney on our hands," she said.

Mrs. Rankin says that the Panhandle group will try still to have its area join Esquimalt.

"We have sent a letter to this effect to Dan Campbell" (municipal affairs minister.)

"Now we can only sit tight and see what develops."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Battle of the Bulge Calls for a New Ally

By Penny Saver

This being bazaar season, Penny Saver has been sending up SOS signals with the dexterity of an Indian chief on the war-path! Like so many of my friends, my will-power is such that I'm completely unable to resist the attractions of the calorie-packed morsels so often served at these delightful functions. I find myself becoming a little panicky when I discover that the waistline of my clothes has become so snug it's taking on the squeezing power of a boa constrictor! Maybe my fright has elaborated the danger a bit, but, nevertheless, the warning signals are flying.

Yet, crazy as it may seem, I still can't turn my back on the whipped cream desserts that lull my menfolk into the illusion that I'm the best cook in the world.

What to do? A local dairy firm has saved my sanity by coming up with a canned whipping cream that's just as delicious as the kind I've used up to now. There's one important difference. Instead of the usual 38 per cent butterfat, this product is only 26 per cent butterfat, just the item for women like me with no will-power when it comes to delicious desserts.

A can containing seven fluid ounces of cream (this means you get about 20 ounces when pressurized into the whipped state) is a wonderful buy at 59 cents. And, as an extra bonus, one can will help you with your Christmas shopping. The firm has a special offer that gives you your choice of 30 dolls, dressed in the native costume of different countries, all available for $1.25. I've seen them and any little girl would love to have one to add to her "family".

The same firm has produced another item that's going to save me dollars when oranges are at the peak price. Having a family who refuses to consider canned orange juice at breakfast, I've spent a small-sized fortune over the years, filling their morning glasses with juice. I tried this new item this week without telling them my secret and none of them guessed.

This new product comes bottled, a 32-ounce bottle being priced at 59 cents and a 64-ounce at $1.09.

The secret of this product's ability to fool such conventionalists as those in our house is the process by which it's prepared.

After being brought to the necessary heating point, it's cooled immediately to a temperature of 38 degrees, thus retaining all the flavor and pungent scent of the fresh fruit.

Are you in danger of losing the war in your kitchen? Phone me at 382-3131 and I'll tell you where you can find these two "weapons".

SERVED AT WEDDING RECEPTION

Groom Prepares Buffet Supper

Following the reception at Holyrood House, where Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Jack Chayeski cut a three-tier wedding cake made by the bride's uncle, Mr. G. Dalrymple, the groom prepared a buffet supper in the McClure Street home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chayeski.

The bride, the former Catherine Louise Staub, is the daughter of Mrs. Alice Staub of Haney, and the late Mr. A. A. Staub.

St. Mark's Anglican Church was decorated with arrangements of chrysanthemums in yellow and white tones when Canon Robert Willis officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, H. Lloyd-Walters, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white taffeta, which featured a white lace jacket. A coronet of crystals and pearls entwined with orange blossoms held her chapel-length veil of nylon. Her only jewelry was a three-strand necklace of crystals, gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of red roses over a white Bible.

The bride's attendants, matron of honor, Mrs. H. Lloyd-Walters, bridesmaids the Misses Eleanor Rolls and Leslie Staub, and flowergirl Susan Lloyd-Walters, dressed alike in gowns of red velveteen, styled along empire lines. They wore matching pill box headpieces with white bows. White roses were in their bouquets.

Const. T. J. Chayeski was best man for his brother, and guests were ushered to their pews by Gordon Schoor and David Staub. Ringbearer was Lance Schoor.

For travelling on honeymoon to the interior of the province, the bride chose a turquoise knit suit with a white feathered hat and black accessories, and a corsage of white roses.

Following their trip, the couple will live in Banff, Alta.

DEAR ABBY...

Where There's Smoke...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My father makes his home with us. He is 82 and getting senile. He can remember what happened 75 years ago, but he forgets what you told him five minutes ago. He has always been a habitual cigarette smoker, and since that is his only pleasure in life we are not going to ask him to give it up. But here's the problem:

He has burnt about a dozen holes in the carpet beside his bed. He has also burnt about 40 holes in the night stand table. He has set the mattress on fire twice and there are cigarette holes in all his pyjamas and his bathrobe, too. He will be the death of me yet. What can I do? I can't stand and watch him all day.

WORRIED SICK.

DEAR WORRIED: He could not only be the death of you—he could be the death of himself and everyone in the house. Someone must keep control of the cigarettes and matches and stay with him while he smokes. Otherwise, the ashes he leaves could be his own.

Chayeski, Mrs. Chayeski, and Deborah, of Nelson, and the Misses Carol Davis and Joe-Ann Sager of Chilliwack.

Scholarship winners, Miss Kathleen Ann Woolley and Robert Tapp, at right, are being congratulated by speaker Mrs. Rose Jaeger and Mrs. W. Groener, extreme left, wife of the German consul, Vancouver, at the tea following the meeting, Wednesday afternoon, of the Women's Canadian Club.

Women Receive Equality In Last 20 Years

GERMANS LAG IN EMANCIPATION

It has only been within the last 20 years that the German woman has been emancipated and accepted on an equal basis with men.

This was brought out by Mrs. Rose Jaeger when she spoke to the Women's Canadian Club, Wednesday afternoon, in the Empress Hotel. She also pointed out that 100 years of struggle had preceded this freedom.

Mrs. Jaeger is wife of the former vice-president of the West German Parliament, now minister of justice.

"From centuries before unification," noted Mrs. Jaeger, "German women had been treated like chattels or just a little better than slaves. Any property a woman had was taken over by her husband—she could not dispose of anything which was hers without his consent.

"During the industrial revolution, when women were forced to take the most menial jobs, all their earnings went to their husbands or fathers. They were never allowed to keep it."

It took an editorial in a socialist publication deploring the situation of women, "worse than animals," to start any movement towards "liberation."

This gave birth to a new idea and a new group which called itself the Union of Women, she said, "It had two purposes at that time—to get better treatment for women workers and better education. Leading the 'revolution' was Helen Lunge, who had seen the women's movement in England, the suffragettes who fought and were thrown into prison to gain equality and the right to vote.

"Before the women's union, education for the female was almost nil—men were the ones who needed education to gain the better jobs and they supposedly had the better minds. But the group's pressure soon opened doors—university doors.

"During the First World War, women were given the chance to prove their capabilities—they had to work at jobs they weren't prepared for and they did them well," continued the speaker.

Soon, technical courses were opened for them and more progress was made.

"In 1891, the Socialist party made the first bid to allow women to vote — they were laughed at—but after the war, a law was passed and women were allowed the vote."

During the 12 years of dictatorship, continued the speaker, any type of freedom was suppressed.

"But following the Second World War, when the constitution for the new Germany was passed in 1948, one of the clauses gave women equality in every way with men. Now, every type of educational advantage is offered to women — even technological courses for older women are now planned. They can hold the best employment positions.

"And," added Mrs. Jaeger, smiling, "they elected the last parliament. After all, there are 4,000,000 more females than males in the country."

Mrs. Jaeger was introduced by president Miss Elizabeth Forbes and thanked by Mrs. Fred M. Corbett.

Winners of the club's two $150 scholarships were introduced by Mrs. John Smith. They were Miss Kathleen Ann Woolley, Esquimalt Senior Secondary School, and Robert Tapp, Mt. Douglas Senior Secondary School.

DITCH 'BRAND NAME' THINKING

Uvic Professor Cautions That Time Is Running Out

The insular curriculum of the education system came under fire Wednesday evening when Dr. Geoffrey Mason, professor of psychology at the University of Victoria, spoke on "Evaluating the Home Economics Program" at a meeting of the Victoria Home Economics and Dietetic Association held in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

"We are all becoming part of a mass population, using a brand names approach in identifying ourselves and accepting society as passive consumers.

"The old values no longer suffice. Conditions in any part of the world now affect us all. This means that we must have a nobler concern of our ethical and moral position toward countries less prosperous than ourselves."

Dr. Mason reasoned that, although Canada and other Western nations have been helping the emerging countries for quite a period, the help has not been as successful as it should be.

"Too often the assistance was motivated by charitable and religious reasons; far too often economical and political expediency were the prime incentives."

He urged re-assessment of motives, emphasizing that the old ones "often lead to suspicion, perpetuating an atmosphere of distrust and hostility."

Dr. Mason continued, "Time is running out. Nations blessed with abundance have a moral responsibility toward those that are less fortunate. The values, goals and aspirations of all people should be recognized. All should have an adequate level of food, clothing, basic medical care and education."

His main criticism of the educational system was, "We are too much concerned with preserving the status quo and our own culture. We do little in our schools or universities to mold a world-conscious attitude in the younger generation."

Dr. Mason told his audience that the home economics class was the perfect starting point for such a program.

"You are teaching future wives and mothers, and I have a lot of faith in the power of the hand that rocks the cradle.

"The concerns of your syllabus are practically universal. All people's lives are centred around a home."

He suggested that home economics teachers should introduce programs in which students should compare family patterns in various countries, studying child rearing, the question of clothing, shelter and food and the various types of home furnishings and architecture to be found throughout the world.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. J. Kirchner and thanked by Mrs. J. M. Kennaird.

Children's Village

Miss Lorna Stuart, one of the Canadian counsellors of the International Children's Village, held this summer, will be guest speaker when the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club holds a dinner meeting in the War Amputations Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Avenue, on Monday at 6:15 p.m. She will be accompanied by Miss Trudy Clark, who attended the village. In charge of the program is Miss Anne Black.

Chapter Has Busy Program

A program of social activities has kept members of the Omicron Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi busy.

The first event was a going-away party for Mrs. K. Regan who is now making her home in Calgary. The party was in the home of Mrs. R. McKenzie and, as the home is new, each guest brought a plant for the hostess' new garden. A silver spoon was also presented to Mrs. E. Mayo who has now left the city.

A luncheon at the Princess Mary restaurant was the next social affair.

Mrs. R. Vickery was winner of a novel competition held at a recent rushing party. Each member had to make a hat denoting her profession or that of her husband. Members of the Phi Eta Chapter also attended.

The Old Esquimalt Road home of Mrs. E. Finland was scene of a preferential tea, held in honor of new members. They included Mrs. E. Holley, Mrs. J. Campbell, Mrs. M. Arrol, Miss D. Lowe and Miss Pat Prince.

Special guests included Mrs. L. Morrison, social sponsor for Phi Eta Chapter; Miss Dawn Wootten and Miss Mary-Ina Bryant, from the same chapter. Members attending from Omicron Chapter were Mrs. M. Aldersmith, member adviser; Mrs. R. Dhur, vice-president; Mrs. R. McKenzie, president; Mrs. W. Reid, Mrs. R. Fretter, the Misses Doreen Poole, Maureen Hicks, Ruby Wilks, Helen Wright and Dorothy Hayes.

Final event on the program was a Christmas exhibition at Norway House which included an art display, Christmas gifts, novelties, white elephants and refreshment hour.

Centennial Project of National Council of Women

UNIVERSITY TO HOUSE LIBRARY ON CANADIAN WOMEN

To mark Canada's centennial, the National Council of Women will establish the Lady Aberdeen Library at the University of Waterloo in Waterloo, Ont. The library, previously housed in a Winnipeg home, is an extensive collection of books written by and about Canadian women and their contribution in many fields.

News of the centennial project was released by Mrs. H. H Steen, national president, when she came from Vancouver to attend a Founder's Day coffee party and meeting, arranged by the Victoria Council of Women and held in Pendray Hall on Tuesday.

Mrs. Steen told the many guests that the national council would also be taking an active part in promoting Expo 67 being in charge of advance ticket sales. She also outlined the aims and objectives of the council.

Another speaker was Mrs. B. Kane, New Westminster, provincial president. She described the functions of the provincial group as that of organizing new councils in the province, strengthening ties between existing councils and presenting provincial resolutions to the provincial government on matters of community importance.

Dr. Henrietta Anderson, education chairman for the local council, asked all individual and organization members to get behind the council's drive to see a technical school established in Victoria.

"The provincial government promised us one three years ago but all we get is procrastination, procrastination and the inevitable 'passing of the buck.'

"When I saw the deputy minister two years ago he told me blatantly that there was no demand for such a school here."

Dr. Anderson pointed out that compulsory courses at the University of Victoria and the University of British Columbia give student teachers knowledge to be used in the training of the mentally retarded.

"Yet," she continued, "to my knowledge, there is no compulsion brought on those taking these courses to use their knowledge in this field once they've graduated."

Welcoming guests at the Founders' Day party were president Mrs. Bert Noel and vice-president Mrs. A. R. Coleman.

Special guests included Mrs. Percy B. Scurrah, Alderman Lily Wilson, Miss Lily Savory, Dr. Marian Sherman and Mrs. W. B. Mortimer. Miss Savory, a long-time member of the local council, made exquisite floral corsages which were presented to Mrs. Noel, Mrs. Coleman and the honor guests.

Presiding at the refreshment table were Mrs. D. Cox, Mrs. E. P. Thomas, Mrs. A. E. Raymond and Mrs. R. B. Shaw. Also assisting were Mrs. Mortimer, Mrs. R. D. Bennett, Dr. Sherman, Mrs. T. B. Lowe, Mrs. C. E. Richards, Miss D. V. Crighton, Mrs. H. I. McKenzie, Miss R. M. Simpson and Mrs. H. Summers Clark.

In charge of arrangements were Mrs. Noel, Mrs. C. D. MacLean and Mrs. A. E. MacMillan. The latter had prepared all the cakes, cookies and sandwiches for the four-hour party.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Can You Make an Honest Appraisal of Your Frame?

I don't know where the expression came from but do you remember it a few years ago? "How high is high?" Today I am writing about "How fat is fat?" If a woman is very much overweight, of course she knows it. If she has been the correct weight for years and suddenly finds that she must use a safety pin to fasten her skirt and is afraid to take a deep breath for fear of splitting the seams, she knows it!

Lowman

However, for the one who is moderately overweight or pleasingly plump it is sometimes difficult for her to know just what her ideal weight is. The decision is often also confused by varying opinions of family and friends. One will say, "Don't pay any attention to what they say. You are not overweight! You are just right." Another, "I hate to tell you, but you really are getting fat and it's not becoming to you."

How fat is fat, or when are you fat? How do you determine this? There are excellent height and weight charts available which give you the ideal weights if you have a small, medium or a large build. One of these will guide you. Then you can judge somewhat simply by the way you look and the way you feel. You must be honest with yourself and look at yourself objectively.

There is also the "pinch test." Pinch yourself on the back of your upper arm or on your abdomen. If you get an inch or more between your thumb and fingers watch out!

Life insurance companies have proven that those who are overweight do not live as long as those of normal or less poundage. Of course, there are exceptions. Therefore your ideal weight is the weight at which you are apt to live longest. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company says that a person's desirable weight is what he or she weighed at the age of 25. You are allowed 10 per cent plus or minus. More weight than that and you are approaching the obese classification.

The sizes of the wrists and ankles have been considered by some to be a guide as to body build. You can, to some extent, classify your own frame. However, the wrist does not seem to me to be a very reliable gauge. Lots of women with a medium build have very small wrists.

If you would like to have my calorie chart send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Alderman to Open Annual Bazaar

Alderman Lily Wilson will officiate at the opening of the annual fall bazaar of Island Temple No. 8, Pythian Sisters, Saturday afternoon in the lower K of P Hall, 723 Cormorant Street.

The affair, commencing at 11 a.m., will feature stalls of home cooking, candy fancywork, doll clothes, novelties, knitting, aprons, Christmas cards, "post office", and penny sale. Also planned by general conveners Mrs. V. Barry and Mrs. C. Mullen are raffles and a door prize.

Tea will be served in the afternoon, following a smorgasbord luncheon beginning at 11:30 a.m.

ECUMENICAL COUNCIL TO VOTE MONDAY

U.S. Bishops Disturbed by Anti N-Arms Document

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican ecumenical council received today a drastically revised modern world problems document that condemns modern war and denounces deterrent policies based on nuclear weapons.

A number of U.S. bishops were reported deeply disturbed at the wording of the new text, complaining privately they felt it would weigh heavily against the U.S. government's defence strategy.

In the view of these bishops the Soviet government can much more easily ignore any council statement than Washington.

Other bishops, who had opposed an earlier version of the document, expressed satisfaction with the rewording, which eliminates a statement that the possession of nuclear arms as a defensive deterrent is not illegitimate.

URGED BY U.S. BISHOPS

The reference accepting a nuclear deterrent had been put in the document at the urging of U.S. bishops. But its passage caused a storm of criticism during debate last month and a drafting commission undertook the rewriting.

Portions of the still-secret text disclosed by council sources speak of the horrors of destruction made possible by new scientific weapons, and say:

"In our time, which possesses atomic power, it is irrational to say that war is any longer a suitable means of redress."

This wording apparently questions the acceptability of a war of retaliation without specifically ruling out a country's right to self-defence.

The text adds there is in the world today "a strategy of deterrent which many consider the most efficacious of all means by which a certain kind of peace can be safeguarded."

Whatever can be said of this peace, the text adds, "Christians must be convinced that the arms race . . . is not a suitable way to defend peace because the so-called balance that results from this arms race, rather than eliminating the causes of war, little by little aggravates them."

Voting on the new text is scheduled to begin Monday without further debate. There have been reports, however, of pressure to reopen debate.

The text appeals to world political and military leaders to ponder their responsibilities to their people and to God.

Presiding officers announced the result of a vote taken Thursday on a crucial section of the assembly's document on missionary activity. The section says missionary bishops should be given a wider role at the Vatican in directing missionary activities.

In the voting, 1,428 council fathers approved, and only nine opposed, but 712 other prelates approved with reservations.

MORE U.S. TROOPS OFF TO VIET NAM

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson Thursday authorized the sending of additional U.S. troops to fight in South Viet Nam. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara did not estimate how many more troops will be sent to augment the 160,000 already there, saying the United States does not want to tip off the Viet Cong in advance as to what forces they will face in the future.

Preparation

Wilt the cabbage leaves in boiling water. Combine meat, onion, rice and half of the salt and pepper. Form into 8 portions. Place one on each cabbage leaf, roll securely and fasten with toothpicks. Place in heavy skillet. Add tomato juice, sugar, vinegar and remainder of salt and pepper. Cover and simmer about one hour.

Variations: Try these intriguing and challenging variations of our basic recipe. For the meat, use ground beef, pork (or a combination of the two), lamb or ham. The seasoning may be salt and pepper or you can add cayenne, paprika or a dash of nutmeg or 2 tablespoons of cream of mushroom soup mix (dry) or ½ teaspoon poultry seasoning. For the liquid use tomato juice, or combine 2 cans tomato sauce with one of water, or one cup tomato soup with ½ cup of milk. Use brown sugar instead of white. Try adding ½ cup of cottage cheese and ¼ cup minced celery to meat mixture. Or combine ½ cup dairy sour cream to the cup of tomato soup to make the liquid. All variations can be baked at 350 degrees or simmered in a covered skillet for about an hour. But for best results always use Delta Long Grain Rice. These recipes are not suitable for instant pre-cooked rice.

Where Power Grid Failed Still Puzzles U.S. Experts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government and industry power experts study today the pattern of Tuesday night's massive blackout in which a power failure surged through city after city in the northeastern United States and in the Ottawa and Toronto areas.

Chairman Joseph C. Swidler of the Federal Power Commission, who heads the investigation, said the panel wants to find out "how the cascading process worked" and also what "reverse action" was taken to restore service.

The blackout at its peak enveloped 80,000 square miles in an eight state area and affected up to 30,000,000 persons.

Swidler indicated he had some doubts as to whether he would have a preliminary report to President Johnson ready by this weekend as he first had hoped.

After meeting for 14 hours Thursday, Swidler said the problem still was one of finding where the failure occurred.

"The breakdown is not traceable to any unit. The systems went back into service with the same equipment. The problem of tracing is a complex one."

YOUTH WINS WHEAT TITLE

TORONTO (CP) — Alberta youngsters are showing their oats—especially when it comes to walking off with world wheat championships.

Larry C. Hixt, a 20-year-old farmer from Beiseker, Alta., 20 miles northeast of Calgary, was awarded the wheat crown Thursday for his sample of the Chinook variety at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair.

The 1964 title went to Larry Gibson, 19, of Carbon, Alta.

In other awards, Albert Luff of Ladner, B.C., placed first in the section for small seed legumes with an entry of red clover.

BUGS FLY TOO WELL

"When the saleslady held up Cameo "Little Nothing" in new Cantrece nylon, I almost laughed. What a funny, crinkly stocking. But when I stretched it on, "Little Nothing" was suddenly made-to-measure. Not a wrinkle or sag. Just fit, fit, fit, with no let-down. (And me, the original baggy-stocking girl.) Soft matte finish. And sheer like crazy. Now I have a complete "Little Nothing" wardrobe. Plainstitch. Mesh. And a wicked nude heel. (The baggy-stocking girl is gone for good.)

Honestly, Cameo, where have you been all my life?

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Yes, Virginia, The Steve Lawrence Show will bite the dust on Monday, Dec. 13.

The villain is ratings, again. The Lawrence series was knocked off by its NBC-TV competitor, "Run for Your Life," a weekly one-hour show starring Ben Gazzara as a man with a terminal illness who decides to live to the utmost in his remaining time.

Stephen

The young singer's musical variety show was nothing out of the ordinary. He, like many others before him, also proved to be not strong enough to carry an hour show.

Lawrence makes a great act. He has style, personality and, above all, a good singing voice. His appearances as guest on other shows have been thoroughly enjoyed. But an hour a week was just too much. A consolation is that he's not alone in the category.

CBS-TV plans to replace the Lawrence series with "Art Linkletter's Hollywood Talent Scouts," which was a summer show.

Look for a specially filmed segment with Charlton Heston on the banks of the Nile in the first Linkletter outing Dec. 20.

Humans are out in an upcoming episode of "Lassie." Other animals will support the canine star. Even series regular Robert Bray will be out of the segment.

In with Lassie are a skunk, squirrels and rabbits and a fawn, among other animals.

The heavy is, of course, a wolf.

The mention of Lassie always reminds me of the legendary vaudeville team of Smith & Dale, who have on occasion been seen as guests on such programs as The Ed Sullivan Show.

One of their famous acts is the "Dr. Kronkhite" sketch which begins like this:

"Are you a doctor?"

"Yes, I'm a doctor."

"I'm dubious."

"How do you do, Mr. Dubious. What can I do for you?"

"I'm sick as a dog."

"Well, you came to the right place. I'm also a veterinarian."

Joe Smith, 81, will make his first TV appearance without his partner, Charlie Dale, in a dramatic role on "Trials of O'Brien," Nov. 20. He'll play the role of a delicatessen owner.

Smith is also a poet of modest accomplishments. Here is his poem entitled "Sleep":

"Some people count sheep, when they can't sleep.
"But I have a method that's wise.
"When I can't sleep, I don't count sheep;
"I just let them pull the wool over my eyes."

Golden Rule Status Given Funeral Firm

Hayward's Funeral Chapel of Victoria has been elected to membership in the Order of the Golden Rule — an international affiliation of funeral directors—for the fifth consecutive year.

"We consider this a high honor," director William Hayward said today. "Renewal of membership is based on our ability to provide modern, comprehensive service at prices which are reasonable and just."

'NOT BY GOLD'

As Victoria member of the Order of the Golden Rule, Hayward's chapel is authorized to display a knight-and-shield emblem on which is emblazoned the motto: "Service measured not by gold, but by the Golden Rule."

Alfred W. Francis, co-director of Haywards, said members of the order are located in towns and cities all over the world.

"We are continually seeking new and better ways of serving bereaved families," he said.

Golden Rule members are pledged to serve families of all income groups, including families which have no funds to pay for a funeral.

Action Sought On Control Of Starlings

Control of a bird with a ravenous appetite for berries is high on a list of problems to be discussed at the annual convention of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture at the Empress Hotel Nov. 23-24.

Lower Fraser Valley farmers will submit a resolution calling for immediate government action to control the starling population — increasing at an alarming rate throughout the province.

The bird with a dark metallic green and purple plumage and about 8½ inches long, somewhat resembles a blackbird.

Since a few birds were first sighted in the Okanagan Valley in 1946, the population has soared—some say well over the 1,000,000 mark.

The birds which migrated from eastern Canada are now to be found in most parts of the province.

Mainland growers claim they face economic ruin within the next few years unless effective action is taken.

They report a 20 per cent loss to their berry crops last year.

More than 150 delegates representing farm organizations throughout the province are expected for the meeting.

Speakers include J. H. Warren, deputy minister of trade and commerce, and Alex Turner, B.C. deputy minister of agriculture.

Resolutions to be submitted to the convention range from requests for a comprehensive crop insurance scheme to a solution to the farm labor shortage.

Another subject to be discussed as the need for a better program of roadside drainage to offset the flooding of farm lands.

This program plagues many areas on Vancouver Island and the B.C. mainland.

Delegates will also seek government action to improve grazing and range lands for cattle in the interior of B.C.

Concerned at the steadily increasing auto insurance rates, mainland growers will also submit a resolution requesting the government to investigate the feasibility of taking over car insurance.

Growers are also dissatisfied with the government road spraying program for controlling roadside weeds.

They will request instead that slopes on rural roads be seeded with grass.

This would permit easier control of weeds and would also help to control erosion.

PLANE BURNS

we have no plans for grounding 727 jets."

The survival of the crew proided an opportunity for investigators to obtain first-hand expert opinion on the cause.

Dr. Hilmon Castle, a medical examiner for the Federal Aviation Agency, said he found bodies "strewn along the aisle, some of them piled on top of each other."

There are Canadians listed on the plane's passenger list.

One of those killed was well known in Western Canada. He was Bill Linderman, secretary-treasurer of the Rodeo Cowboy Association and many times world champion when he competed in the rodeo circuit including Calgary.

Linderman, best known as a steer wrestler, retired six years ago. He earned more than $439,000 in rodeo competition.

The plane was United's Flight 227 originating in New York City with stops in Cleveland, Chicago, Denver and Salt Lake City en route to San Francisco.

TWO OTHERS CRASHED

It was the third 727 involved in an airline accident since August—and the second this week.

The 72-ton, tri-jet airliner approached the airport from the south for an on-schedule landing.

"We had a hard bump, started swerving from side to side," said passenger Ralph S. Nesbitt, a Santa Monica, Calif., salesman. "And flames broke out from the rear.

"People were thrown all over the place. It was horrible. The heat was terrible."

Nesbitt said he dived to safety through on open window, onto a wing and through a sheet of flames to the ground.

The interior of the plane blackened into charcoal. The Deputy Salt Lake County attorney, Warren M. Weggeland, said only the arms and legs of victims were distinguishable in the debris.

The plane was piloted by Capt. Gail C. Keimierer, 48, of Denver. The captain and his crew survived.

C.A.B. WILL INVESTIGATE

The C.A.B. said in Washington 12 investigators were en route to the crash. A Washington spokesman for the Federal Aviation Agency said it had no plans for grounding 727 jets.

"At this point, the FAA can see no relationship between the three accidents," the spokesman said. "Grounding now would be premature."

Pader Hogue, chief flight safety engineer for Boeing Aircraft Co., said he would take part in the investigation.

"I think it's a fine airplane and recent unfortunate experiences are in my opinion unrelated," he said.

Hogue was in Cincinnati Thursday night to investigate the crash of a Boeing 727 jetliner Monday night in which 58 of 62 persons aboard were killed.

Another 727 crashed into Lake Michigan just off the shore of Lake Forest, Ill., Aug. 16 killing all 30 persons aboard.

The FAA said three passengers on the jet that burned at Salt Lake City were FAA supervisors. The agency said the supervisors, on a routine flight, escaped serious injury.

Boeing said it has delivered about 195 airplanes of the 727 type. United said it purchased 40 of them at a cost of $185,000,000. The 727 has a capacity of 92 passengers and six crew members. It cruises between 550 and 600 miles an hour.

Tribe Trial To Continue On Monday

Hearing of a charge of impaired driving against David Tribe, 4511 Pachena Place, will continue in central court Monday.

The trial began Wednesday when an RCMP Staff-Sergeant, Angus Robson, gave evidence he was driving on Cedar Hill Cross Road near Blenkinsop about midnight Sept. 18.

He said a car drove over to his side of the street and it appeared as if there was going to be a head-on collision. He said he veered to the right and the cars sideswiped one another.

S/Sgt. Robson said the accused in his opinion was intoxicated. He testified he saw Tribe pour the contents of a bottle of rye on the road after the accident.

. . . GORDON RESIGNS

in that position until the portfolio is filled by Mr. Pearson.

The successor to Mr. Gordon as finance minister was not immediately known here today. Two names are being mentioned however as possible successors.

They are Robert Winters who successfully staged a comeback in politics when he won in the Toronto constituency of York West. Trade and Commerce Minister Sharp is also believed in the running for the key post. He has been frequently mentioned in the past as a possible finance minister if Mr. Gordon should resign.

TRIP TO EUROPE

Mr. Gordon is not leaving Parliament. He was scheduled to leave Ottawa Thursday night for a trip to Europe, had the Liberals been successful in obtaining a good majority in the election. With the failure to win that majority, Mr. Gordon postponed his trip by one day. He attended the cabinet meeting Wednesday and Thursday presented his resignation, and after a talk with Mr. Pearson Thursday afternoon, it was accepted. Mr. Gordon was scheduled to leave for Europe tonight.

After his vacation Mr. Gordon is expected to return to Ottawa and attend the Commons. However, he is not expected to remain long in political life. In talks with friends, he has often made it clear that once the time came that he felt he could no longer be of any help to Mr. Pearson he would prefer to get out of politics and public life and return to private business in Toronto.

STRONG RUMORS

There were strong rumors during the election campaign that Winters, a leading Canadian industrialist, would be offered the finance portfolio if he was elected. He won it with a majority of 17,000. He was minister of public works and reconstruction minister in the Liberal government of Louis St. Laurent. He was defeated in 1957.

Mr. Winters retired from public life after that defeat to go into business. He was successful in the business world and when he announced his decision to seek re-election it immediately sparked rumors that he would be named finance minister. So strong did the rumors become that Mr. Pearson during the campaign felt compelled to say at Wallaceburg, Ont., during a speech, that he would keep Mr. Gordon on as finance minister in the new Liberal government.

But the election stalemate changed the situation. Mr. Gordon in his letter of resignation wrote:

CAMPAIGN 'SUPERB'

"For many months, as one of your senior ministers, I urged you to call an election on the grounds we needed a majority to govern the country well and to ensure the kind of stability I thought was needed. As chairman of the Liberal party's national campaign committee I believed that if you conducted a good campaign we would obtain a comfortable majority. Your campaign was superb in every way. You could not have done any better or any more than you did.

"The conclusion is quite clear. I gave you bad advice, both as minister and as campaign chairman. I accept full responsibility for this and therefore submit my resignation from the cabinet. If there is anything I can ever do for you at any time, you know all you have to do is let me know."

In reply Mr. Pearson wrote in part as follows:

"I cannot accept your assumption of responsibility for the decision to hold the recent election which, while it confirmed our position as a government with considerably the largest support in the House of Commons, did not give us the majority of members we sought. You and others advised me to hold the election at this time, for reasons which seemed perfectly valid, but the decision was mine and the sole responsibility for the decision remains mine."

HINGED ON ELECTION

Mr. Gordon and Mr. Pearson talked over the resignation at lunch Thursday at 24 Sussex Street, the prime minister's residence. Later it was disclosed by Allan Donnelly, Mr. Gordon's executive assistant, that the possibility of the resignation had hinged on the election outcome.

The minister had in effect staked his portfolio on his gamble that in urging the prime minister to call an election at this time the Liberal minority government would be returned with a healthy majority.

Mr. Gordon had gambled and lost.

In giving the election advice the minister had said if he turned out to be wrong he would resign. Consequently he felt honor bound to submit his resignation.

The resignation however came as a surprise despite hints dropped by several persons close to the prime minister that he would be acting almost immediately to reconstruct his cabinet. It was at 8:15 p.m. Ottawa time that the prime minister's press secretary called political reporters at their homes with word that the minister would be resigning "within 10 minutes."

Ten minutes later at the East Block, the prime minister's office distributed a press release comprising a one paragraph announcement of the resignation. Attached were the letters.

Mr. Pearson and Mr. Gordon have been life-long friends.

REBUILD PARTY

It was Mr. Gordon who worked with Mr. Pearson after the 1958 election disaster in which the Liberals suffered a smashing defeat, to rebuild the party organization and its strength. Mr. Gordon won his Toronto Davenport seat in the 1962 election and when the 1963 campaign put the Liberals into office, Mr. Pearson named him finance minister.

But after bringing down his first budget Mr. Gordon was in difficulties. He had recruited three "outsiders" from Toronto —violating a long standing tradition—to help him prepare the budget.

The first budget was a disaster from the government's point of view. Mr. Gordon who had held the reputation of one of the "brightest" of the "bright new Liberals" that Mr. Pearson had attracted into political life, saw his reputation plummet as a finance expert. The opposition pounded and harried the finance minister but his close friend, the prime minister, stood by him throughout those dark days.

RESISTED PRESSURES

Pressures were on Mr. Pearson to remove Mr. Gordon from the finance portfolio but he resisted them and insisted that the minister be given another chance. Mr. Gordon's subsequent budgets did little to enhance his reputation with business and investment circles. Other Liberals regarded him as a "liability" to the prime minister and the administration, but Mr. Pearson refused to remove him.

However, when the election urged on the prime minister primarily by Mr. Gordon and Keith Davey, national Liberal organizer, failed to produce the much sought after majority, Mr. Pearson finally accepted the resignation.

Reports were circulating in Ottawa today that Mr. Davey will also soon be resigning from his post as national organizer. Before this campaign, however, he had told newsmen that it would be his last election campaign in that office.

. . . SURGEON

Professor Kay said the greatest single stride made in surgery during the past 10 years was in the field of cardiac surgery.

"There have been tremendous strides made in all fields, of course," he said. "But I think that the greatest strides have without doubt been made in the cardiac surgery field."

Commenting on papers presented to the 200 surgeons attending the two day meeting at the Empress Hotel Professor Kay said the incidence of stomach ulcers, the subject under discussion this morning, had shown a slight decrease during the past seven years.

"From the turn of the century there was a steady increase in the incidence of stomach ulcers until about seven years ago," he said. "It may be too early to say definitely, but it would appear that we are over the peak and there will now be a steady decline.

Professor Kay said that while the cause of stomach ulcers had never definitely been pinned down, there did appear to be a relationship between intensive worry and the ulcer.

U.S. Backs British Plea For Rhodesia Sanctions

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United States said today it has ordered a comprehensive embargo on all arms shipments to Rhodesia and taken other steps to support Britain's efforts to suppress the independence move of Rhodesia's white-minority government.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg made this announcement at an urgent session of the United Nations Security Council, where British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart declared earlier that Britain has ruled out the use of force to punish the Rhodesian government of Ian Smith.

Goldberg urged all countries to join in tough economic restrictions to back Britain. He said the U.S. has closed its consulate in Salisbury and has decided to bar the importation of sugar from Rhodesia in 1966.

Other measures include suspension of action on applications for loans and credit from Rhodesia and warning of all potential investors of the grave risk involved in Rhodesian investments.

CRITICIZES BRITAIN

Ghana's Foreign Minister Alex Quaison-Sackey, the first African speaker in the council, was strongly critical of Britain's reluctance to use force in suppressing the "rebellion."

"We are not here to endorse half - hearted measures," he said.

Quaison-Sackey said the African states are prepared to give all possible assistance to Rhodesia's non -whites, including force.

Stewart told the council that if British measures against the Smith government are to succeed they must have the good will of the entire international community.

"We do not believe that the use of military force can solve these problems. I invite those who ask for military force to look around the world today and see how many places violence and armed conflict rage."

His remarks were addressed obviously to African countries which have been pressing Britain to use military force to subdue the rebellion by Rhodesia against Britain.

OPENED DEBATE

Stewart was the opening speaker in the council session called by Britain in the wake of Thursday's Rhodesian declaration of independence. African countries were expected to press demands for economic and diplomatic penalties by the entire UN membership against Rhodesia's white government.

Taking note of charges by African countries that Britain exercised too much patience in dealing with Smith's regime, the British foreign secretary declined:

"This illegal declaration of independence and the measures which Britain is taking mean inevitable distress and suffering to Rhodesia, including many Rhodesians of all races who detest the illegal actions and are wholly innocent of it."

Stewart added this comment to critics of British policy:

"Let me remind you of one quality of the British: Once we have decided on an action we do not hesitate to carry it through."

He appealed to the council to condemn the action taken by Rhodesia in declaring its independence and to urge the entire UN membership to support Britain in applying trade and economic penalties.

master of the fisheries department vessel Laurier, and Capt. Mitchell Gay, fisheries department marine superintendent in Vancouver.

Report of the confidential meeting is in the hands of Capt. McLellan. He will hand it over to department of transport officials in Vancouver on his return.

A spokesman for the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union said he didn't know if the union would intervene in the episode.

"We're waiting to hear what happened before we take any action."

The dead man belonged to the UFAW.

The spokesman said there had been similar cases of collision with Russian trawlers in the past.

PAID DAMAGES

In most cases the Russians have paid damages if their ship was in the wrong.

If no agreement can be reached between the two parties, the episode could be taken to the International Marine Court.

On the local scene, fishermen were enraged at the Russian fleet's action in northern Canadian waters.

Said Herbert Smith of Victoria, skipper of the Elwin S.: "It's a tough way to bring this about, but maybe there'll be some action now."

Along with most fishermen, Mr. Smith would like to see a baseline from northern Vancouver Island to the Queen Charlottes.

The 12-mile fishing limit would then extend outward from the baseline instead of from the B.C. and island coasts as at present.

This would exclude other nationalities from Queen Charlotte Sound and Hecate Strait.

Sonny Ross, chairman of Campbell River Chamber of Commerce fishing committee, said the Russians should be moved out of the area immediately.

He said: "If we don't move them out fast they'll establish an historic right and then we'll never get them out."

HER MOTTO: 'EVERY VOTE COUNTS'

Housewife Gains Support For Election Law Changes

The dishes were piled high at the home of housewife Judy Nyquist this morning.

It wasn't that Mrs. Nyquist couldn't be bothered to put her hands in the sudsy water.

It was just that the telephone wouldn't stop ringing.

It's been that way at the Nyquist household, 1849 Carnarvon, since Tuesday night when the mother of four announced she was petitioning for new election laws.

A deputy returning officer for the past three federal elections, Mrs. Nyquist, 49, is going to bat for the thousands who one way or another lose their vote at election time.

Chief aim of the former nurse's aid is to get votes for hospital patients who under present laws are robbed of their right to mark the little X.

HOSPITAL SUPPORT

Both major Victoria hospitals have offered their support.

Royal Jubilee administrator George Masters has said he will circulate Mrs. Nyquist's petition forms in each ward.

And St. Joseph's will do likewise if doctors agree.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Nyquist has received 180 phone calls from people offering their names for the petition.

And six housewives have agreed to canvass door-to-door for signatures.

Victoria MP David Groos and Esquimalt-Saanich MP George Chatterton have both agreed to support Mrs. Nyquist's petition when it finally reaches Ottawa.

She is still awaiting word from Uvic student council president Paul Williamson as to whether students will lend weight to her bid.

Students are among the many who lose the right to vote unless they travel to their home riding—sometimes many miles away.

Hospital patients come under the same ruling which means that unless the hospital happens to be in their home district or the patients were in hospital when the electoral lists were prepared, they lose out on the vote.

ALL COUNT

Said Mrs. Nyquist: "It's the principle of the thing. Every vote counts.

"These people are away from their home riding through no fault of their own and it's wrong they should lose their vote."

Next week, Mrs. Nyquist will forsake the kitchen for a few days and travel up-Island to try and boost support for her petition.

Meanwhile, the phone keeps on ringing.

B.C. Woman Killed

ORVILLE, Wash. (AP)—Miss Jenny Williams, 37, of Enderby, B.C., was fatally injured Thursday when the auto she was driving left a country road west of here and flipped over, throwing her out, the state patrol said.

LIFE IN JAIL FOR RAPE

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (UPI)—A white youth was convicted Thursday of the rape of a Negro teen-ager, the first such conviction in the memory of state legal sources.

The jury, which deliberated almost six hours, turned down the death penalty and set punishment for lanky Norman Cannon, 19, at life in the state penitentiary.

Ike Suffered Full-Scale Heart Attack

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Doctors said today that the attack of chest pain that former president Dwight D. Eisenhower suffered Wednesday was a full-scale heart attack.

The announcement was made at a routine news briefing by Capt. Wallace Hitchcock, Fort Gordon public information officer.

The five-star general suffered his first seizure of heart pain Tuesday morning. He seemed to be making a good recovery from the attack when the pain returned more severely Wednesday.

Hitchcock said Eisenhower has experienced "no further pain" since the second of two chest pain attacks since he was hospitalized at Fort Gordon.

He said Eisenhower is "in excellent spirits" and "enjoyed his breakfast this morning."

Eisenhower is receiving intermittent oxygen and his blood pressure and circulation are stabilized, Hitchcock said.

"Further electrocardiograms and blood studies since the second episode (on Wednesday) reveal that Gen. Eisenhower has had a definite heart attack," Hitchcock said.

He said that Eisenhower is being given standard anti-coagulants and regular tests to determine progression of his attack.

Suspended Sentence

VANCOUVER (CP) — Danny Richmond, 29, described by his lawyer as one of the top jazz drummers in the world, has received a two-year suspended sentence for possession of drugs and was banned from entering Canada for two years.

Richmond, an American citizen who plays with a jazz band that visited here last week, had pleaded guilty to the charge.

Forget the miracle-promising commercials.

The cure to your run-down feeling, nervous irritation and most other aches and pains is in yourself.

About 250 Victoria matrons are engaged in proving this statement by YM-YWCA physical director Art Burgess.

"They come to the Y all shook-up, nervous, irritable, bored and worried about their failing youth and a thousand other problems.

"Afer a few weeks of controlled physical training all those restraining cobwebs are disappearing," Mr. Burgess says. "They turn the clock back. They are rejuvenated."

WILL POWER

The essential ingredient for the cure is already in the individual, the physical director says. It's will power — will power to start, develop and maintain a physical training program.

"No pill can give you that," he said. "The elusive fountain of youth is nothing more than exercise, exercise and more exercise."

The women's physical training program at the Y has a smaller drop-out rate than the men's, less than 25 per cent against more than 40 per cent for the so-called stronger sex.

"Yet they're as busy, if not busier then we are," Mr. Burgess says.

Perhaps they try harder because they're more prone to everyday neuroses, and more aware of deficiencies in their personalities, he says.

Group work receives a good part of the credit for the success of the Y's physical programs. Most women confess they're fed up with the housewife's lonely life of quiet desperation."

NOT ALONE

With group training they see that they're not alone.

The contact with others carrying the same load, and seeking the same relief, works into what Mr. Burgess calls "a nice piece of social therapy."

"They open up, they let go, they get a new lease on life."

The atmosphere is relaxed. Led by former physical director Archie McKinnon, the first part of the one hour-class is devoted to musical calisthenics.

Piano music is supplied by an 87-year-old ex-vaudevillian Paddy Heaton. His form and zest would put most 40-year-olds to shame.

SWIMMING

The next half-hour is taken up with a swimming class.

Says Mr. McKinnon: "The girls come out of there feeling that life is worth living and they live it well."

Mr. Burgess says diets are senseless because they don't get to the root of the problem.

"If you're going to try and get back into shape, you must make a basic alteration in the way you live."

Be careful about how much and when you eat, but also expend the proper amount of energy every day and this can only be done through vigorous exercise — exercise to the point of breathlessness. It should last for at least 30 minutes a day.

Snowdons To View Grand Canyon

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — After a day of resting in the Arizona sunshine, Britain's Princess Margaret and her husband, Lord Snowdon, fly over Grand Canyon at sunset today. They spend Saturday boating on Lake Powell in northern Arizona.

The Snowdons sunned themselves Thursday around the pool at the home of their hosts, Lewis Douglas, former U.S. ambassador to Britain, and Mrs. Douglas.

They dropped plans to visit a nearby mission and astronomy observatory to rest up from nearly a week's hectic tour of San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Relaxing with them were actor Roddy McDowall, Mrs. Danny Kaye and actress Hope Lange and her husband, director Alan Pakula.

Pair Abandon Appeal Against Alberta Trial

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two men charged in connection with the $1,200,000 mutilated money robbery from a CPR warehouse here earlier this year have abandoned their appeals against a court decision to transfer them to Edmonton for trial.

Joseph Percival, 37, a former Vancouver police constable, and James McDougall, 31, were recently extradited from Scotland to face the charges that they committed the robbery in which the money—each bill mutilated with punched holes and on its way to Ottawa mint for destruction—was stolen.

The pair were originally arrested in Edmonton a few months after the robbery and were charged there with possessing $12,000 of the loot. They were released on bail after being committed for trial and it was subsequently learned that they had gone to Scotland.

Extradition proceedings were launched when Vancouver police laid the robbery charges here. After being brought back from Scotland the men contended that they should be tried here on the robbery charges first before facing the possession charges in Edmonton.

However, Mr. Justice A. E. Branca ruled that the two should be taken to Edmonton to face charges there first.

1500 cabriolet

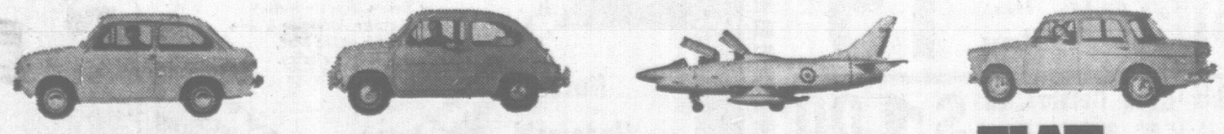

in a FIAT!

You'd expect a luxury sports car designed by Pinin Farina, incorporating an all-syncromesh five-speed gearbox, disc brakes and a sophisticated suspension system, to be expensive. Most of them are. Very.

But not the FIAT. If you see this car, you'll want to drive it — if you drive it you'll want to own it — if you ask its price you'll probably buy it.

If you want to get some fun out of driving but need four seats, your FIAT dealer will show you the rest of the FIAT family — they're all built to run happily in every Canadian season — they're all very inexpensive — they're all fun to drive.

In case you wonder what the jet is doing in the line-up below, FIAT makes these too.

So come and have fun in a FIAT

SOLUTION MONDAY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Kenneth Lewis, age 12, of Houston, Tex., for his question:

What are the main bird groups?

Our knowledge of the bird world grows as scraps of information are gathered by clubs and countless lone observers. Bird watching is a fascinating hobby, and a quiet observer is rewarded with endless glimpses into the wondrous ways of nature.

The job of classifying the birds is done by the ornithologist, and most of the scientific names he uses carry hidden clues to the birds in each group. Quails, chickens, pheasants and peacocks are classed as Galliformes, a term coined from an older word for the chicken. Hawks, falcons, vultures and eagles are Falconiformes because all members of this group share features with the falcon.

We know of almost 30,000 different varieties of birds, and they all belong in the animal class Aves, meaning birds. The huge class is subdivided into orders, and the birds of each order share certain common features. The ones in the Falconiforme order have hooked beaks and are birds of prey.

More Than 8,000 Species

Ornithologists classify birds in about 30 separate orders. Ducks, geese, swans and other wide-billed, web-footed water birds have their own order. The Charidiiforme order includes the gulls and other web-footed waders and shore birds. The round-eyed, night-prowling owls belong in the order Strigiformes. You can look up the meanings of these terms in a big dictionary that politely includes the origins of its words.

More than half the different birds are Passeriformes. This popular order belongs to the birds with special perching feet, and many of them are sweet songsters. The 30 or so bird orders are subdivided into families and again into genera. Each genus, the singular of genera, is a small group of individual species and subspecies.

The birds of a species are as closely related as brothers and sisters, and there are 8,600 separate species. The members of a species, however, may be marked differently. Our western robin wears a dark necklace around his red throat. The western and the plain red-vested eastern robin are classed as varieties or subspecies. Ornithologists classify the known birds in almost 30,000 separate subspecies.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Patricia Ann Evans, age 13, of Richmond, Va., for her question:

How thick is the earth's crust?

If some cosmic giant sliced our globe in half, he would see layers of minerals arranged somewhat like the skins of an onion. The heaviest minerals are in the huge, round central core; the lightest minerals form a thin crusty skin covering the entire globe. Compared with an orange, the earth's crusty skin is much thinner than the orange peel.

The surface of the crust is bumpy, and its texture varies from place to place. Some areas are covered with inches or perhaps a few feet of soil; others form deep basins to hold the seas. The thickness of the crust varies between 20 and 40 miles; some places are 10 miles and a few are 50 miles thick.

YOUR HEALTH

Bearing a Child After Reaching 50

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Many a woman writes me to say that she is around 50 or over 50, and has already had the menopause, but she is still very fearful of getting pregnant. I can assure such a woman that there is practically no chance of her getting pregnant after she is 50, and after she has gone through menopause, her fears are hardly justified.

Alvarez

Recently, Dr. L. R. Wharton, of the Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, told of his having studied child-birth statistics gathered from hospitals all over the world. From all these sources, he collected only 26 cases in which a woman who had a normal living child, claimed to be more than 50 years of age. As Dr. Wharton says, in many of these cases, the date of birth could not be established.

According to the records of large lying-in hospitals and obstetrical departments, no woman definitely over 50 ever had a child. The records of New York City, from 1940-1950 showed that some of the few women who claimed that they had borne normal children after 50 had been born in Europe, and hence could not produce birth certificates. A number of obstetricians working in hospitals in the Near East and Far East reported that they had never encountered any case of delivery of a healthy, full-term (carried for the full nine months) baby by a woman who they were sure was more than 50.

Negligible

Accordingly, Dr. Wharton says that when a woman, soon after the menopause, wants to know when she can discontinue contraceptive measures, she is told that her chance of conception, after the age of 50, is negligible. Since, however, in extremely rare cases a woman may give birth to a child after the age of 50, a worrisome woman will have more peace of mind if she will continue using some contraceptive method for perhaps a year after her menstruation has ceased.

Many unhappy people write to me when they have been turned away from an honest and able ear specialist with the statement that they have a nerve deafness which no one can help. Unfortunately, I can not give any comfort to these people.

In a release recently sent out by the Deafness Research Foundation, the writer says, "Nerve impairments of hearing are for the most part not now correctable by medical or surgical means." But the writer says that advances are beig made, and perhaps one of these days, some types of deafness for which we now have no treatment will be relieved.

The most constructive thing I can tell any person who is deaf or has any disease of the ears is that he can greatly help future generations by directing that when he dies his next of kin will immediately have his inner ear taken out by a physician, and given to an ear bank for study.

Hodgkin's Disease

Many anxious mothers write to say that a son or daughter, perhaps in his or her twenties, has just been found to have Hodgkin's disease. What was first noticed perhaps was a marked enlargement of glands on the side of the neck or in the armpit or in the groin. An X-ray examination perhaps showed that there were similar enlargements inside the chest. Perhaps a gland was cut out by a surgeon and examined under the microscope, and found to show the peculiar changes of Hodgkin's disease.

Hodgkin's disease is related to the lymphomas and sarcomas, types of cancer which appear usually in young people, and often seem to be starting at one time all over the body. If the disease is detected in the early stages, when there are large glands perhaps on only one side of the neck, powerful X-ray treatment will cause the disease to go away, and perhaps stay away for many years. I took care of one woman in whom the disease never came back. Today there are some drugs that can be used in an effort to fight off the trouble. The disease is hard to treat when, after several years, it returns, perhaps with a fever and an itchy skin.

BIRTH OF WEST WITNESSED BY 'PEA SOUP' FARMER

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

"Pea soup," said the gentleman with a smile.

"I was born and fed and raised on pea soup."

And at 101 years of age, Wilfred Malhiot says it's this diet staple of his Quebec childhood which has kept him healthy and happy for over a century.

"That and the maple syrup and sugar," he chuckles.

Still spry and mentally alert, he now spends his time watching television, playing cards or going for a short walk near his Belmont Avenue apartment.

"A marvelous old gentleman," says his landlady, Mrs. V. L. Taylor, "and witty as the dickens."

RECALLS CHILDHOOD

In his French-accented speech he recalls memories of his childhood alongside the St. Lawrence, and his later farming days in the Wolseley district of Saskatchewan.

At home in tiny Beaconcourt, Que., which lies halfway between Montreal and Quebec City and which his ancestors settled over 300 years ago, things were "pretty rough," says Mr. Malhiot.

"We raised our own meat and made our own clothes."

And it was Mr. Malhiot's grandfather who chopped wood beside the great river to dam it, trapping power for the sawmill, gristmill and carding mill which were his family's livelihood.

As a young man, Mr. Malhiot came west to homestead in a still unorganized area of Saskatchewan.

"I've seen the beginning of the whole West," he claims proudly, and conjures up pictures of rough trails, wooden-wheeled carts and pioneer living.

He's one of few men who can recall seeing the Liberal prime minister Sir Wilfrid Laurier when he came west on a speaking tour.

Today Mr. Malhiot thinks he holds claim to being the oldest Canadian-born citizen of western Canada.

He also thinks 64 years of marriage is at least a near-record. When his wife died in 1951, they had been married nearly 64 years, since she first followed him from Quebec to a strange home in a wild and unsettled land.

Now a resident of Victoria for good, Mr. Malhiot is finding it lonely—all his family, except one daughter who lives with him, are back on the prairies.

WATCHES FOOTBALL

He spends hours playing solitaire or watching his favorite football game on TV —pastimes he can enjoy despite his hearing and eyesight which are failing slightly.

Memories of his eastern childhood and of the years he carved a home from the prairie wilderness no doubt are frequent.

24 Beauties Compete For Miss Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Miss Canada 1966 will be chosen Sunday from 24 beauties from across the country.

The winner of the pageant will get a $1,000 scholarship, $5,000 in cash, more than $15,000 in merchandise and a year's work as a Canadian goodwill ambassador.

Linda Douma, of Sidney, a third-year arts student at the University of Victoria, was last year's winner. She took trips to such places as Tokyo, Israel and Cyprus.

The Miss Canada pageant is not connected with the Miss Dominion of Canada contest held annually at Niagara Falls, Ont.

Gloria Mills, Miss Victoria of 1965, will not compete in the Miss Canada contest. Winners of the Miss Victoria contest have not been sent east for several years.

They ceased being sent to the national event when the Miss Canada contest changed hands and became "a commercial venture," said Jaycee president Brian Small.

The city sponsoring the contestant must now foot bills for her wardrobe, hotel and transportation, where formerly these were paid by the Miss Canada contest promoters.

"Now it's more of a money-making proposition," said Mr. Small.

"I think the girls got much more out of it before," he added.

"The winner is well looked after, but the losers sort of disappear and are just shipped off home."

CALGARIANS FEEL CHILL OF WINTER

EDMONTON (CP) — Frigid temperatures today gave Alberta and Saskatchewan a good taste of winter weather.

Coldest city was Calgary with an overnight reading of seven degrees below zero. The city also had the most snow on the ground, six inches from a fall Tuesday.

Temperatures generally were 15 degrees below normal. The outlook was for continued cold and sunny skies.

Edmonton reported an overnight low of six degrees. It was zero in Lethbridge and two at Medicine Hat.

The old Jamaican pirate city of Port Royal, destroyed by an earthquake in 1692, is to be rebuilt by a group of businessmen and scholars.

Bare-Breasted Girls Make Seattle Debut

SEATTLE (AP) — Bare-breasted go-go girls made their debut on the Seattle scene Wednesday night and Police Chief Frank Ramon said he has no plans to do anything about it.

The Maison Blanc and Blue Danube restaurants each featured a dancer in a topless costume. Lloyd Ragan, who owns both restaurants, said the response was overwhelming.

A spokesman for the Blue Danube said it has been flooded with telephone calls from men wanting to know when the topless dancers would be introduced as a luncheon attraction.

"I am not going to advertise these places by taking police action," Ramon said.

"I am not going to be put in the position of trying to define obscenity. That is the job of the corporation counsel, the city council and the board of theatre supervisors."

A city licence department spokesman said lack of a clear-policy may lead to widespread use of the bare-bosomed dancers.

Doctors Called Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors under 35, some of them fathers, are being ordered to take physical examinations for possible induction into the armed forces in January. The selective service orders are going out to fill a defence department call for 1,529 physicians, 350 dentists and 100 veterinarians to go on duty early next year.

TV PRODUCER DIES

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Lawrence Berns, 75, television producer and studio executive, died Thursday of leukemia. Berns was production executive for the McHale's Navy and Broadside television series and formerly wrote and produced the Our Miss Brooks radio and television series for CBS.

INDEPENDENCE DECLARED BY SMITH

Rhodesia's Action 'Treason'

BRITISH ENVOY LEAVES

BULAWAYO, Rhodesia (AP) —Violence erupted in Bulawayo's Negro township late Thursday a few hours after Rhodesia seized its independence from Britain, said reports received today by the South African Press Association.

Negro gangs roamed the streets and several petrol bombs were reported thrown, the association said.

SALISBURY (CP)—The Rhodesian cabinet, dismissed Thursday by Queen Elizabeth, met in a jovial mood today and its chief, Ian Smith, waved a bottle of champagne declaring "now we are launched."

As Prime Minister Smith waved the champagne, draped in the purple and white colors of his Rhodesian Front party, British High Commissioner John B. Johnston boarded a plane for London in symbol of the break between Britain and the colony which declared itself independent without British permission.

Observers said the very fact of a cabinet meeting indicated Smith and his 11 ministers, all officially fired by the Queen, intended to ignore the British-appointed governor's dismissal order.

Government sources said the governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, had left the capital and gone back to his cattle ranch near Bulawayo.

A government spokesman said the cabinet meeting was just a continuation of the long series held during the last month of abortive independence negotiations.

Smith waved telegrams to reporters and declared: "See what I've got."

'STORY ISN'T FINISHED'

At the airport, Johnston told reporters: "This is the end of a chapter, but it is not the end of the story." The first of a number of foreign envoys expected to leave within the next few days, he said it was "a very sad day."

Most of the rest of his 20-man staff and their families were expected to follow soon, leaving only "caretaker" representation.

Canadian Trade Commissioner Ian R. Smyth said he had been recalled and would leave for home within a few days.

White Rhodesians showed no more than quiet happiness on one hand, or quiet forebodding on the other, after the long-expected break. But so far they did not know of the economic sanctions which were imposed by Britain almost immediately after the break.

Censors strictly bottled up any word of the sanctions, which were regarded in Britain as likely to be ruinous to the Rhodesian economy.

Rarely before, and certainly never in Africa, has a country attained independence with so little fuss. There were no fireworks, no dancing in the streets, no crowd-gripping balcony orations.

Smith, exhausted by the strain of weeks of almost non-stop cabinet meetings, vanished after his independence declaration until he reappeared for his champagne-waving cabinet attendance today. He was believed to have been resting in bed.

The United Peoples party, the all-African opposition, asked the Queen to appoint a new legal government to replace Smith's.

In a memorandum handed to High Commissioner Johnston before he left, the party ex-

Angry Britain Ends All Trade

By PETER BUCKLEY

LONDON (CP)—The British government warned Prime Minister Ian Smith and his Rhodesian regime today their defiance of British authority is treason. The penalty is death.

Attorney-General Sir Elwyn Jones issued the warning in the Commons as the government sought emergency powers to restore Britain's authority over the breakaway, white-run colony in central Africa.

Jones warned Britons inside and outside Rhodesia that actions furthering the aims of Smith's would be treasonable.

The bill giving the British government massive powers of retaliation against Rhodesia sped toward adoption in the House.

Quick passage was urged by Prime Minister Wilson, who Thursday night accused Smith's regime of taking police state measures and assuming "the sickeningly familiar attitudes of authoritarian rule."

Jones introduced the bill asking special powers.

Wilson Rules Out Harsh Reprisals

Wilson told the House Britain might have to take further reprisals to counter any new Rhodesian provocations in the wake of Thursday's declaration of independence. But he sought to allay Conservative fears harsh reprisals demanded by some Commonwealth countries might speed Rhodesia toward anarchy.

"Anyone who ignores the fact that Rhodesia is a matter of world concern must have their head in the sand," he said. "We do not agree that the courses urged upon us in some places are wise or practical, but we cannot ignore the fact that they are being urged."

Wilson warned critics of the economic sanctions his government has imposed against Rhodesia that a possible alternative is Soviet intervention as part of a United Nations force.

Wilson said those who criticize the sanctions might be inviting the prospect of "the Red army in blue berets."

They are:

—An order invalidating any laws passed or business transacted by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's regime after its unilateral declaration of independence Thursday.

—Authority for the British government to exercise executive control and to make laws in Rhodesia.

—An amendment to British legislation to make it easier for "loyal Rhodesian citizens" to obtain citizenship of the United Kingdom and the colonies.

—An order enabling the British immigration authorities to confiscate passport documents issued or renewed by the Rhodesian regime.

Jones noted that other action by Britain—such as the ban on import of Rhodesian tobacco and sugar—had already been carried out under existing statutory powers.

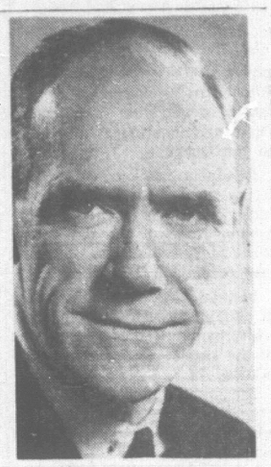

Jones said the illegal regime pretended to give to the people of Rhodesia a new constitution —a move which he described as "a grave aspect of this rebellion."

"We have not yet seen this document, but it would seem clear that one of its objects is evidently to usurp the authority of the United Kingdom govern-

MORE RESIGNATIONS?

Gave Wrong Advice On Election

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson, moving quickly to reconstruct his cabinet, has accepted the resignation of finance minister Walter Gordon.

The finance minister submitted his resignation Thursday on the grounds that he had given Mr. Pearson "bad advice" both as a minister and as chairman of the Liberal party's national campaign committee.

Mr. Gordon has long been regarded as a "liability" to the Liberal government. He tendered his resignation after his first budget got the new Liberal administration into difficulties in Parliament. At that time, however, the prime minister refused to accept the resignation.

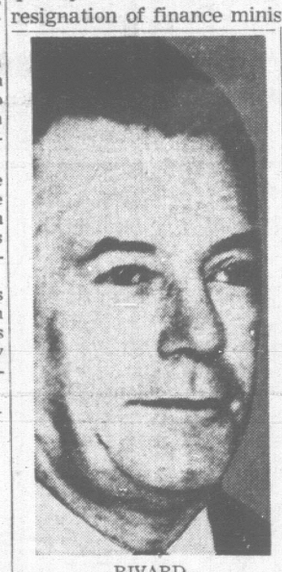

Other resignations of members of the government also regarded as "liabilities" are expected in the near future, according to informed sources here. Among those who may resign are President of the Privy Council Guy Favreau, Secretary of State Maurice Lamontagne and Postmaster-General Rene Tremblay.

Mr. Gordon's resignation clears the way for the prime minister to do a major job of rebuilding his cabinet. Other resignations that are anticipated will make it possible for a wholesale cabinet reshuffle giving his government a completely different image and making it stronger.

Agriculture Minister Harry Hays was defeated in his constituency in Calgary South. Mines and Technical Surveys Minister Watson McNaught was defeated in his Prince Edward Island riding. This means there are now three vacancies in the cabinet.

Trade and Commerce Minister Mitchell Sharp is acting minister of finance and will carry on

GEAR FAILS AT UTAH STOP

Landing Plane Burns; 40 Killed, 50 Escape

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A Boeing 727 jet airliner with 90 persons aboard burst into flames on landing at the city airport Thursday night and 40 passengers were killed or unaccounted for.

Another 50, including the crew of six, dived through windows and emergency hatches seconds before the fire raged forward from the three jet engines in the rail to the flight deck.

Of the survivors, there were 36, including the crew, under treatment in hospitals.

A spokesman for United Air Lines, owner of the plane, blamed the disaster on the collapse of the main landing gear as the aircraft touched down.

The flight, 227, originated in New York and reached Salt Lake City after stops in Cleveland, Chicago and Denver. Its scheduled destination was San Francisco.

THIRD TO CRASH

It was the third 727 involved in fatal accidents since August and the second this week. The first plunged into Lake Michigan off Lake Forest, Ill., Aug. 16, killing all 30 aboard. The second hit a hill while approaching Cincinnati Monday night and 58 of the 62 persons aboard died.

The Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington sent 12 investigators to seek the cause of the crash.

A Federal Aviation Agency spokesman said: "At this point we can see no relationship between the three accidents and

Empty Spaces Mark Paper Censorship

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI)—Five empty spaces stood out prominently today on the front page of Salisbury's only daily newspaper—the anti-government Rhodesia Herald.

The blank spaces were a result of total censorship imposed by the Rhodesian government Thursday on local news media.

One of the blank blocks carried the following words:

"Censorship. In terms of the emergency powers order, all material in this newspaper has been subject to government censorship."

Two government censors arrived in the newspaper's editorial offices to supervise Thursday's edition.

Censorship was applied to three pages and the editorial was merely a blank column.

Blanks were left where the type had been removed, even in the middle of a story.

Canadian Sanctions Against Rhodesia

OTTAWA (CP)—The new state of Rhodesia will not be recognized by the Canadian government which moved Thursday to impose trade and other sanctions against the former African colony.

A few hours after Rhodesia unilateraly declared its independence, Prime Minister Pearson issued a statement here to say: "That we do not recognize either the unilteral declaration . . . or the independent state of Rhodesia . . . or the Smith government itself in Rhodesia."

The prime minister referred to the declaration as "this most regrettable Rhodesian action." He heard the news with "deep disappointment and regret."

The Canadian trade commissoiner in Salisbury, Ian Smyth, will be withdrawn, Mr. Pearson said, and Rhodesian goods coming into Canada will no longer enjoy the British preferential tariff. The statement also said: "The export of all arms, military equipment and ammunition to Rhodesia will be banned; and there will be no news aid and financing agreements."

OIL INDUSTRY

Strike Deadline Midnight Monday

A strike deadline of midnight Monday has been set against British Columbia's oil industry.

The move by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union follows a breakdown in talks with oil companies.

"It is quite apparent now that there will be a total shutdown," union president Fred Geddes said this morning.

The strike against Shell, Home, Texaco, Standard and Pacific Petroleums would be an extension of the walkout at British American, which started Sept. 14 in a job security-wages dispute.

The union said the extension was caused by two factors:

- Oil companies made no counter offer to amended requests from the union for a new contract;
- The Labour Relations Act states a strike can only take place during the three months immediately after the date of a strike vote.

Mr. Geddes said the union scaled down its original proposals to an extra 50 cents over two years instead of 40 cents in one year.

In addition, in the job security field, it reduced to six months from 18 months its request for notification of introduction of new processes in the industry.

"There was no counter offer, therefore we set the strike deadline on Nov. 15," he said.

How effective the strike will be depends on support from other trade unions. The OCAW is not organized 100 per cent

EAST, WEST UNITED IN CONDEMNING SMITH

By United Press International

Rhodesia's rebellious white government was condemned around the world today. Premier Ian Smith was a virtual outcast, opposed by both East and West.

It appeared that only two nations—South Africa and Portugal —would extend diplomatic recognition to the Smith regime.

South Africa and Portugal cast the only dissenting votes Thursday night on a stiff United Nations resolution calling Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence the work of "a racialist minority."

Governments with political philosophies as divergent as the United States, the Soviet Union and Communist China lined up in a rare display of unanimity against Smith's action.

The United States seemed certain to follow Britain's lead in imposing economic and diplomatic sanctions in an effort to punish the Smith government and bring it down.

Some African and Communist nations blamed Britain for the crisis. There were warnings from several quarters of an African bloodbath if Britain did not intervene with force of arms.

These were the major reactions:

MOSCOW — Izvestia, the official newspaper of the Soviet government, described Smith and his followers as "racialist rebels." Izvestia placed the responsibility for the situation on British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and his Labor government.

"By its policies of concessions and connivance with the Rhodesian racialists, London has in fact pushed Smith to the decisive action," Izvestia said. The official Tass News Agency pledged firm support for Rhodesia's 3.8 million blacks.

PEKING — Communist China said use of arms by black Africans against the white minority

Embassy Guarded

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet police erected barriers around the British Embassy today against a possible demonstration, but two hours later only four African students had appeared to protest the Rhodesian situation.

POLITICAL CRISIS INVADES WORLD OF BEAUTY QUEENS

LONDON (AP)—Miss World officials ruled today blonde Lesley Bunting, Miss Rhodesia, can compete for the world beauty title in spite of the Rhodesian political crisis.

Miss Rhodesia, 22, arrived to compete with 48 other contestants, but her status had been thrown in doubt by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smth's declaration of independence. Britain branded the declaration illegal, whereupon contest officials decided to check to see whether she could compete.

But there still was a squabble over Gibraltar.

Sponsors of Miss Spain, Alicia Borras, removed her from the beauty pageant when Miss World officials refused their demands to oust Miss Gibraltar, Rosemarie Vinales.

Spain says the British colony of Gibraltar belongs to Spain and shouldn't have its own entry.

"There are no politics in this," said one contest organizer, "but we do have to consider whether a girl represents a proper country."

Lesley said she, too, wants to keep politics out of it but she considers her country proper enough and backs its unilateral declaration of independence.

"I'm an Ian Smith girl all the way," she said.

Lesley carries a British passport; she was born in Bury, England.

Arthur Mayse

There is more than one way to skin a cat, as the durable old saw has it, and a few weeks ago, I began to experiment with a new approach to my cigarette problem.

Obviously, the direct frontal attack wasn't going to work for one whose moral fibres stretch under pressure like golf-ball elastic. A year or two ago, as some of you still remind me when we meet, I tried that approach and got tossed.

So, on the principle that judo may succeed where brute force failed, I now keep a great many cigarettes out of my mouth by sticking a pipe in.

This works pretty well. There are, indeed, signs that I'll eventually learn to like my pipe and find it a comfortable companion.

I've already progressed to the point of settling on a favorite brand (of matchsticks, I mean), and often for as long as 10 consecutive seconds, I'm in contact with the tobacco.

My difficulties, I'm told by one of several expert advisers, are due in part to not packing my pipe correctly. Like other arts, this isn't learned overnight.

First you must rub your tobacco, which is likely to come to you in all manner of antic shapes.

I'm speaking here, of course, of the imported stuff put up in London or Glasgow in bitsy little tins sealed like so many time capsules. Pipe smokers of the top echelon scorn to sully their briars with humbler fodder.

Anyway, the mystique demands that you scrub it between your palms until well crumbled—a process attended by considerable wastage, which is probably just what the shrewd manufacturer intended.

Next, bit by bit, with nicely-calculated pokes and prods, you feed the tobacco into a pipe bowl from which you have reamed the detritus of the last attempt.

Then you start in with the matches.

In total, this rite alone occupies me for about as long as it would take to smoke two or maybe three cigarettes, a fact which justifies its fussiness.

To qualify as even a novice pipe smoker, it's essential to go about with pipestem nipped between the front teeth, or clamped in a jaw corner. This necessitates caution; in fact I'm still slightly frog-mouthed as a result of getting my new smoke-pot trapped in a car door.

That didn't help the pipe, either. Now at inoportune moments, it shows a nasty tendency to betray the dignified new image by falling apart.

What really started me on this kick was the spectacle of a friend receiving such an accolade as never happens to a mere cigarette inhaler.

We were loafing over coffee in a restaurant, me with cigarette, he emitting pipe smoke in spaced and fragrant cloudlets, when a smartly turned out young pussycat paused by our booth with nose twitching.

"Would you mind," said she, "telling me the name of that mixture you're smoking? It's so much nicer than my husband's!"

Within the hour, I was burning match sticks like crazy.

About now, I'd be downright discouraged, were it not for the fact that I happen to have another pipe. For years, this one has lain unused at the back of my basement workbench as a reminder of a companion long gone. It has a curved yellow stem and a fat, charred bowl. The mouthpiece is scored where the man who once smoked it used to bear down hard when he hooked a big trout.

One morning on an Island river, he punctured it completely. That trout was just short of two feet from nose to tail-centre.

What I do, when I'm poking around down there, is charge his friend with a cheap tobacco that comes in long strands like dried eelgrass. I ram it in, touch it off, and the old pipe likes the stuff.

It bites my tongue, and I bite it right back, and we seem to be getting along darn well together!

They Fell Under the Red Ensign 'We Have Every Right to Parade'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Thousands of veterans and servicemen paraded to Victoria Cenotaph Thursday in honor of those who gave their lives for freedom.

And a small group at the end of the parade demonstrated that freedom by carrying the Canadian Red Ensign instead of the official flag of Canada.

By order of the Dominion Council of the Royal Canadian Legion, the new Maple Leaf flag was given the place of honor at the front of the parade.

But Mrs. Margaret Derbyshire and members of the Victoria branch, Red Ensign Club of Canada, brought up the rear with their own flag.

"As far as we are concerned the Red Ensign is still the true flag of Canada," Mrs. Derbyshire said. "It is the flag our husbands and sons died under and it should be honored at all Remembrance Day services."

More than 3,000 men, women and children joined in the main service at the Cenotaph. The two minutes' silence was marked at the beginning and end by the firing of a cannon by the 5th (B.C.) Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery.

As he has done for many years past, Clem Gill, former manager of the Pro Patria Branch, Royal Canadian Legion, spoke the mystic words:

"They shall grow not old as we that are left grow old; age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn. At the going down of the sun, and in the morning, we will remember them."

The soulful lament, Flowers of the Forest, was played by Pipe-Major Frank Knight and members of the pipe band of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's).

Then followed the hymn The Silent Tribute, prayers by Wing Commander the Rev. E. W. S. Gilbert, RCAF (Ret.), the hymn O Valiant Hearts, The Last Post and The Reveille.

After the singing of O Canada, a wreath was placed on the Cenotaph by Major Norman Featherstone on behalf of Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes, who was attending the Remembrance Day service in Vancouver.

Armed Forces

Rear Admiral M. G. Stirling, laid a wreath on behalf of the armed forces Pacific Coast, and later took the saluate at a march past the Empress Hotel.

Mrs. Charles Brooks, 447 Monterey, whose son, Harry James Brooks, was killed at Caen, France, in 1944, laid a wreath on behalf of the Bereaved Mothers' Association of Canada.

Other wreaths were placed on the Cenotaph by Public

Should Register

A city police inspector approached Mrs. Derbyshire after the parade halted outside the Legislative Buildings. He said the group should have registered before taking part.

"Every group on parade is required to register," he said.

Mrs. Derbyshire told him the Red Ensign has a charter from the provincial government and a membership of more than 300.

"We have every right to be in this parade," she said.

The police inspector assured Mrs. Derbyshire there would be no interference but asked that she register in future.

Placed Wreath

Later Mrs. Derbyshire placed a wreath on the Victoria Cenotaph on behalf of the Red Ensign Club. She said her husband, her son and two brothers were killed while fighting under the Red Ensign in the two world wars.

"There are thousands of men and women who feel as I do," she said, "and they have a right to be heard."

Otherwise, the Remembrance Day ceremonies followed their time-honored pattern. Veterans and servicemen marched proudly to the Cenotaph and the band of HMCS Naden gave a lift to their steps as they swung between the crowds lining the Causeway.

'THEY DIED FOR PEACE' SAY YOUTHS

More than 40 young Victorians held a 24-hour vigil at the Victoria Cenotaph from Wednesday to Thursday to remind the public that servicemen in both world wars "died for peace."

They displayed posters to this efffect but made no demonstration.

"We were not belittling the sacrifices made in the First and Second World Wars," said Bob Munro, 26, organizer for the Peace Action League, "but we wanted to emphasize that both wars were fought with the object of ending war."

The vigil was held in shifts from 5 p.m. Wednesday until 5 p.m. Thursday.

MEDICAL DILEMMA

'Sit, Chat' Days Gone Says Surgeon

One of the most difficult problems facing medical men in the immediate future will be the maintaining of doctor-patient relationships.

Professor Drew Kay, regius professor of surgery at the University of Glasgow, Scotland, said in an interview this morning that medicine has become so complex that the family doctor can no longer maintain the relationship he once had with his patients.

Here to address the annual meeting of the North Pacific Surgical Association, Professor Kay said there has been a marked deterioration between doctors and patients in Britain since the introduction of state medicine.

'INEVITABLE'

"There is no doubt that so far as hospital care is concerned it (state medicine) has provided a magnificent service. But so far as the family doctor is concerned it has not been so successful. It was inevitable and is inevitable that the relationship should suffer.

"Even without state medicine the problem is extremely serious. There was a time when the family doctor could sit and chat with his patients and administer one of a small handful of drugs available. But now the field of medicine is so complex the doctor just doesn't have the time."

Woman Remanded For Election On Fraud Counts

A woman alleged to have obtained "a great deal of money" by fraud was remanded today to Nov. 16 for election of how she will be tried.

Mrs. Gladys Naylor, 914 Sioux Place, is charged with four offences of obtaining money by misrepresentations. Earlier the amounts allegedly involved totalled $11,473, but today a new charge alleged a further fraud in the amount of $600.

Mrs. Naylor is free on bail.

IT MADE MANY STOP TO WONDER . . . a child's cross of remembrance made of painted poppies appeared at the base of the Cenotaph at the rear during Remembrance Day ceremony Thursday on lawns of Legislative Buildings. It was noticed after official placing of wreaths had taken place. (Times Photo by Bill Halkett.)

Russ Give Their Version Of Collision With Trawler

A Russian skipper's account of a fatal collision with a Canadian trawler was in the hands of fisheries officials today.

The account was received Thursday aboard the Russian factory ship Arsenjy, 45 miles northwest of the northern tip of Vancouver Island.

Naval and fisheries officers packed the Russian ship's boardroom as the Russians gave their version of the accident.

A naval spokesman said the two sides spoke in English and Ukrainian.

The account—concerning the sinking of the Vancouver trawler Aleutian Queen and the death of her cook—will be forwarded to Transport Minister Pickersgill.

No details were released.

Meanwhile, no further light has been shed on the collision which Wednesday took the life of Oud Gronlund, 49, North Surrey.

Skipper of the Aleutian Queen, Oistein Hansen, 53, South Burnaby, was to see Capt. Cyril Burrill, supervising examiner for Master and Mates, this afternoon.

TO MINISTER

His personal account of the crash off the Island's northwest coast will be sent to Mr. Pickersgill.

Depending on the findings, an official inquiry may be held.

Mr. Hansen's lawyer has advised him not to make public circumstances surrounding the collision.

In Port Hardy Wednesday Mr. Hansen said he was hit by the Russian trawler Wexahnk.

At the time the trawler was being towed by the deep-sea tug Besstrashny.

Though holed in the stern, the Vancouver skipper thought he could make it to Bull Harbor 21 miles away.

After two hours struggling through a heavy swell, the 68-foot trawler keeled on to her side.

CLUNG TO MAST

Hansen and his son Robert clung to the mast for a while after the cook jumped into the icy water.

They eventually managed to inflate a liferaft which floated upside down with the cook clinging to the side.

As the raft was righted, Gronlund apparently froze to the underside.

When the pair was rescued 20 minutes later by the U.S. trawler Western Maid Gronlund was dead.

Question uppermost in officials' minds is:

Did the Russians realize the Aleutian Queen was sinking?

If so, why didn't they lend a hand?

Hansen shed some light on this Thursday night when he landed at Vancouver International Airport.

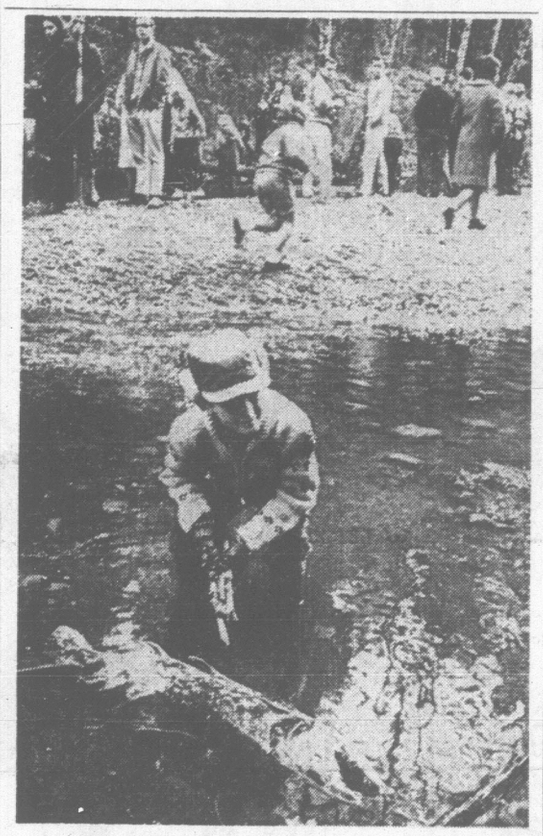

He said he didn't think the Russians were aware his boat was going down. They did know he was damaged, however.

NO COMMENT

Thursday's meeting may have cleared up this point. But naval officials were keeping tight-lipped about it today.

At the meeting was Lt.-Cmdr. Tom Irvine, commander of ocean-escort vessel HMCS Stettler; Capt. Reginald McLellan,

Esquimalt Upset By Bid for Town

Esquimalt officials today expressed disappointment and disapproval of a vote Wednesday night by View Royal ratepayers to form a town.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele said he is disappointed but not unduly so.

"After all it's up to them," he said.

The reeve said he advises the people in View Royal "to be careful before pushing aside Mr. Bracewell's report.

"This man is an expert, and if he recommends amalgamation from the standpoint of both areas he should be listened to."

B. C. Bracewell, former deputy minister of municipal affairs, was hired this summer by Esquimalt and View Royal to report on amalgamation.

Coun. George Argyle said:

"The View Royal decision is very disappointing. I just hope they don't live to regret it."

Over 200 members of the View Royal Ratepayers' Association voted against amalgamation with Esquimalt at a meeting in All Saints' Church Hall. There were only seven dissenters.

The meeting had been called by the association's executive to consider the findings of the Bracewell report.

The association will now present a resolution to the district's fire trustees to proceed with a bylaw asking for a change of status for View Royal from district to town.

Immediate action on the bylaw will be requested. A majority of 60 per cent is needed to make the vote law.

A spokesman for the Panhandle section of View Royal, Mrs. Ethel Rankin, 1440 Craigflower, says the people in her area are dismayed with Wednesday's decision.

"I hope they don't get their vote for a town. It would be disastrous."

"We'll have another Sidney on our hands," she said.

Mrs. Rankin says that the Panhandle group will try still to have its area join Esquimalt.

"We have sent a letter to this effect to Dan Campbell" (municipal affairs minister.)

"Now we can only sit tight and see what develops."

Pedestrian Badly Hurt On Highway

A 61-year-old pedestrian was badly injured in a collision with a car on Pat Bay Highway Thursday evening.

Charles Neaves, 3215 Island View Road, received multiple injuries. He is in fair condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Central Saanich police said the accident occurred on Pat Bay at East Saanich Road. Driver of the car involved was Rodney Nesbit, 1466 Mitchell Street.

GIRL INJURED

A 16-year-old girl hurt in a traffic accident at Admirals and Esquimalt Wednesday night is reported in good condition today at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mary-Ann Carter, 721 Admirals, was in collision with a car driven by John McIntyre, 723 Cormorant.

A 50-year-old pedestrian injured as he crossed Pandora at Vancouver Thursday morning was released from hospital after treatment.

George Collins, Banfield P.O., was in collision with a car driven by Donald Champion, 272 Ontario.

Salvation Army Cavalcade Arrives Tuesday

The Salvation Army's Trans-Canada motor cavalcade will arrive in Victoria Tuesday, completing a tour which started at St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 19.

A short service will be held at Mile O of the Trans-Canada Highway, corner of Douglas Street and Dallas Road, at 10:15 a.m.

Marking the 100th anniversary of the Salvation Army, the cavalcade carries a party of officers who have conducted public services in major centres across Canada.

Government and civic officials in Victoria will be asked to sign a scroll to complete a list of signatures headed by Governor-General Georges Vanier and Prime Minister Lester Pearson.

Commissioner and Mrs. Grinsted will address a public rally in Victoria Citadel, 757 Pandora Avenue, Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Prowlers Get Nothing In Two City Break-Ins

Police are investigating two break-ins in the city over the Armistice Day holiday. Nothing was taken at either location.

A prowler entered Victoria Foundry and rifled through drawers in the office. At Superior Auto Body an attempt was made to enter the safe without success.

GREGORY COOK
. . . "no spare time"

Councillor Won't Seek Re-Election

The second senior member of Saanich council said today he will not seek re-election next month.

Coun. Gregory Cook said the growing work level at council coupled with the new school curriculum are responsible.

The school teacher and six-year councillor said he does not want to be a council member without the proper time to do a good job.

In some weeks, he said, he had to attend as many as four meetings and some council meetings were lasting until midnight.

Two other councillors and Reeve Hugh Curtis also have terms expiring next month. The reeve is expected to seek re-election but has made no announcement.

Coun. William Campbell, chairman of the public works committee, said he will seek re-election. Coun. Douglas Crosby, recovering in hospital from a broken knee, said he hasn't made up his mind.

Deadline for nominations is Nov. 29.

Ask The Times

Q. Can you explain why there are sometimes more than two sections to the daily newspaper without there being more than the usual number of pages? M.G.

A. This is due to mechanical requirements when certain pages carry color reproductions.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

'HE WAS RUNNING GOOD'—SHOE . . .

. . . HAMMOND CRITICIZES RIDE

Canada's George Royal Fourth Behind 'Oo-La-La' Pair

LAUREL, Md. (CP) — Diatome, ranked among France's top three-year-olds, swept past the favored odds, which had rated American and Canadian entries first and second respectively, to win the $150,000 Washington International Thursday.

Carvin, France's other entry in the 1½-mile turf classic, provided the biggest surprise by coming in second as a 50-to-1 longshot.

The United States' favored Roman Brother finished third, followed by Canada's George Royal.

George Royal's effort was the best by a Canadian horse in four International tries.

George Royal, owned by Ernie Hammond of Vancouver and Robert Hall of Aldergrove, B.C., and ridden by Willie Shoemaker, the richest jockey in racing history, had been quoted at 3-to-1 odds, compared with 7-to-5 on Roman Brother and 9-to-2 on Diatome.

George Royal "ran a good race," Shoemaker said.

The four-year-old bay pushed his earnings up another $15,000 to $215,000 with his effort and came from well back to do it.

"We finished strong," said Shoemaker. "He was running good but we weren't gaining on the horses in front."

Carrying the silks of Baron Guy de Rothschild and ridden by 30-year-old Jean Deforge, Diatome stuck his nose in front in the final strides to edge Carvin.

Carvin, owned by Jean Boutiller and ridden by Jean-Claude Desaint, was another 1¼ lengths in front of Roman Brother, carrying the hopes of Lou Wolfson's Harbor View Stable. He was ridden by Braulio Baeza.

Hail to All, the other American entry, followed George Royal, with Argentina's Berenjenal sixth and England's Super Sam bringing up the rear.

Diatome paid $11.60, $6.60 and $4.00; Carvin, one of the last horses to be invited to the International, returned $29.20 and $7.80. Roman Brother paid $3.20.

Shoemaker had been named to ride George Royal for the first time after Johnny Longden, the all-time riding champion with more than 6,000 winners, who was raised in Taber, Alta., had been set down for 10 days on the west coast.

Asked whether his big bay might have fared better on a softer track, Shoemaker replied:

"I don't know. Nobody knows."

However, Hall had said Wednesday that "a softer track would certainly help, although he's won before on a hard track."

Said Hammond after the race, "We certainly aren't disappointed. We were only beaten by a length and a half.

"Unfortunately, we were bumped by the Argentine horse going around the last turn and that threw him out a little bit.

"But that's racing luck."

Deforge, riding in his third International, never had Diatome far off the pace as Roman Brother and Super Sam set the pace for the greater part of the race on the hard-baked grass course.

Roman Brother broke in front and was quickly joined by Super Sam, ridden by Jimmy Lindley. After one-half mile, the English three-year-old edged ahead but never was able to open up daylight. Meantime, the powerfully built Diatome was either third or fourth.

This was the best effort by Canada in the 14 years of the International. The others, all entered by Max Bell of Calgary, were: Indian Hemp, seventh of seven entries in 1952; Prefect II, 11th of 13 in 1955; Hindu Wand, ninth of 10 in 1956; and Lebon M.L., 12th of 13 in 1962.

Longden rode them all.

The odds on George Royal had shortened overnight to 3-to-1 from 6-to-1 apparently with the help of Shoemaker's reputation.

Hammond threw in a touch of criticism about Shoemaker's ride.

"Shoemaker had never ridden George Royal before and he let the horse get a little bit too far behind. We told him to keep on the pace. Those European horses run that way all the time and Diatome is a finishing horse."

Hammond said George Royal will be sent back to Santa Anita, Calif., in a day or two to rest up for more racing.

Snow, Cold Forecast For Opening Clash

CALGARY (CP)—Weather conditions may force Calgary Stampeders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers to play a slogging defensive match in the first game of the Western Football Conference best-of-three final Saturday, despite their good offensive records.

Driving snow continued to sweep Calgary Thursday and forecasts called for much the same type of weather today. Temperatures were to hit the five-degree mark.

The Stampeders, under freshman coach Jerry Williams, are looking for their first WFC championship and Grey Cup since 1949.

Bud Grant's Bombers are after their first WFC title and Grey Cup since 1962, earning the chance by eliminating Saskatchewan Roughriders in the WFC semi-finals.

Men with shovels and snow-blowing machines have been removing snow from McMahon Stadium nearly all week. But the field, although not covered by a canvas, was in good condition.

At least eight inches of snow —some of it melted—has fallen since early Tuesday. The weather office predicts a "slight chance of snow" Saturday, with light winds and a game - time temperature of about five degrees.

SOLD OUT AGAIN

The game, to be televised nationally by CTV, marks the fifth straight sell - out here. Closed-circuit TV was to be set up at the Stampede Corral to accommodate other fans at $3 a head.

The second game of the series will be Nov. 17 in Winnipeg and a third, if necessary, in Calgary Nov. 20.

A scant 42 yards separate the two clubs in total offence piled up during 16 regular-season games. Winnipeg has the edge but the Stamps finished in first place and the Bombers second..

Eagle Day of Calgary completed 124 of 215 passes for 1,892 yards, while Winnipeg's Kenny Ploen was good on 124 of 213 tosses for 1,789 yards. Ploen had 15 touchdown passes, Day 12.

The Bombers blasted the Stamps 22-0 here Oct. 27 but Williams remains confident. When asked if the Stamps can beat the Bombers he replied "certainly."

Rangers Get A Better Lease

New York Rangers appear to have given up their fifth-place lease in the National Hockey League standings for a more choice property.

The Rangers extended their unbeaten streak to six games Thursday, holding Detroit Red Wings to a 3-3 tie.

That point and a single gained in a 2-2 draw with Boston Wednesday left the Rangers in third place with nine points. They trail Montreal Canadiens by three digits and are ahead of Toronto by the same margin.

In other Wednesday games, Montreal and Toronto tied 3-3 while Chicago was waxing Detroit 5-2.

Don Marshall, formerly of Montreal and who was a standout as a penalty killer during his Montreal days, paced the New York attack Thursday with a goal and an assist.

Bob Nevin, New York's leading scorer to date and formerly with Toronto, put the Rangers ahead at 1:04 of the first period when he banged in his own rebound past sprawled Detroit goalie Roger Crozier.

Defenceman Harry Howell gave New York a 2-0 lead at 13:46, just 15 seconds after Detroit defenceman Bill Gadsby was penalized for interference.

Paul Henderson put Detroit on the scoreboard with his fourth goal of the season with less than two minutes remaining in the first frame.

Marshall's goal at 7:23 of the second period climaxed New York's second successful power play of the night. The puck barely left the ice as Crozier and defencemen Warren Godfrey and Gadsby tried to cover up.

Detroit came back with ageless Gordie Howe scoring his fourth goal of the season with less than a minute left in the middle period.

Howe's goal was also his 599th during regular season play and climaxed a power play. Howe passed the puck from the back of the net to Andy Bathgate, then deflected Bathgate's shot into the lower left hand corner.

Bruce MacGregor scored the only goal of the third period to tie the score and also snap the Red Wings' two - game losing streak.

Bucks Turn Mighty Mites Loose Against Big Leafs

By ERNIE FEDORUK

PORTLAND—On the basis of poundage, Victoria Maple Leafs rate as one of the largest clubs in the Western Hockey League. But Portland Buckaroos figure goals—not muscles—win hockey games.

So it was Wednesday.

Four of Portland's little guys waxed the Victoria heavyweights 6-0 to prove that even big boys usually have to be at their best in order to beat good little guys.

The Leafs weren't at their best. They knew it, and no reminders will be required at Memorial Arena Saturday evening when the Bucks and the Leafs have "another go" in a continuing dispute for the league lead.

Thursday's victory, Portland's fifth in a row, brought the Bucks on even terms with the Leafs. It could be a temporary situation because the Portlanders have a date in Seattle tonight before moving on to Victoria for Saturday's game.

SCHMAUTZ STARTED IT

The mighty mites who manhanded the Leafs on Wednesday were Art Jones, Dick Van Impe, Arnie Schmautz and Mike Donaldson.

Schmautz, one of pro hockey's smallest at five-seven and 135 pounds, started it off by scoring Portland's winning goal. It was Arnie's first of the season.

The five-ten Van Impe threw in three goals—his first three-goal outing in WHL company—and Jones, a healthier 5 10½, chipped in with one goal and an assist to raise to 20 points his league-leading count. Defenceman Jack Bionda scored Portland's sixth goal.

Donaldson, 5-8, was Portland's giant on defence. One of the smallest defencemen in pro hockey, he consistently wrecked Victoria threats with brilliant puck-blocking displays.

PLAYED IT COOL

After the fearless little foursome did its duty, goalkeeper Don Head stepped up to rub salt into the wounds they created. He did it with comparative ease, thanks to the play of Donaldson and rearguard mates Jim Hay and Connie Madigan, and an off-color Victoria shooting display.

Buckaroos stepped off to a 3-0 first-period lead, and then played it cool for the benefit of 9,691 fans. Once ahead, they played to protect the margin rather than pep up the pace in an attempt to get a fourth goal. That's why they got the fourth, and then the fifth. Also the sixth.

While the 6-0 score embarrassed the Leafs, it wasn't a true indication of play. Bionda's goal came on one of those long, weird bouncing shots from centre ice. And Victoria winger Gordie Redahl, with a defensive lapse, made a perfect pass to Van Impe for Portland's fourth goal.

Apart from Bionda's weirdo, all of Portland's goals resulted from Victoria mistakes rather than Buckaroo playmaking.

HAD GOOD CHANCES

At the other end, Lou Jankowski (twice) and Bob Barlow had excellent chances to wreck Head's shutout. Jankowski twice missed from point-blank range while Barlow's shot, with Head well-beaten on the play, was saved when the puck hit Hay's stick.

It is to their credit that the Victoria players acknowledge they got a bad game out of their systems. As winger Steve Witiuk put it:

"We had it coming. I think we were getting a bit too confident . . ."

ICE CHIPS: The loss snapped a seven-game unbeaten streak by the Leafs . . . The Victoria club record is nine . . . Victoria coach Frank Mario played rookie centre Dave Parenteau on two occasions . . . He showed good puck-handling ability . . . The game was No. 300 in league play for Victoria goalie Al Millar . . .

Jones scored his goal while defenceman Sandy Hucul was serving a Victoria penalty . . . After that, however, Leafs' penalty killers turned in solid efforts . . . In two successive penalties to Victoria, Buckaroos failed to get a shot on goal . . . After Saturday's game, Leafs will be idle until next Wednesday when Los Angeles Blades make their first appearance at Memorial Arena . . .

Blades Show Improvement

The play of Los Angeles Blades has perked up, and that may be the big reason the reformed Howie Young is still with that Western Hockey League club today.

The ripest rumor earlier this week was an impending three-way trade of defencemen between Los Angeles (with Young a prime suspect), Vancouver Canucks and Seattle Totems.

A trade was consumated Wednesday, but Young and the Blades weren't included. Vancouver sent Les Hunt to Seattle in exchange for Moe Mantha.

Thursday the Blades played as if they don't need player help. With Young a standout on defence, Los Angeles tripped the touring Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League, 6-4. It was Blades' second win in their last three outings. They managed only one victory in their first seven games.

JOHNSON SPARKLES

Centre Norm Johnson sparked Blades with a goal and three assists. Rookie Bobby Schmautz, Leo Labine and Brian Smith, with two, scored the others for Los Angeles. Irv Spencer, Val Fonteyne, Bert Marshall and Norm Beaudin replied for Hornets, who had bombed Los Angeles 10-2 in an interlocking match earlier this season.

Thursday's result squared accounts between the AHL and WHL at seven victories each.

Pittsburgh had sent the AHL ahead, 7-6, Wednesday night by blanking Bud Poile's Seals 4-0 at San Francisco.

Beaudin, Bob Wall, Claude Laforge and Andre Pronovost scored Hornets' goals.

Action tonight is strictly a WHL family affair. Portland visits Seattle and Vancouver is scheduled to play in San Francisco.

ROBINSON SAYS . . . HE'LL QUIT FOR GOOD

Sugar Ray's Dream Is Gone

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, five times the middleweight boxing champion, said today he is quitting the ring for good.

The 45-year-old veteran of 199 professional bouts announced his decision as an aftermath to Wednesday night's one-sided loss to Joey Archer, New York.

"I hate to go on too long campaigning for another chance," Robinson said. "I had high hopes of fighting for the championship again if I had beaten Archer. But I didn't win."

Thus, his dream of winning the championship for the sixth time has vanished in thin air after his game effort against the 27-year-old Archer.

Archer, winning his 48th of 49 fights, floored Robinson with a right cross to the head in the fourth round and the ex-champion took a count of nine.

"That blow was the one that lost the fight," said Sugar Ray's manager, George Gainsford.

"When I knocked Sugar Ray down I kind of expected him to stay on the floor," Archer said. "He surprised me when he got up."

REVERSE VERDICT . . . . . OVER JAMES BAY

Georgians Get Their Revenge

Vancouver Georgians had to wait a year but Thursday they avenged a defeat by James Bay Athletic Association.

Defeated by the Oarsmen in the final round of last year's seven-a-side rugby tournament, Georgians reversed the verdict in the eighth annual tourney Thursday at Macdonald Park.

Bulwarked by the fine all-round play of Barry Stubbs, the Georgians "A" squad downed JBAA II 13-3 in the championship final of the 13-team tourney.

In the consolation final, Naval Technical School defeated Navy 13-11.

Stubbs, perhaps the day's outstanding player, saved the Georgians in the semifinal round. With his club trailing JBAA I 6-3 in the final minute, Stubbs dodged 25 yards for a try to tie the score and then added a conversion to give his club an 8-6 win.

JBAA II defeated Georgians "B" 16-0 in the other semi.

Gordon McKenzie got Georgians out in front in the final with a 65-yard run for a try and Stubbs booted the conversion to make it 5-0. Don Eckardt got three points back for JBAA on a try before half-time.

The Oarsmen, paced by Bob Coutts, Eckardt and Norm Dixon, threatened to go ahead early in the second half. However, Georgians held out and took control in the closing stages.

Mike Chambers finished off a fine backfield thrust for a try and Dave Howie dribbled the ball over the line for another Georgian score. Stubbs finished the scoring with a convert.

Golden Rule Status Given Funeral Firm

Hayward's Funeral Chapel of Victoria has been elected to membership in the Order of the Golden Rule — an international affiliation of funeral directors—for the fifth consecutive year.

"We consider this a high honor," director William Hayward said today. "Renewal of membership is based on our ability to provide modern, comprehensive service at prices which are reasonable and just."

'NOT BY GOLD'

As Victoria member of the Order of the Golden Rule, Hayward's chapel is authorized to display a knight-and-shield emblem on which is emblazoned the motto: "Service measured not by gold, but by the Golden Rule."

Alfred W. Francis, co-director of Haywards, said members of the order are located in towns and cities all over the world. "We are continually seeking new and better ways of serving bereaved families," he said.

Golden Rule members are pledged to serve families of all income groups, including families which have no funds to pay for a funeral.

Action Sought On Control Of Starlings

Control of a bird with a ravenous appetite for berries is high on a list of problems to be discussed at the annual convention of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture at the Empress Hotel Nov. 23-24.

Lower Fraser Valley farmers will submit a resolution calling for immediate government action to control the starling population — increasing at an alarming rate throughout the province.

The bird with a dark metallic green and purple plumage and about 8½ inches long, somewhat resembles a blackbird.

Since a few birds were first sighted in the Okanagan Valley in 1946, the population has soared—some say well over the 1,000,000 mark.

The birds which migrated from eastern Canada are now to be found in most parts of the province.

Mainland growers claim they face economic ruin within the next few years unless effective action is taken.

They report a 20 per cent loss to their berry crops last year.

More than 150 delegates representing farm organizations throughout the province are expected for the meeting.

Speakers include J. H. Warren, deputy minister of trade and commerce, and Alex Turner, B.C. deputy minister of agriculture.

Resolutions to be submitted to the convention range from requests for a comprehensive crop insurance scheme to a solution to the farm labor shortage.

Another subject to be discussed as the need for a better program of roadside drainage to offset the flooding of farm lands.

This program plagues many areas on Vancouver Island and the B.C. mainland.

Delegates will also seek government action to improve grazing and range lands for cattle in the interior of B.C.

Concerned at the steadily increasing auto insurance rates, mainland growers will also submit a resolution requesting the government to investigate the feasibility of taking over car insurance.

Growers are also dissatisfied with the government road spraying program for controlling roadside weeds.

They will request instead that slopes on rural roads be seeded with grass.

This would permit easier control of weeds and would also help to control erosion.

PLANE BURNS

we have no plans for grounding 727 jets."

The survival of the crew proided an opportunity for investigators to obtain first-hand expert opinion on the cause.

Dr. Hilmon Castle, a medical examiner for the Federal Aviation Agency, said he found bodies "strewn along the aisle, some of them piled on top of each other."

There are Canadians listed on the plane's passenger list.

One of those killed was well known in Western Canada. He was Bill Linderman, secretary-treasurer of the Rodeo Cowboy Association and many times world champion when he competed in the rodeo circuit including Calgary.

Linderman, best known as a steer wrestler, retired six years ago. He earned more than $439,000 in rodeo competition.

The plane was United's Flight 227 originating in New York City with stops in Cleveland, Chicago, Denver and Salt Lake City en route to San Francisco.

TWO OTHERS CRASHED

It was the third 727 involved in an airline accident since August—and the second this week.

The 72-ton, tri-jet airliner approached the airport from the south for an on-schedule landing.

"We had a hard bump, started swerving from side to side," said passenger Ralph S. Nesbitt, a Santa Monica, Calif., salesman. "And flames broke out from the rear.

"People were thrown all over the place. It was horrible. The heat was terrible."

Nesbitt said he dived to safety through on open window, onto a wing and through a sheet of flames to the ground.

The interior of the plane blackened into charcoal. The Deputy Salt Lake County attorney, Warren M. Weggeland, said only the arms and legs of victims were distinguishable in the debris.

The plane was piloted by Capt. Gail C. Keimierer, 48, of Denver. The captain and his crew survived.

C.A.B. WILL INVESTIGATE

The C.A.B. said in Washington 12 investigators were en route to the crash. A Washington spokesman for the Federal Aviation Agency said it had no plans for grounding 727 jets.

"At this point, the FAA can see no relationship between the three accidents," the spokesman said. "Grounding now would be premature."

Pader Hogue, chief flight safety engineer for Boeing Aircraft Co., said he would take part in the investigation.

"I think it's a fine airplane and recent unfortunate experiences are in my opinion unrelated," he said.

Hogue was in Cincinnati Thursday night to investigate the crash of a Boeing 727 jetliner Monday night in which 58 of 62 persons aboard were killed.

Another 727 crashed into Lake Michigan just off the shore of Lake Forest, Ill., Aug. 16 killing all 30 persons aboard.

The FAA said three passengers on the jet that burned at Salt Lake City were FAA supervisors. The agency said the supervisors, on a routine flight, escaped serious injury.

Boeing said it has delivered about 195 airplanes of the 727 type. United said it purchased 40 of them at a cost of $185,000,000. The 727 has a capacity of 92 passengers and six crew members. It cruises between 550 and 600 miles an hour.

Tribe Trial To Continue On Monday

Hearing of a charge of impaired driving against David Tribe, 4511 Pachena Place, will continue in central court Monday.

The trial began Wednesday when an RCMP Staff-Sergeant, Angus Robson, gave evidence he was driving on Cedar Hill Cross Road near Blenkinsop about midnight Sept. 18.

He said a car drove over to his side of the street and it appeared as if there was going to be a head-on collision. He said he veered to the right and the cars sideswiped one another.

S/Sgt. Robson said the accused in his opinion was intoxicated. He testified he saw Tribe pour the contents of a bottle of rye on the road after the accident.

in that position until the portfolio is filled by Mr. Pearson.

The successor to Mr. Gordon as finance minister was not immediately known here today. Two names are being mentioned however as possible successors.

They are Robert Winters who successfully staged a comeback in politics when he won in the Toronto constituency of York West. Trade and Commerce Minister Sharp is also believed in the running for the key post. He has been frequently mentioned in the past as a possible finance minister if Mr. Gordon should resign.

TRIP TO EUROPE

Mr. Gordon is not leaving Parliament. He was scheduled to leave Ottawa Thursday night for a trip to Europe, had the Liberals been successful in obtaining a good majority in the election. With the failure to win that majority, Mr. Gordon postponed his trip by one day. He attended the cabinet meeting Wednesday and Thursday presented his resignation, and after a talk with Mr. Pearson Thursday afternoon, it was accepted. Mr. Gordon was scheduled to leave for Europe tonight.

After his vacation Mr. Gordon is expected to return to Ottawa and attend the Commons. However, he is not expected to remain long in political life. In talks with friends, he has often made it clear that once the time came that he felt he could no longer be of any help to Mr. Pearson he would prefer to get out of politics and public life and return to private business in Toronto.

STRONG RUMORS

There were strong rumors during the election campaign that Winters, a leading Canadian industrialist, would be offered the finance portfolio if he was elected. He won it with a majority of 17,000. He was minister of public works and reconstruction minister in the Liberal government of Louis St. Laurent. He was defeated in 1957.

Mr. Winters retired from public life after that defeat to go into business. He was successful in the business world and when he announced his decision to seek re-election it immediately sparked rumors that he would be named finance minister. So strong did the rumors become that Mr. Pearson during the campaign felt compelled to say at Wallaceburg, Ont., during a speech, that he would keep Mr. Gordon on as finance minister in the new Liberal government.

But the election stalemate changed the situation. Mr. Gordon in his letter of resignation wrote:

CAMPAIGN 'SUPERB'

"For many months, as one of your senior ministers, I urged you to call an election on the grounds we needed a majority to govern the country well and to ensure the kind of stability I thought was needed. As chairman of the Liberal party's national campaign committee I believed that if you conducted a good campaign we would obtain a comfortable majority. Your campaign was superb in every way. You could not have done any better or any more than you did.

"The conclusion is quite clear. I gave you bad advice, both as minister and as campaign chairman. I accept full responsibility for this and therefore submit my resignation from the cabinet. If there is anything I can ever do for you at any time, you know all you have to do is let me know."

In reply Mr. Pearson wrote in part as follows:

"I cannot accept your assumption of responsibility for the decision to hold the recent election which, while it confirmed our position as a government with considerably the largest support in the House of Commons, did not give us the majority of members we sought. You and others advised me to hold the election at this time, for reasons which seemed perfectly valid, but the decision was mine and the sole responsibility for the decision remains mine."

HINGED ON ELECTION

Mr. Gordon and Mr. Pearson talked over the resignation at lunch Thursday at 24 Sussex Street, the prime minister's residence. Later it was disclosed by Allan Donnelly, Mr. Gordon's executive assistant, that the possibility of the resignation had hinged on the election outcome.

The minister had in effect staked his portfolio on his gamble that in urging the prime minister to call an election at this time the Liberal minority government would be returned with a healthy majority.

Mr. Gordon had gambled and lost.

In giving the election advice the minister had said if he turned out to be wrong he would resign. Consequently he felt honor bound to submit his resignation.

The resignation however came as a surprise despite hints dropped by several persons close to the prime minister that he would be acting almost immediately to reconstruct his cabinet. It was at 8:15 p.m. Ottawa time that the prime minister's press secretary called political reporters at their homes with word that the minister would be resigning "within 10 minutes."

Ten minutes later at the East Block, the prime minister's office distributed a press release comprising a one paragraph announcement of the resignation. Attached were the letters.

Mr. Pearson and Mr. Gordon have been life-long friends.

REBUILD PARTY

It was Mr. Gordon who worked with Mr. Pearson after the 1958 election disaster in which the Liberals suffered a smashing defeat, to rebuild the party organization and its strength. Mr. Gordon won his Toronto Davenport seat in the 1962 election and when the 1963 campaign put the Liberals into office, Mr. Pearson named him finance minister.

But after bringing down his first budget Mr. Gordon was in difficulties. He had recruited three "outsiders" from Toronto —violating a long standing tradition—to help him prepare the budget.

The first budget was a disaster from the government's point of view. Mr. Gordon who had held the reputation of one of the "brightest" of the "bright new Liberals" that Mr. Pearson had attracted into political life, saw his reputation plummet as a finance expert. The opposition pounded and harried the finance minister but his close friend, the prime minister, stood by him throughout those dark days.

RESISTED PRESSURES

Pressures were on Mr. Pearson to remove Mr. Gordon from the finance portfolio but he resisted them and insisted that the minister be given another chance. Mr. Gordon's subsequent budgets did little to enhance his reputation with business and investment circles. Other Liberals regarded him as a "liability" to the prime minister and the administration, but Mr. Pearson refused to remove him.

However, when the election urged on the prime minister primarily by Mr. Gordon and Keith Davey, national Liberal organizer, failed to produce the much sought after majority, Mr. Pearson finally accepted the resignation.

Reports were circulating in Ottawa today that Mr. Davey will also soon be resigning from his post as national organizer. Before this campaign, however, he had told newsmen that it would be his last election campaign in that office.

Professor Kay said the greatest single stride made in surgery during the past 10 years was in the field of cardiac surgery.

"There have been tremendous strides made in all fields, of course," he said. "But I think that the greatest strides have without doubt been made in the cardiac surgery field."

Commenting on papers presented to the 200 surgeons attending the two day meeting at the Empress Hotel Professor Kay said the incidence of stomach ulcers, the subject under discussion this morning, had shown a slight decrease during the past seven years.

"From the turn of the century there was a steady increase in the incidence of stomach ulcers until about seven years ago," he said. "It may be too early to say definitely, but it would appear that we are over the peak and there will now be a steady decline.

Professor Kay said that while the cause of stomach ulcers had never definitely been pinned down, there did appear to be a relationship between intensive worry and the ulcer.

U.S. Backs British Plea For Rhodesia Sanctions

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United States said today it has ordered a comprehensive embargo on all arms shipments to Rhodesia and taken other steps to support Britain's efforts to suppress the independence move of Rhodesia's white-minority government.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg made this announcement at an urgent session of the United Nations Security Council, where British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart declared earlier that Britain has ruled out the use of force to punish the Rhodesian government of Ian Smith.

Goldberg urged all countries to join in tough economic restrictions to back Britain. He said the U.S. has closed its consulate in Salisbury and has decided to bar the importation of sugar from Rhodesia in 1966.

Other measures include suspension of action on applications for loans and credit from Rhodesia and warning of all potential investors of the grave risk involved in Rhodesian investments.

CRITICIZES BRITAIN

Ghana's Foreign Minister Alex Quaison-Sackey, the first African speaker in the council, was strongly critical of Britain's reluctance to use force in suppressing the "rebellion."

"We are not here to endorse half - hearted measures," he said.

Quaison-Sackey said the African states are prepared to give all possible assistance to Rhodesia's non -whites, including force.

Stewart told the council that if British measures against the Smith government are to succeed they must have the good will of the entire international community.

"We do not believe that the use of military force can solve these problems. I invite those who ask for military force to look around the world today and see how many places violence and armed conflict rage."

His remarks were addressed obviously to African countries which have been pressing Britain to use military force to subdue the rebellion by Rhodesia against Britain.

OPENED DEBATE

Stewart was the opening speaker in the council session called by Britain in the wake of Thursday's Rhodesian declaration of independence. African countries were expected to press demands for economic and diplomatic penalties by the entire UN membership against Rhodesia's white government.

Taking note of charges by African countries that Britain exercised too much patience in dealing with Smith's regime, the British foreign secretary declined:

"This illegal declaration of independence and the measures which Britain is taking mean inevitable distress and suffering to Rhodesia, including many Rhodesians of all races who detest the illegal actions and are wholly innocent of it."

Stewart added this comment to critics of British policy:

"Let me remind you of one quality of the British: Once we have decided on an action we do not hesitate to carry it through."

He appealed to the council to condemn the action taken by Rhodesia in declaring its independence and to urge the entire UN membership to support Britain in applying trade and economic penalties.

master of the fisheries department vessel Laurier, and Capt. Mitchell Gay, fisheries department marine superintendent in Vancouver.

Report of the confidential meeting is in the hands of Capt. McLellan. He will hand it over to department of transport officials in Vancouver on his return.

A spokesman for the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union said he didn't know if the union would intervene in the episode.

"We're waiting to hear what happened before we take any action."

The dead man belonged to the UFAW.

The spokesman said there had been similar cases of collision with Russian trawlers in the past.

PAID DAMAGES

In most cases the Russians have paid damages if their ship was in the wrong.

If no agreement can be reached between the two parties, the episode could be taken to the International Marine Court.

On the local scene, fishermen were enraged at the Russian fleet's action in northern Canadian waters.

Said Herbert Smith of Victoria, skipper of the Elwin S.: "It's a tough way to bring this about, but maybe there'll be some action now."

Along with most fishermen, Mr. Smith would like to see a baseline from northern Vancouver Island to the Queen Charlottes.

The 12-mile fishing limit would then extend outward from the baseline instead of from the B.C. and island coasts as at present.

This would exclude other nationalities from Queen Charlotte Sound and Hecate Strait.

Sonny Ross, chairman of Campbell River Chamber of Commerce fishing committee, said the Russians should be moved out of the area immediately.

He said: "If we don't move them out fast they'll establish an historic right and then we'll never get them out."

24 Beauties Compete For Miss Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Miss Canada 1966 will be chosen Sunday from 24 beauties from across the country.

The winner of the pageant will get a $1,000 scholarship, $5,000 in cash, more than $15,000 in merchandise and a year's work as a Canadian goodwill ambassador.

Linda Douma, of Sidney, a third-year arts student at the University of Victoria, was last year's winner. She took trips to such places as Tokyo, Beirut and Cyprus.

The Miss Canada pageant is not connected with the Miss Dominion of Canada contest held annually at Niagara Falls, Ont.

Gloria Mills, Miss Victoria of 1965, will not compete in the Miss Canada contest. Winners of the Miss Victoria contest have not been sent east for several years.

They ceased being sent to the national event when the Miss Canada contest changed hands and became "a commercial venture," said Jaycee president Brian Small.

The city sponsoring the contestant must now foot bills for her wardrobe, hotel and transportation, where formerly these were paid by the Miss Canada contest promoters.

"Now it's more of a money-making proposition," said Mr. Small.

"I think the girls got much more out of it before," he added.

"The winner is well looked after, but the losers sort of disappear and are just shipped off home."

CALGARIANS FEEL CHILL OF WINTER

EDMONTON (CP) — Frigid temperatures today gave Alberta and Saskatchewan a good taste of winter weather.

Coldest city was Calgary with an overnight reading of seven degrees below zero. The city also had the most snow on the ground, six inches from a fall Tuesday.

Temperatures generally were 15 degrees below normal. The outlook was for continued cold and sunny skies.

Edmonton reported an overnight low of six degrees. It was zero in Lethbridge and two at Medicine Hat.

Bare-Breasted Girls Make Seattle Debut

SEATTLE (AP) — Bare-breasted go-go girls made their debut on the Seattle scene Wednesday night and Police Chief Frank Ramon said he has no plans to do anything about it.

The Maison Blanc and Blue Danube restaurants each featured a dancer in a topless costume. Lloyd Ragan, who owns both restaurants, said the response was overwhelming.

A spokesman for the Blue Danube said it has been flooded with telephone calls from men wanting to know when the topless dancers would be introduced as a luncheon attraction.

"I am not going to advertise these places by taking police action," Ramon said.

"I am not going to be put in the position of trying to define obscenity. That is the job of the corporation counsel, the city council and the board of theatre supervisors."

A city licence department spokesman said lack of a clear-policy may lead to widespread use of the bare-bossomed dancers.

Doctors Called Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors under 35, some of them fathers, are being ordered to take physical examinations for possible induction into the armed forces in January. The selective service orders are going out to fill a defence department call for 1,529 physicians, 350 dentists and 100 veterinarians to go on duty early next year.

Gordon Resigns For 'Bad Advice'

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson, moving quickly to reconstruct his cabinet, has accepted the resignation of finance minister Walter Gordon.

GORDON
. . . accepts responsibility

The finance minister submitted his resignation Thursday on the grounds that he had given Mr. Pearson "bad advice" both as a minister and as chairman of the Liberal party's national campaign committee.

Mr. Gordon has long been regarded as a "liability" to the Liberal government. He tendered his resignation after his first budget got the new Liberal administration into difficulties in Parliament. At that time, however, the prime minister refused to accept the resignation.

Other resignations of members of the government also regarded as "liabilities" are expected in the near future, according to informed sources here. Among those who may resign are President of the Privy Council Guy Favreau, Secretary of State Maurice Lamontagne and Postmaster-General Rene Tremblay.

Mr. Gordon's resignation clears the way for the prime minister to do a major job of rebuilding his cabinet. Other resignations that are anticipated will make it possible for a wholesale cabinet reshuffle giving his government a completely different image and making it stronger.

Agriculture Minister Harry Hays was defeated in his constituency in Calgary South. Mines and Technical Surveys Minister Watson McNaught was defeated in his Prince Edward Island riding. This means there are now three vacancies in the cabinet.

Trade and Commerce Minister Mitchell Sharp is acting minister of finance and will carry on

Empty Spaces Mark Paper Censorship

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI)—Five empty spaces stood out prominently today on the front page of Salisbury's only daily newspaper—the anti-government Rhodesia Herald.

The blank spaces were a result of total censorship imposed by the Rhodesian government Thursday on local news media.

One of the blank blocks carried the following words:

"Censorship. In terms of the emergency powers order, all material in this newspaper has been subject to government censorship."

Two government censors arrived in the newspaper's editorial offices to supervise Thursday's edition.

Censorship was applied to three pages and the editorial was merely a blank column.

Blanks were left where the type had been removed, even in the middle of a story.

Rhodesia Defiance Labelled 'Treason'

BRITISH ENVOY LEAVES

BULAWAYO, Rhodesia (AP)—Violence erupted in Bulawayo's Negro township late Thursday a few hours after Rhodesia seized its independence from Britain, said reports received today by the South African Press Association.

Negro gangs roamed the streets and several petrol bombs were reported thrown, the association said.

SALISBURY (CP)—The Rhodesian cabinet, dismissed Thursday by Queen Elizabeth, met in a jovial mood today and its chief, Ian Smith, waved a bottle of champagne declaring "now we are launched."

As Prime Minister Smith waved the champagne, draped in the purple and white colors of his Rhodesian Front party, British High Commissioner John B. Johnston boarded a plane for London in symbol of the break between Britain and the colony which declared itself independent without British permission.

Observers said the very fact of a cabinet meeting indicated Smith and his 11 ministers, all officially fired by the Queen, intended to ignore the British-appointed governor's dismissal order.

Government sources said the governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, had left the capital and gone back to his cattle ranch near Bulawayo.

A government spokesman said the cabinet meeting was just a continuation of the long series held during the last month of abortive independence negotiations.

Smith waved telegrams to reporters and declared: "See what I've got."

'STORY ISN'T FINISHED'

At the airport, Johnston told reporters: "This is the end of a chapter, but it is not the end of the story." The first of a number of foreign envoys expected to leave within the next few days, he said it was "a very sad day."

Most of the rest of his 20-man staff and their families were expected to follow soon, leaving only "caretaker" representation.

Canadian Trade Commissioner Ian P. Smyth said he had been recalled and would leave for home within a few days.

White Rhodesians showed no more than quiet happiness on one hand, or quiet forebodding on the other, after the long-expected break. But so far they did not know of the economic sanctions which were imposed by Britain almost immediately after the break.

Censors strictly bottled up any word of the sanctions, which were regarded in Britain as likely to be ruinous to the Rhodesian economy.

Rarely before, and certainly never in Africa, has a country attained independence with so little fuss. There were no fireworks, no dancing in the str , no crowd-gripping balcony orations.

Smith, exhausted by the strain of weeks of almost non-stop cabinet meetings, vanished after his independence declaration until he reappeared for his champagne-waving cabinet attendance today. He was believed to have been resting in bed.

The United Peoples party, the all-African opposition, asked the Queen to appoint a new legal government to replace Smith's.

In a memorandum handed to High Commissioner Johnston before he left, the party ex-

Angry U.K. Cuts Trade

By PETER BUCKLEY

LONDON (CP)—The British government warned Prime Minister Ian Smith and his Rhodesian regime today their defiance of British authority is treason. The penalty is death.

Attorney-General Sir Elwyn Jones issued the warning in the Commons as the government sought emergency powers to restore Britain's authority over the breakaway, white-run colony in central Africa.

Jones warned Britons inside and outside Rhodesia that actions furthering the aims of Smith's would be treasonable.

The bill giving the British government massive powers of retaliation against Rhodesia sped toward adoption in the House.

Quick passage was urged by Prime Minister Wilson, who Thursday night accused Smith's regime of taking police state measures and assuming "the sickeningly familiar attitudes of authoritarian rule."

Jones introduced the bill asking special powers.

Wilson Rules Out Harsh Reprisals

Wilson told the House Britain might have to take further reprisals to counter any new Rhodesian provocations in the wake of Thursday's declaration of independence. But he sought to allay Conservative fears harsh reprisals demanded by some Commonwealth countries might speed Rhodesia toward anarchy.

"Anyone who ignores the fact that Rhodesia is a matter of world concern must have their head in the sand," he said. "We do not agree that the courses urged upon us in some places are wise or practical, but we cannot ignore the fact that they are being urged."

Wilson warned critics of the economic sanctions his government has imposed against Rhodesia that a possible alternative is Soviet intervention as part of a United Nations force.

Wilson said those who criticize the sanctions might be inviting the prospect of "the Red army in blue berets."

They are:

—An order invalidating any laws passed or business transacted by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's regime after its unilateral declaration of independence Thursday.

—Authority for the British government to exercise executive control and to make laws in Rhodesia.

—An amendment to British legislation to make it easier for "loyal Rhodesian citizens" to obtain citizenship of the United Kingdom and the colonies.

—An order enabling the British immigration authorities to confiscate passport documents issued or renewed by the Rhodesian regime.

Jones noted that other action by Britain—such as the ban on import of Rhodesian tobacco and sugar—had already been carried out under existing statutory powers.

Jones said the illegal regime pretended to give to the people of Rhodesia a new constitution —a move which he described as "a grave aspect of this rebellion."

"We have not yet seen this document, but it would seem clear that one of its objects is evidently to usurp the authority of the United Kingdom govern-

Landing Plane Burns; 40 Killed, 50 Escape

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A Boeing 727 jet airliner with 90 persons aboard burst into flames on landing at the city airport Thursday night and 40 passengers were killed or unaccounted for.

Another 50, including the crew of six, dived through windows and emergency hatches seconds before the fire raged forward from the three jet engines in the rail to the flight deck.

Of the survivors, there were 36, including the crew, under treatment in hospitals.

A spokesman for United Air Lines, owner of the plane, blamed the disaster on the collapse of the main landing gear as the aircraft touched down.

The flight, 227, originated in New York and reached Salt Lake City after stops in Cleveland, Chicago and Denver. Its scheduled destination was San Francisco.

THIRD TO CRASH

It was the third 727 involved in fatal accidents since August and the second this week. The first plunged into Lake Michigan off Lake Forest, Ill., Aug. 16, killing all 30 aboard. The second hit a hill while approaching Cincinnati Monday night and 58 of the 62 persons aboard died.

The Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington sent 12 investigators to seek the cause of the crash.

A Federal Aviation Agency spokesman said: "At this point we can see no relationship between the three accidents and

OIL INDUSTRY

Strike Deadline Midnight Monday

A strike deadline of midnight Monday has been set against British Columbia's oil industry.

The move by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union follows a breakdown in talks with oil companies.

"It is quite apparent now that there will be a total shutdown," union president Fred Geddes said this morning.

The strike against Shell, Home, Texaco, Standard and Pacific Petroleums would be an extension of the walkout at British American, which started Sept. 14 in a job security-wages dispute.

The union said the extension was caused by two factors:

- Oil companies made no counter offer to amended requests from the union for a new contract;
- The Labour Relations Act states a strike can only take place during the three months immediately after the date of a strike vote.

Mr. Geddes said the union scaled down its original proposals to an extra 50 cents over two years instead of 40 cents in one year.

In addition, in the job security field, it reduced to six months from 18 months its request for notification of introduction of new processes in the industry.

"There was no counter offer, therefore we set the strike deadline for Nov. 15," he said.

How effective the strike will be depends on support from other trade unions. The OCAW is not organized 100 per cent

Mr. Diefenbaker said constitutionally "no one minister can vicariously accept responsibility for the wrongdoing of the cabinet."

Canadian Sanctions Against Rhodesia

OTTAWA (CP)—The new state of Rhodesia will not be recognized by the Canadian government which moved Thursday to impose trade and other sanctions against the former African colony.

A few hours after Rhodesia unilateraly declared its independence, Prime Minister Pearson issued a statement here to say: "That we do not recognize either the unilteral declaration . . . or the independent state of Rhodesia . . . or the Smith government itself in Rhodesia."

The prime minister referred to the declaration as "this most regrettable Rhodesian action." He heard the news with "deep disappointment and regret."

The Canadian trade commissioner in Salisbury, Ian Smyth, will be withdrawn, Mr. Pearson said, and Rhodesian goods coming into Canada will no longer enjoy the British preferential tariff. The statement also said "The export of all arms, military equipment and ammunition to Rhodesia will be banned, and there will be no new aid and financing agreements."

EAST, WEST UNITED IN CONDEMNING SMITH

By United Press International

Rhodesia's rebellious white government was condemned around the world today. Premier Ian Smith was a virtual outcast, opposed by both East and West.

It appeared that only two nations—South Africa and Portugal—would extend diplomatic recognition to the Smith regime.

South Africa and Portugal cast the only dissenting votes Thursday night on a stiff United Nations resolution calling Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence the work of "a racialist minority."

Governments with political philosophies as divergent as the United States, the Soviet Union and Communist China lined up in a rare display of unanimity against Smith's action.

The United States seemed certain to follow Britain's lead in imposing economic and diplomatic sanctions in an effort to punish the Smith government and bring it down.

Some African and Communist nations blamed Britain for the crisis. There were warnings from several quarters of an African bloodbath if Britain did not intervene with force of arms.

These were the major reactions:

MOSCOW — Izvestia, the official newspaper of the Soviet government, described Smith and his followers as "racialist rebels." Izvestia placed the responsibility for the situation on British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and his Labor government.

"By its policies of concessions and connivance with the Rhodesian racialists, London has in fact pushed Smith to the decisive action," Izvestia said. The official Tass News Agency pledged firm support for Rhodesia's 3,8 million blacks.

VICTORIA MAN AMONG RHODESIAN TEACHERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Nine Canadian teachers and their 28 dependents are in Rhodesia under a government education program in the Commonwealth country that has declared its independence.

Announcement by the Canadian government that it does not recognize the unilateral independence declaration by Rhodesia is not expected to affect their status, a spokesman in the external affairs department said Thursday.

The Canadian teachers include Daniel Farrell, 28, Port Arthur, Ont.; Wilmer Penner, 30, Landmark, Man.; John Donald MacNeill, 28, Prince Albert, Sask.; David A. Daum, 26, Regina, and former Saanich Reeve Stanley Murphy.

pressed its opposition to the Rhodesian government's unilateral declaration of independence and continued allegiance to the Queen.

Rhodesia radio's news bulletins were turned into a vehicle for government statements. None of the day's first three news broadcasts contained any other news.

Instead there were statements of stringent government controls, including one on rice, one of the staples of the Negro population.

But as the cabinet met, the atmosphere remained calm, without trace of excitement or emotion.

Some white Rhodesians celebrated their new-found independence in bars and night clubs Thursday night, defiantly proclaiming their support for Smith.

One group staggered up a main city street chanting "independent Rhodesia, independent Rhodesia."

The country continued calm and there were no signs of unrest in the Negro townships surrounding the capital. The Negroes seemed lethargic and almost apathetic as they faced the prospect of continued white supremacy.

Smith's white government seemed to be in full control of the situation as Rhodesia entered its second day of full independence.

Thursday the Rhodesian leader, with a portrait of the Queen at his back, signed the proclamation declaring Rhodesia independent.

"We will, I am sure, be able to face any difficulties which may occur, fortified by the same strength and courage which distinguished our forefathers in days gone by" he said.

Finance Minister John Wrathall and Trade Minister George Rudland gave the first official Rhodesian indications of what difficulties are expected and what steps are being taken to face them.

Rhodesians were warned that they face the prospect of rationing if economic sanctions threatened by Britain and other countries are effective, Rudland said.

Warthall announced that foreign exchange dealings have been suspended for a temporary period. Their resumption would be authorized in a day or so by the Reserve Bank of Rhodesia.

The first priority is to secure the balance of payments and so maintain international solvency, Wrathall said. The second was to tackle the internal problems that ensue, to sustain internal demand, and to deal with "urgent budgetary matters."

Control over imports and exports would be intensified and allocations of foreign currency for imports would be cut below the amounts envisaged when import control was introduced last week.

Exchange control would be tightened. Holiday allowances would be reduced to £100 ($300) from £300, non-cumulative, for each person annually. Automatic allocation of up to £20 a day for 21 days for business men would cease and each application be considered on its merits in future.

The post office would discontinue sales of money orders for payment outside Rhodesia.

Rudland said the severity of import controls and their duration would depend on the severity and effectiveness of sanctions imposed against Rhodesia.

Export control would apply from today to safeguard essential supplies already in the country.

ment and the sovereignty of Parliament.

"There is abundant authority for the conclusion that conduct of the kind that has taken place is treasonable."

There was a roar of approval from Labor supporters when he added:

"So would be steps taken by anyone, whether in Rhodesia or this country or by anyone else owing allegiance to the Crown, with the intention of furthering the objectives of the illegal regime or inciting others to take such steps.

However, the parties split today on the question of using tough economic weapons. Liberal Leader Jo Grimond called for tougher economic sanctions to end the rebellion.

But Conservative Leader Edward Heath urged caution, suggesting that even a ban on further Rhodesian tobacco imports be lifted.

Heath argued that strong economic measures against the rebellious regime might lead Smith into adopting a form of abhorrent government already in effect in some parts of Africa.

However, the government made clear that seizure of Rhodesian sterling balances here, amounting to some £24,000,000 ($72,000,000), does not mean a freeze, some of this sterling still will be allowed into Rhodesia.

Rhodesia has already sold this year's tobacco crop and the import ban will have no practical effect until next year.

Labor members warned during the Rhodesian debate that if Britain fails to take action against Smith, white residents in other parts of Africa may suffer at the hands of non-white governments.

Grimond suggested the Labor administration should take swift, short but full effective economic action, even to the point of considering ways of blocking Rhodesia's oil supplies.

As the opposition peppered Wilson and his Cabinet with questions about Rhodesia, Wilson made clear he will fight the use of force as a means of bringing Smith to his knees.

All signs suggested Wilson was walking a tightrope, attempting to show the world and the Afro-Asian countries in particular that he was in fact taking action against Smith but in effect sidestepping tough measures, such as oil curbs, which could destroy the Rhodesian economy and buckle the Smith regime.

Wilson was anxious to maintain national unity over Rhodesia and he went out of his way in a television broadcast Thursday night to stress that sanctions "have not been taken in any punitive sense."

The prime minister emphasized: "We shall need the wisest counsels to ensure that those measures are taken, and only those measures are taken which can best bring about a peaceful return to the rule of law and to democratic development in Rhodesia."

Group of Small, Frightened Men

But Wilson also lashed out at the Rhodesian government, terming it a "group of small and frightened men" who were setting up a police state.

He said Smith had allowed himself to become a prisoner of extremists in his cabinet.

These extremists, Wilson said, were men "to whom the very notions of democracy, the very idea of the rule of law, even the loyalty they profess to Britain are in anathema."

During today's Commons debate, Jones was asked by Labor member Dick Taverne about the position of any British businessman who might trade now with Rhodesia.

". . . The British government have prohibited certain transactions would be criminal participation."

Arthur Bottomley, Commonwealth relations secretary, opened debate and described the declaration of indendence as "an unparallelled act of folly."

Bottomly said that at a meeting with him, Smith "stood out as a man of character and integrity."

"He confided to me that he had difficulties in his cabinet. We are determined that there must be eventually majority rule in Rhodesia. We are equally determined that eventually there must be racial equality in Rhodesia."

Heath supported the bill. He said of the Smith regime: "We recognize it is an illegal government and the British government should have no dealings with it."

Heath asked clarification of a Wilson statement that Britain would send troops into Rhodesia if they were "asked for."

Wilson replied: "The legal government of Rhodesia is the governor (Sir Humphrey Gibbs). If the governor were to approach the British government for forces, police or any other assistance to help to restore law and order, we would of course respond to the request of the governor and give full consideration to it."

Wilson added: "I think the whole House will agree that we should not consider sending what would have to be a major military invasion for the purpose of imposing a constitutional solution on Rhodesia."

ing sentences on Rivard's three confederates:

—Julien Gagnon, 36, and Joseph Raymond Jones, 28, 15 years each plus a $10,000 fine.

—Charles Groleau, 56, 12 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Rivard was convicted Sept. 21 of conspiracy to smuggle and of actually smuggling 76 pounds of heroin across the United States border to Laredo.

The other three were convicted only of a conspiracy charge each, so Rivard was liable to twice as much punishment.

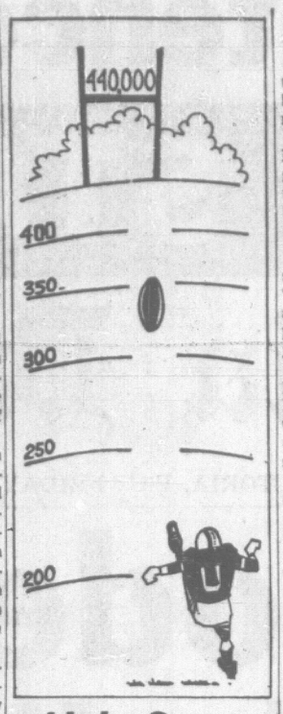

Judge Connally sentenced Rivard to 20 years on each of the two counts against him, but ruled that the sentences run concurrently, meaning that the total term is 20 years.

Connally said the amount of narcotics involved in the case "is beyond my understandnig."

Witnesses had told of Rivard being involved in the smuggling or perhaps $200 million worth of heroin across the borders of the United States.

Help Score 'Fair Share' Goal

Greater Victoria's United Appeal today continued to crawl toward its goal of $440,000.

Total at noon was $360,841 which is 82.1 per cent of target.

The residential campaign total has reached over $56,000 which is only $12,000 short of its quota.

Persons missed in the residential canvass can contribute at one of nine downtown United Appeal collection centres.

Donations can be taken at the main branches of the five chartered banks and in the accounts departments of Woodward's, Hudson's Bay Co., and Eaton's department stores.

The appeal's collection booth at Yates and Douglas is averaging $200 daily in contributions.

throughout any oil company, but does have strength at the refinery level.

On Vancouver Island, only BA's marketing division is organized. Nine members in Victoria and five in Nanaimo have been on strike since Sept. 14.

CLOSURES

Support by other unions, responding to a call not to handle "hot" products, could conceivably shut down pulp mills, steel plants, major construction projects and inter-city trucking.

At the B.C. Federation of Labor annual meeting last week, Mr. Geddes said some unions were undercutting the effectiveness of the BA strike by lack of support.

"Some unions have honored the boycott on hot BA products and some have not," he said then.

The 110,000-member federation was holding a special meeting today of top union officials at which full support for the extended strike is expected to be voiced.

One union source said "management can get all the injunctions they want, but this could still be another Port Alberni situation."

He was referring to the seven-week strike by 60 office workers at MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River. More than 3,000 millworkers refused to go to work.

Last week Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said the province will not tolerate a full shutdown of the oil industry.

He was not in his Victoria office this morning. His secretary said he is on the mainland but not available by telephone.

SYNOPSIS — Skies were clear over most of B.C. Thursday night as Arctic air continued to push slowly south through the mountains. Temperatures dropped to their lowest yet at a number of stations this fall as Williams Lake fell to 11 above and Vancouver was down to 31. In general temperatures along the coast were near 40. A Pacific disturbance moving eastward through southern Oregon this morning was to give only patchy cloud to the extreme southern portions of the province.

Golden Rule Status Given Funeral Firm

Hayward's Funeral Chapel of Victoria has been elected to membership in the Order of the Golden Rule — an international affiliation of funeral directors — for the fifth consecutive year.

"We consider this a high honor," director William Hayward said today. "Renewal of membership is based on our ability to provide modern, comprehensive service at prices which are reasonable and just."

'NOT BY GOLD'

As Victoria member of the Order of the Golden Rule, Hayward's chapel is authorized to display a knight-and-shield emblem on which is emblazoned the motto: "Service measured not by gold, but by the Golden Rule."

Alfred W. Francis, co-director of Haywards, said members of the order are located in towns and cities all over the world. "We are continually seeking new and better ways of serving bereaved families," he said.

Golden Rule members are pledged to serve families of all income groups, including families which have no funds to pay for a funeral.

MASKED CREWS search debris for bodies after United Air Lines Boeing 727 burst into flames on landing in Salt Lake City Thursday. Cutting torches are used in hunt for victims. About 40 died and 50 escaped blazing plane. (AP Wirephoto.)

Action Sought On Control Of Starlings

Control of a bird with a ravenous appetite for berries is high on a list of problems to be discussed at the annual convention of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture at the Empress Hotel Nov. 23-24.

Lower Fraser Valley farmers will submit a resolution calling for immediate government action to control the starling population — increasing at an alarming rate throughout the province.

The bird with a dark metallic green and purple plumage and about 8½ inches long, somewhat resembles a blackbird.

Since a few birds were first sighted in the Okanagan Valley in 1946, the population has soared—some say well over the 1,000,000 mark.

The birds which migrated from eastern Canada are now to be found in most parts of the province.

Mainland growers claim they face economic ruin within the next few years unless effective action is taken.

They report a 20 per cent loss to their berry crops last year.

More than 150 delegates representing farm organizations throughout the province are expected for the meeting.

Speakers include J. H. Warren, deputy minister of trade and commerce, and Alex Turner, B.C. deputy minister of agriculture.

Resolutions to be submitted to the convention range from requests for a comprehensive crop insurance scheme to a solution to the farm labor shortage.

Another subject to be discussed as the need for a better program of roadside drainage to offset the flooding of farm lands.

This program plagues many areas on Vancouver Island and the B.C. mainland.

Delegates will also seek government action to improve grazing and range lands for cattle in the interior of B.C.

Concerned at the steadily increasing auto insurance rates, mainland growers will also submit a resolution requesting the government to investigate the feasibility of taking over car insurance.

Growers are also dissatisfied with the government road spraying program for controlling roadside weeds.

They will request instead that slopes on rural roads be seeded with grass.

This would permit easier control of weeds and would also help to control erosion.

PLANE BURNS

we have no plans for grounding 727 jets."

The survival of the crew provided an opportunity for investigators to obtain first-hand expert opinion on the cause.

Dr. Hilmon Castle, a medical examiner for the Federal Aviation Agency, said he found bodies "strewn along the aisle, some of them piled on top of each other."

There are Canadians listed on the plane's passenger list.

One of those killed was well known in Western Canada. He was Bill Linderman, secretary-treasurer of the Rodeo Cowboy Association and many times world champion when he competed in the rodeo circuit including Calgary.

Linderman, best known as a steer wrestler, retired six years ago. He earned more than $439,000 in rodeo competition.

The plane was United's Flight 227 originating in New York City with stops in Cleveland, Chicago, Denver and Salt Lake City en route to San Francisco.

TWO OTHERS CRASHED

It was the third 727 involved in an airline accident since August—and the second this week.

The 72-ton, tri-jet airliner approached the airport from the south for an on-schedule landing.

"We had a hard bump, started swerving from side to side," said passenger Ralph S. Nesbitt, a Santa Monica, Calif., salesman. "And flames broke out from the rear.

"People were thrown all over the place. It was horrible. The heat was terrible."

Nesbitt said he dived to safety through on open window, onto a wing and through a sheet of flames to the ground.

The interior of the plane blackened into charcoal. The Deputy Salt Lake County attorney, Warren M. Weggeland, said only the arms and legs of victims were distinguishable in the debris.

The plane was piloted by Capt. Gail C. Keimierer, 48, of Denver. The captain and his crew survived.

C.A.B. WILL INVESTIGATE

The C.A.B. said in Washington 12 investigators were en route to the crash. A Washington spokesman for the Federal Aviation Agency said it had no plans for grounding 727 jets.

"At this point, the FAA can see no relationship between the three accidents," the spokesman said. "Grounding now would be premature."

Pader Hogue, chief flight safety engineer for Boeing Aircraft Co., said he would take part in the investigation.

"I think it's a fine airplane and recent unfortunate experiences are in my opinion unrelated," he said.

Hogue was in Cincinnati Thursday night to investigate the crash of a Boeing 727 jetliner Monday night in which 58 of 62 persons aboard were killed.

Another 727 crashed into Lake Michigan just off the shore of Lake Forest, Ill., Aug. 16 killing all 30 persons aboard.

The FAA said three passengers on the jet that burned at Salt Lake City were FAA supervisors. The agency said the supervisors, on a routine flight, escaped serious injury.

Boeing said it has delivered about 195 airplanes of the 727 type. United said it purchased 40 of them at a cost of $185,000,000. The 727 has a capacity of 92 passengers and six crew members. It cruises between 550 and 600 miles an hour.

Tribe Trial To Continue On Monday

Hearing of a charge of impaired driving against David Tribe, 4511 Pachena Place, will continue in central court Monday.

The trial began Wednesday when an RCMP Staff-Sergeant, Angus Robson, gave evidence he was driving on Cedar Hill Cross Road near Blenkinsop about midnight Sept. 18.

He said a car drove over to his side of the street and it appeared as if there was going to be a head-on collision. He said he veered to the right and the cars sideswiped one another.

S/Sgt. Robson said the accused in his opinion was intoxicated. He testified he saw Tribe pour the contents of a bottle of rye on the road after the accident.

. . . GORDON RESIGNS

in that position until the portfolio is filled by Mr. Pearson.

The successor to Mr. Gordon as finance minister was not immediately known here today. Two names are being mentioned however as possible successors.

They are Robert Winters who successfully staged a comeback in politics when he won in the Toronto constituency of York West. Trade and Commerce Minister Sharp is also believed in the running for the key post. He has been frequently mentioned in the past as a possible finance minister if Mr. Gordon should resign.

TRIP TO EUROPE

Mr. Gordon is not leaving Parliament. He was scheduled to leave Ottawa Thursday night for a trip to Europe, had the Liberals been successful in obtaining a good majority in the election. With the failure to win that majority, Mr. Gordon postponed his trip by one day. He attended the cabinet meeting Wednesday and Thursday presented his resignation, and after a talk with Mr. Pearson Thursday afternoon, it was accepted. Mr. Gordon was scheduled to leave for Europe tonight.

After his vacation Mr. Gordon is expected to return to Ottawa and attend the Commons. However, he is not expected to remain long in political life. In talks with friends, he has often made it clear that once the time came that he felt he could no longer be of any help to Mr. Pearson he would prefer to get out of politics and public life and return to private business in Toronto.

STRONG RUMORS

There were strong rumors during the election campaign that Winters, a leading Canadian industrialist, would be offered the finance portfolio if he was elected. He won it with a majority of 17,000. He was minister of public works and reconstruction minister in the Liberal government of Louis St. Laurent. He was defeated in 1957.

Mr. Winters retired from public life after that defeat to go into business. He was successful in the business world and when he announced his decision to seek re-election it immediately sparked rumors that he would be named finance minister. So strong did the rumors become that Mr. Pearson during the campaign felt compelled to say at Wallaceburg, Ont., during a speech, that he would keep Mr. Gordon on as finance minister in the new Liberal government.

But the election stalemate changed the situation. Mr. Gordon in his letter of resignation wrote:

CAMPAIGN 'SUPERB'

"For many months, as one of your senior ministers, I urged you to call an election on the grounds we needed a majority to govern the country well and to ensure the kind of stability I thought was needed. As chairman of the Liberal party's national campaign committee I believed that if you conducted a good campaign we would obtain a comfortable majority. Your campaign was superb in every way. You could not have done any better or any more than you did.

"The conclusion is quite clear. I gave you bad advice, both as minister and as campaign chairman. I accept full responsibility for this and therefore submit my resignation from the cabinet. If there is anything I can ever do for you at any time, you know all you have to do is let me know."

In reply Mr. Pearson wrote in part as follows:

"I cannot accept your assumption of responsibility for the decision to hold the recent election which, while it confirmed our position as a government with considerably the largest support in the House of Commons, did not give us the majority of members we sought. You and others advised me to hold the election at this time, for reasons which seemed perfectly valid, but the decision was mine and the sole responsibility for the decision remains mine."

HINGED ON ELECTION

Mr. Gordon and Mr. Pearson talked over the resignation at lunch Thursday at 24 Sussex Street, the prime minister's residence. Later it was disclosed by Allan Donnelly, Mr. Gordon's executive assistant, that the possibility of the resignation had hinged on the election outcome.

The minister had in effect staked his portfolio on his gamble that in urging the prime minister to call an election at this time the Liberal minority government would be returned with a healthy majority.

Mr. Gordon had gambled and lost.

In giving the election advice the minister had said if he turned out to be wrong he would resign. Consequently he felt honor bound to submit his resignation.

The resignation however came as a surprise despite hints dropped by several persons close to the prime minister that he would be acting almost immediately to reconstruct his cabinet. It was at 8:15 p.m. Ottawa time that the prime minister's press secretary called political reporters at their homes with word that the minister would be resigning "within 10 minutes."

Ten minutes later at the East Block, the prime minister's office distributed a press release comprising a one paragraph announcement of the resignation. Attached were the letters.

Mr. Pearson and Mr. Gordon have been life-long friends.

REBUILD PARTY

It was Mr. Gordon who worked with Mr. Pearson after the 1958 election disaster in which the Liberals suffered a smashing defeat, to rebuild the party organization and its strength. Mr. Gordon won his Toronto Davenport seat in the 1962 election and when the 1963 campaign put the Liberals into office, Mr. Pearson named him finance minister.

But after bringing down his first budget Mr. Gordon was in difficulties. He had recruited three "outsiders" from Toronto —violating a long standing tradition—to help him prepare the budget.

The first budget was a disaster from the government's point of view. Mr. Gordon who had held the reputation of one of the "brightest" of the "bright new Liberals" that Mr. Pearson had attracted into political life, saw his reputation plummet as a finance expert. The opposition pounded and harried the finance minister but his close friend, the prime minister, stood by him throughout those dark days.

RESISTED PRESSURES

Pressures were on Mr. Pearson to remove Mr. Gordon from the finance portfolio but he resisted them and insisted that the minister be given another chance. Mr. Gordon's subsequent budgets did little to enhance his reputation with business and investment circles. Other Liberals regarded him as a "liability" to the prime minister and the administration, but Mr. Pearson refused to remove him.

However, when the election urged on the prime minister primarily by Mr. Gordon and Keith Davey, national Liberal organizer, failed to produce the much sought after majority, Mr. Pearson finally accepted the resignation.

Reports were circulating in Ottawa today that Mr. Davey will also soon be resigning from his post as national organizer. Before this campaign, however, he had told newsmen that it would be his last election campaign in that office.

Professor Kay said the greatest single stride made in surgery during the past 10 years was in the field of cardiac surgery.

"There have been tremendous strides made in all fields, of course," he said. "But I think that the greatest strides have without doubt been made in the cardiac surgery field."

Commenting on papers presented to the 200 surgeons attending the two day meeting at the Empress Hotel Professor Kay said the incidence of stomach ulcers, the subject under discussion this morning, had shown a slight decrease during the past seven years.

"From the turn of the century there was a steady increase in the incidence of stomach ulcers until about seven years ago," he said. "It may be too early to say definitely, but it would appear that we are over the peak and there will now be a steady decline.

Professor Kay said that while the cause of stomach ulcers had never definitely been pinned down, there did appear to be a relationship between intensive worry and the ulcer.
